Representative Jeffrey, it is said. will introduce a resolution in the legislature looking to the establishment befall man or beast who in any way and maintenance of Keeley cures for the benefit of chronic inebriates. And homes of refuge, &cc.

The Montour American is led to say there are 6,000 women employed in the Treasury Department at Washington. The Treasury building covers considerable ground space, it is true, but not near enough to accommodate that many women. To take off one cipher from the number will still leave quite a crowd of women, and there must be some allowance made for men, vaults, and money-making machinery.

There being a limit to the length of there being about a month left in which the present Congress can still make laws for us, in the parlance of the hoodlum our statesmen want to "get a move on," or else the time for adjournment will strike them before they are ready for u. The corruptest kind of corrupt legislation is frequently passed in the hurly burly and exact fact. confusion of a dying session.

Oleveland Out for the Relief of the Treasury.

Good Roads.

Good roads, the main arteries of continental traffic, are surely quite as deserving of appropriation for maintainence from public funds as are in act of poisoning. She was, on nine tenths of the many institutions Saturday, sentenced to imprisonment and objects thus provided for. To for life for having poisoned her first the writer it seems a burning shame that no voice is raised in our halls of an aged and wealthy uncle, Jacques legislation in behalf of the rural districts in general and the continental highways in particular.

While all navigable water-courses and rivers and harbors (some in fact that the Almighty never intended should be navigable by anything larger than a skiff) are amply provid ed for year in and year out, from the funds in the treasuries not otherwise been possessed with a mania for this appropriated, the countrymon of America, (England maintains good roads) have to make all their own public roads at their own expense. besides paying whatever damage may gets hurt in traveling over them. This, (like giving nothing whatever to counwhy not, as well as other asylums, try academies from the millions appropriated for school purposes) is unfair and inequitable. Who disputes it ? While watercourses and railroads have been the recipients of public funds and favors from time to time until in some cases they feel that they are monarchs of all they survey, having rights and special favors that none presume to dispute, yet the over taxed countryman of America still eas to build at his own expense and labor every foot of the roads which are traveled free of charge by everybody. He builds all roads except where the exclusive privilege is given some corthe short session of Congress and poration to fix up a turn pike, socalled on him, and then to sock it to him at the toll gate. Here, in far too many cases, the countryman has the privilege of taking to the woods or traveling over a mud turnpike which is so perfectly devoid of stones as to let his wheels into mud up to the hubs, in many places, in the spring and fall of each year. This is an

It is doubt tion of the frantic statesman is to ful, however, if anything will be done hunt down the enemy with alliterative at the present session. There is a denouncement. The "Brains, belly probability that relief legislation can and brass" charged against the present pass in the house in the face of fierce administration by Mr. Sibley is alliterative enough, and perhaps true enough; but we can't well see how an administration would get along in these pecu-liar times shou d it find itself deficient in either of these respects. Let's illustrate a little. To have the ship of State adrift without brains enough to guide it safely would certainly be calamitous. Then to have free lunches innumerable and no roomy place to put them would be productive of dispepsia and highly vexatious. And to lack brass enough to deal sternly with Congressmen whose lips require a little more sealing wax after they have been pretty well sealed already, would be unfair to the more honorable and honest and modest. It is quite possible that Mr. Sibley's recent exposition of the susceptibility of Congressmen to bribery is entirely correct; but to denounce the administration because it recreates on Hog Island or fishes in Buzzard's Bay is grotesquely ridiculous; for if anybody has to deal with hogs and buzzards in his daily routine its the President of the United States.

A Modern Lucretia Borgia.

Madame Marie Jonianx, of Belgium, has recently proved herself to be a modern rival of Lucretia Borgia husband, her sister Leonie Ablay. Vander Kerchore, and her brother Alfred Ablay. In each case the victims carried more or less life insurance, and herein no doubt laid her prime incentive. While it is thought she hoped to be benefitted by the insurance money, either directly or indirectly, yet we fear that she, like Lucretia Borgia of old, may have terrible species of devilment, just as some otherwise very fine ladies are kleptomaniacs, and without the least need of their stealing Madame Joniaux is a woman of 53 years, and is possessed of remarkable ability, as her protracted trial amply disclosed. The story of her cruel poisonings with morphine and atropine was laid bare in Court, but she took the witness stand herself. and, to her own satisfaction, with apparent frankness explained away every point made against her. Adroit behavior on her own part and shrewdness and eloquence on the part of her lawyers were futile, however, and she was convicted.

The life imprisonment to which Mme. Joniaux is doomed will be of the most hideous form. She will be locked in a dungeon where no ray of light can ever penetrate. She will never see a human being or hear a human voice. Her food will be pushed through a slit in the wall of her cell. She must either die or go mad in a few months. Two years has been the maximum of life and sanity of prisoners thus doomed.

It Will Take Wings and Fly, Too-

A full treasury was left at Harrisburg by the outgoing Democratic administration. With a number of such jobs as $100,000 for a "bird book," now before the Legislature, it will not be long before the state treasury will be in about the same condition that Harrison and the Billion Dollar Congress left the national finances .- Westmoreland Democrat.

Senator Vest holds that the finances of the Government are not so straightened and alarming as the gold men claim. We hope the Seuator is right about this matter, for there are a great many people laboring under the opposite delusion.

A Clean Sweep. ↔ PROGRESSEY

Col. McClure Eulogines Gov. Curtin.

In the life and services of the la mented Andrew G. Curtin is interwoven so much of national and state history that the student who neglects to read the eloquent tribute of praise recently offered him by Col. A. K. Mc-Clure, before the assembled State Legislature, will be wanting in respect of the true history of this statesman and patriot, Col. McClure, perhaps the ablest editor in America to-day, (he is certainly the most popular) was the one of all others to pronounce the eulogy and recite the history and biography of Andrew G. Curtin the scholar, the statesman, the patriot, and the supremely beloved war governor of Pennsylvania. This eulogy can no doubt be gotten in pamphlet torm through Representatives in the Legislature. It is worthy a place in any library.

From the other class it will not be.

Compulsory Education-

Evidently, our law makers are bent upon looking after the improvement of our school system as bills of various kinds are already seeking passage through the legislature. There are two, at least, providing for compulsory education, the one having been introduced by Mr. Farr, of Lackawanna, and the other by Mr. Seybert, of the government as quite possible to Lancaster. One of these bills provides for the arrest of truant scholars having a superabundance of this world's and all others who for any simple goods, there is a little disposition to choice of preference do not attend breathe freer on the part of the Presi- school. Still when all are highly educated and living on their wits, who'll do the work that want it too, without the least regard the little truants now have to do? for the rest of mankind. Some prefer This is a long and broad question it, of course, through legal enactment, that the statesman, feeling his own weight of ignorance, ought to pause from this class the revenue will be and reflect upon before he has the jails fixed up for little truants who won't go to school.
