PRIMARY METHODS OF READING. XIII.

The Pollard Synthetic Method.

BY WILLIAM NOETLING.

This is not, as teachers of limited knowledge of educational history assume, a new method, but an old one in a somewhat new garb. It had a short lease of life about forty years ago, but in a much simpler form than that in which it now is presented as the Pollard Method. About five or six years ago Rebecca S. Pollard of Chicago revived the method, arranged it into more of a system than it originally constituted, loaded it down with rules, exceptions, songs, &c. &c., and published it as the Pollard Synthetic Method of Reading and Spelling.

Like that of most methods of so-called primary reading, the name is misleading; it is not a method of reading, but of pronouncing. It is synthetic, deductive, a method of ready-made rules which the children are to learn and learn to apply. In making the application, they begin at the end of a word, mark the letters (diacritically) according to the rules, and then pronounce the word.

The Manual contains one hundred and nineteen rules; but a number of these consist of two and three rules, making the actual number one hundred and fifty four; and if to this sum we add the twenty-nine exceptions, we have altogether one hundred and eighty-three.

The method is purely mechanical, and, owing to the numerous directions and instructions to teachers as to how it must be taught, it is difficult to present it in newspaper articles. I will however try to give as much of it as may be necessary to convey to the readers of this article an idea of what it is, and will do so largely in the author's own words as found in her Manual.

Motion Signs. "Say nothing to pupils about learning to read when you begin the instruction. Let your first talk be about signs. Beckon to a little girl and ask her what that means. Her reply will be, 'It means Come.'

"Illustrate by a simple movement of your right hand, that you wish a child to go away. Ask what is meant by a nod of the head. Ask if we can say No, without speaking. Signify by a motion that you wish the window raised.

"In this way lead the pupils to see that there are motion signs; signs used to convey our meaning without the aid of the voice."

Voice Signs. "Ask pupils to laugh. Ask the meaning of a laugh and write down the answer given. Susie, perhaps, will say that a laugh means something funny; Lucy, that it shows when we are happy; Ned, that it is a sign that we are pleased. Ask about crying, moaning, in the same way. Lead pupils to tell you that these are voice signs of pain or sorrow. You may also suggest here, that there are silent signs which express both pleasure and pain. We smile and we frown; we look pleased; we look sad.

"Ask what voice signs are made by dogs, cats, hens, roosters, pigs, ducks, geese, &c. Draw from pupils, in turn, the meaning of these sounds. Dogs growl and bark when they feel cross; hens cackle and roosters crow when they are glad; pigs squeal when they are hurt or hungry.

"Explain whisper signs by illustration. The cat purs when she is happy, but makes a different sound when she raises her back and tells the strange dog to go away. Who can make this whisper (f)?"

The names applied to the sounds of some of the letters are the following: "a, the lamb's cry; m, the humming sound, the sound that draws the lips together; f, Kitty's hiss; b, the first sound in Bess, the sound that presses the lips together; v, the way Bessie made Kitty's hiss, or the horse-fly's buzz; n, the first sound in nat, the sound that makes the tongue touch the ceiling (roof of mouth), a little further back than l; l, the ringing sound, the sound that sends the tip of the tongue to the ceiling (the roof of the mouth); r, Gyp's cross bark; h, the tired sound; d, the young pigeon's cry; j, the first sound heard in Jennie; s, the sound Grandma made driving out the pigs; w, Gyp's soft bark, or the wind among the trees; p, the steamboat puff; t, the watch tick sound; g (hard), the frog's croak; z, the bee's buzz; sh, baby sleeps sound; ch (in church), the children's sneeze sound, or the steam car's whistle; th (in think), the baby geese sound; th (in this), old geese sound; wh, the blow out light sound; k=q=c (hard), the fish-bone sound," Other sounds are: Short sounds of a e i o u y, "vowels of the Short Family"; long sounds of same vowels, "vowels of the Long Family"; the sound of a in what and o in not, "take care kitty"; o in son and u in up, "Soapbubble vowels"; oy and oi, "the oyster boys"; the obscure sounds of a e i o, "the hiccough vowels"; o in would and u in pull, "vowels who play foot ball with the 'Short twins'"; u in true, o in do, and ew in grew, "skating vowels who play with the 'Long twins'"; o in nor, e in term, i in fir, &c., "pony vowels"; i with an inverted breve over it, "the umbrella vowel."

The object of introducing these peculiar noises or sounds is said to be to add interest to the lessons.

The sounds of the letters are introduced by means of the following story, which consists of thirty seven chapters.

The Johnny Story. Part of Chapter 1. "Johnny Jones was six years old. He lived in Chicago with his papa, mamma, and his baby sister Bess.

"Although Bess was four years old, they often spoke of her as 'the baby.'

"The children's grandfather lived in the country, more than a hundred miles away.

"Johnny had been there once, but that was in the winter time, when he had to stay in the house.

"But now it was spring time, and it would be so lovely to roam about in the green fields and to see the fruit trees in bloom. This is what Johnny thought when his mamma asked him how he should like to go to the country with her and Bess

"'O, very much!' he answered. 'When shall we start?'

"To-morrow or next day.

"'What shall we see there? Tell me everything.'

"I think it may be better to wait and let you find out.

"'Well, then, tell me just one thing; something I shall like very much.'

"Then come into the nursery. I shall need the blackboard and chalk to show you.

"Johnny followed her, wondering what the blackboard and chalk could have to do with what he should see in the country.

"I think, said mamma, holding the chalk between her fingers, you will like the little lambs most.

"'What do lambs say, mamma?' (He had an odd way of asking what animals and birds said).

"I thought you would ask, my son. I think they say a, a, a (short sound), when they cry for their mammas. Look! there are the lambs, and a ladder which you may draw upon your slate, as soon as I teach you how to make this sound."
