The wedding march was played by Miss Gertrude Briggs of Bloom, as the bride party entered the parlor. The maid of honor was Miss Margaret M. Dodson, a sister of the bride. Mr. Herbert S. Full off with starch and gloss serene, The linen collar starts the morn; Full off at noontime it is seen, All writhed, wrinkled and forlorn.

That's what you must expect of such a collar; it's the linen of it. The stand-up collars won't stand up, and the turn-down collars will wilt down. The easy, cheap, and pleasant way out of this is to wear "CELLULOID" COLLARS AND CUFFS. These goods are made by covering linen collars or cuffs on both sides with "CELLULOID," thus making them strong and durable, and waterproof, not affected by heat or moisture. There are no other waterproof goods made this way, consequently none that can wear so well. When soiled simply wipe them off with a wet cloth. Every piece of the genuine is stamped like this:

Insist upon goods so marked if you expect full satisfaction, and if your dealer does not keep them, send direct to us enclosing amount and we will mail sample. State size and whether a stand-up or turned-down collar is wanted. Collars 25c. each. Cuffs 50c. pair. THE CELLULOID COMPANY 427-29 Broadway, New York.

EIGHTH PAGE ESSAYS.

No. 3.

When the Democratic party assembled in national convention in 1892 and nominated Mr. Cleveland for the presidency, it did promise and vow three things, if put into power: First, to repeal the Sherman silver purchasing act; second, to repeal the federal election law; and third, to repeal the McKinley tariff act.

Upon that promise we went to the country, and after a contest of unusual interest and activity, the democrats were put into power by a majority over Mr. Harrison of nearly 400,000; and the electoral college stood, Cleveland 277, Harrison 145, Weaver 22, showing a majority for Cleveland over all of his opponents of 110.

Mr. Cleveland called Congress together in extra session, Aug. 7, 1893, and the bill to repeal the Sherman silver act passed the House August 28. It went to the Senate and a substitute bill passed that body October 31, which, upon being reported to the House, was agreed to and became a law by the President's signature.

At the regular session the federal election law was also repealed, and thus a free ballot was established and federal soldiers were deprived from any and all interference with the elections of citizens, and intimidation, seizure, and arrest prohibited and every man was protected in his right to vote according to the dictates of his own judgment.

The Wilson tariff bill, repealing the McKinley bill, was also introduced, and after prolonged debate, overcoming all objections made by foes and pretended friends was passed and became a law on the 28th day of August, just one year after the House passed the Sherman silver bill.

Thus, within eighteen months after the democrats came into power, they had fully redeemed the pledge they had made to repeal those three most mischievous and ruinous acts which, during the canvass, had been debated, considered and most emphatically condemned. We assert, therefore, that the people of the country had no cause to find fault with the democratic party. It had fulfilled its pledges, it had kept the faith with its constituents, and it was entitled to be tried by its works before it was condemned for its performance of duty. Sixty days of a revenue tariff had started almost every industry in the country, and activity in all manufacturing centres will continue under democratic legislation as democrats predicted it would, and to that we now call the attention of all readers.

In the face of all these facts, republicans now proclaim that the democrats cannot govern the country; but however that may be, no more can the republicans govern it, except by money or by force. When they were in power they could only get along by the aid of boodle, backed by bayonets. The republican party is now what it always has been. It was and it is essentially a war party. It was and it is essentially a party of proscription. The democratic party, purged of its baser elements, reanimated by the constitutional doctrines of Jefferson, inspired by the national spirit of Jackson, is the natural, the inevitable party of the constitution and the people, and as such it is bound to live and regain its lost prestige.

Philadelphia papers are now facetiously suggesting that a retaining wall be built around the new reservoir and the city treasury to keep them from slipping away.

Brave Thomas Lloyd Saved 40 Lives, but Perhaps Lost his Own.

The engine-house at the Stevens Colliery, in West Pittston, caught fire at midnight, last Saturday, and in a few minutes after the blaze was discovered by Engineer Thomas Lloyd, he realized that the machinery of which he had charge would be rendered useless. This meant that the fans supplying the air current in the mine would stop and the forty men working under ground would be suffocated by gas or killed by an explosion.

Lloyd rang the signal-bell notifying those in the mine that something was wrong. The men were working some distance from the foot of the shaft, and it was some time before they answered the signal. Finally one of them shouted through the telephone wanting to know what was the matter. Lloyd told him, and he ran to give the alarm. Meanwhile the flames had spread rapidly, and the engine-house was full of stifling smoke. Pulling his cap over his face, Lloyd waited anxiously for the signal to hoist. During the interval he gave the alarm by blowing the big breaker-whistle. This he knew would bring the fire companies to the place. Then he waited for the signal.

There was no means of escape from the mine except by the carriage. The flames were now all around Lloyd, his clothes were scorching and he could not see for the smoke. At last came the signal, three strokes of the bell, and with a glad heart he pulled the lever and the carriage swiftly mounted the 800 feet to the surface. As it stopped at the top there was another signal, "Descend." The men were not all up yet.

With the flames biting into his flesh, Lloyd sent the carriage down again. Once more he hoisted, and still once again came the signal that all the men were not up. With his senses reeling with pain and partial suffocation, he again lowered the cage, and for the third time he hoisted. Then he waited. The bell again sounded. This time it said "All right."

With a muttered "Thank God" Lloyd dashed for the door and outside. A crowd had collected. A blanket was thrown over him and the fire on his clothes extinguished. Then he fainted.

He was carried to his home near by and his wounds dressed. There was hardly a place on his body which was not scorched, and in several places the flames had eaten into his flesh. The physicians cannot say whether he will recover or not. The engine-house was totally destroyed. Loss $4,000.

Use it in Time.

Catarrh starts in the nasal passages, affecting eyes, ears and throat, and is in fact, the great enemy of the mucous membrane. Neglected colds in the head almost invariably precede catarrh, causing an excessive flow of mucus, and if the mucous discharge becomes interrupted the disagreeable results of catarrh will follow, such as bad breath, severe pain across forehead and about the eyes, a roaring and buzzing sound in the ears and oftentimes a very offensive discharge. Ely's Cream Balm is the acknowledged cure for these troubles.
