

METHODS OF PRIMARY READING. XIII.

The Pollard Synthetic Method, Continued.

BY WILLIAM NOELTING.

"I must learn it, mamma, and teach the baby to say it with me. You know I taught her to mew like a cat."

"Well, Johnny, I think I can help you remember this. These drawings are called letters. I have made them eight times. Now as I draw the curve (breve) above each letter, I want you to open your lips and say a (short sound). See, I have placed them on the ladder (music ladder) I have drawn. You may think of them as little boys wearing turned-up caps and climbing up."

"Why do you make them that way?"

"Because I want you to sing them with me."

"But the ladder?"

"That shows that the voice must go up, and one step at a time. Here is a picture of what I call a breve cap. Observe that the rim is curved. I shall not draw the entire cap above the voice letter, but just this little curve, and whenever I place this curve above, it shows that this letter belongs to the family of Mr. A. Short. All his little children wear breve caps. When you see this (a short), just think of a little boy climbing up a ladder and making a noise like a young lamb every time he puts his foot upon one of these rounds."

"Does he stay up there, mamma, or turn and come down?"

"You must think of him as coming down in the same way; one step at a time."

"And say a (short) each time?"

"Certainly, my son. I only speak of a little boy climbing up and down to lead you to understand that your voice must go up and down, just as it does when we sing do, re, mi, up and down the scale. Now let us sing."

The sounds of the letters are learned by singing them up and down the musical scale (ladder).

Ladders. "Let the first busy work be the drawing of ladders with eight rounds. The teacher may count, as each round is drawn, in the presence of the pupils, 'one,' 'two,' 'three,' 'four,' 'five,' &c."

Show that these rounds must be placed at equal distances from each other. Call pupils to the board to draw ladders, after which ask them to reproduce these ladders upon their slates.

For the lesson following, print a upon each round of the ladder you have drawn. Show that the letter must be placed exactly on the round; not in the space between. Sound a short as you draw the first breve above (put on its breve cap) and afterwards ask pupils to sound as you place the breve above each vowel. (Require the marking of capital letters). After this letter has been presented upon the ladders (two of which will be needed for the small and the capital letters), sing up and down the new ladders and review those made upon the previous day."

"Pupils must be made to understand clearly that they are to sound as they mark."

Window and Letter Songs. "After presenting three letters (a, m, n) by means of the ladders, teach pupils to draw a window. They must first draw, without the drapery, a window sash with six panes. Draw first upon the blackboard, afterwards upon their slates."

"The teacher should draw the first window directly upon the ladders and let it remain there for review singing. Print upon these window-panes the three letters above mentioned, and sing to the air of 'Thumbkins,' found upon the 9th page of the songs:

"Letter two is a;
Letter two is A;
Three and four are m and M;
Five and six are n and N.
Chorus: Sound and sing, ye merry little ones:
a A; m M; n N.

"(Place the breve above the vowel, as this letter is printed on the board)."

"Also print letter songs and leave upon the board for daily singing; as to the air of 'Yankee Doodle,' sing placing the diacritical marks above each vowel:

a, m, a, m, a, m, a, m;
n, l, n, l, n, l;
v, w, v, w, v, w, v, w;
m, n, l, a, v, n.

"Do not fail to let the pointer touch each letter, as pupils sing. As soon as the consonant sounds and the sound of a short become perfectly familiar by means of the story, the illustrations and the singing, introduce families of words. Say: 'All words ending in at belong to the at family. We may think of these as of the children of Mr. At. Observe this plan throughout; do not speak of the grouping of words, but refer to their families. Show how easily resemblances can be traced by covering the consonants that begin such words as bat, eat, rat.'"

Making Scales. "Explain what is meant by the term 'Make Scales.' By this, pupils may understand that we desire them to repeat the family name eight times (up and down the c scale) for the purpose of making it familiar by singing."

Families of Words. "After these scales have been sung until each can be readily recognized by sight, show pupils how to blend consonant sounds with these family names. Take, first, the family of ap, because more familiar words can be found in this than in any other two."

"Ask for the cross dog's growl; as the pupils respond, print r in front of ap and ask pupils to sound, and afterward say quickly, rap. Let this be repeated until the word rap is recognized. Rap on the desk as an illustration of this word."

"If pupils have been drilled upon the sound of the 'fish bones,' tell them that we shall hereafter speak of these as k—No. 1, q—No. 2, and c (hard)—No. 3. Here ask for No. 3."

"As you print the e in front of ap, say: 'This letter does not stand for the fish bone sound yet. I must draw a line through it. You may think of this line as the fish bone that troubled Johnny. It will teach us to draw the line as we make this sound. Let us run the sound of this e right into the family name ap.' Repeat this until the ear catches the familiar word cap." * * *

"Introduce scales of family names composed of a short, in connection with tongue consonants: as ad an at ag
an ad ag at ag at an ad
at an ag

"Sing from left to right to the air of 'Greenville,' pronouncing with great distinctness:

ad an at ag
an ad ag at
ag at an ad
at an ag

"Be sure to give a its short sound. Build up words by prefixing consonants to these family names. Ask for the cross dog's growl and form rat, &c."

Conclusion next week.

The fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla, once fairly tried, becomes the favorite spring medicine, speaks volumes for its excellence and merit.

BROUGHT HOME A SAD STORY.

The Trials of Three Centralia Young Men "On The Road."

About three weeks ago Joseph McGuire, James Drummond, and Joseph Grady, three well known young men left their homes at Centralia for St. Louis Mo. Nothing further was heard of them until Tuesday when Grady arrived at Centralia again bringing sad news to the families of his two companions. McGuire, he said, had been killed on the railroad near Pittsburg some days ago, and was buried there. Drummond was taken seriously ill, and is now a patient in one of the Pittsburg hospitals with an attack of pneumonia. The distracted parents of young McGuire have gone to Pittsburg to recover the remains of their boy, and will bring them back to Centralia for interment if it can be done.—Ashland Advocate.

MILLVILLE'S WORSTED MILL.

The Worsted Mill is just now one of the busiest hives one would wish to see. There are now about seventy hands employed and about a ton of wool is used every day.

Farmers now may find a cash market at the highest market price for their wool. They should however study to get the kind of wool that will bring them the highest price—and aim to produce it. In comparing the different wools it will be noticed that our domestic product is the shortest and of the lowest grade. There seems to be no obstacles to our farmers raising sheep that will produce a higher grade of wool so at the same time they may get more in weight and receive a higher price. We believe that if the farmers would investigate the matter they would see what a vast difference there is in the different grades and aim for the highest. It is a case worthy of careful study. Worsteds manufacturers must have the long wool and when it is not produced here they must import it.—Tablet.

A wife cannot sue her husband for slander. This is the gist of a decision handed down by Judge Albright in the case of Georgia A. Mink vs. Benjamin Mink, which involved the constitutionality of the act of 1887, which forbade that a wife should sue her husband, except for divorce and desertion.

"Am I Married or Not?"

asked Mr. A., despondently, "I declare, my wife is so nervous and irritable that I don't stay in the house a moment longer than I can help. My home isn't what it used to be." "Mrs. A. is suffering from some functional derangement, I presume," said B. "Yes, she has been an invalid for years." "Exactly. Her experience is that of my wife, but she was cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Get this remedy for Mrs. A., and the happiness of your home will soon be restored." Mr. B was right. For prolapsus, painful periods, irregularities—in short, all "complaints" peculiar to the female sex—the "Favorite Prescription" is a sovereign specific.
