SPRING WORK ON THE FARM.

Some Effective Solutions for Insecticules and Tungleides.

Spraying is most effectual when it is done early in the season. The sooner the work begins the better. Sprayers are now made of many different designs, and solutions can be carried in barrels on wheels, or on the back, in a contrivance similar to a knapsack. Spraying is intended not only to prevent diseases of fruits and vegetables, and to protect the trees and plants in that respect, but is used also as a safeguard against insects. A fungicide is a solution used for destroying parasitic fungi, such as rot, mildew, blight, rust, etc. An insectcide is used for the destruction of insects. Of the well-known solutions that have been tested and found efficacious are those mentioned below:

Blue vitriol (sulphate of copper), is the principal substance used as a fungicide. Dissolve six pounds in four gallons of hot water and then dilute to sixteen gallons. Shake four pounds of lime in six gallons of water, in a separate vessel, and when cool strain it into the copper solution. Use wood-en vessels and apply the solution immediately after mixing. This is known as the "Bordeaux mixture." Another copper solution, known as "Eau Celeste," is made by dissolving two pounds of copper sulphate in four galions of water, adding three pints of ammonia, and then diluting to fifty gallons, applying as soon as made Ammoniacal copper solution" is made by using carbonate of copper, instead of the sulphate, and carbonate of ammonia. Dissolve three ounces of carbonate of copper in a gallon of water and a pound of carbonate of ammonia in the same quantity of water, sep-arately. Mix, and dilute to fifty gallons, applying when mixed.

For insects the kerosene emulsion is mostly used. Shave one pound of hard soap in half a gallon of boiling water and when the soap is dissolved remove the boiling water from the fire and add half a gallon of kerosene, churning briskly with the force pump of the sprayer for fifteen minutes until the mixture has the appearance of thick cream. Kerosene will not mix with water, but will form an emulsion with soap. Now add slowly, stirring well, from ten to fifteen gallons of water, according to the strength desired. It will keep any length of time, and destroys insects on trees and plants, as well as fleas, lice, etc., and does not injure plants like unadulterated kerosene, being also much cheap-er. A gill of spirits of turpentine will improve the emulsion if added at the time of adding the kerosene. An efficient sprayer should throw a fine, mistlike spray, and the spray should spread over a large surface, so as to enable one to do the work quickly and thoroughly.

An 86-Pound Potato, Eastern people know little of the size of potatoes that are grown in the West. The enclosed cut is a copy of a photograph showing Farmer J. B.

Swan, of Loveland, and his prize potato. The tuber was 28 inches long, and weighed 86 pounds. On one acre of land in Larimer county last year Mr. Swan produced 25,816 pounds or 430 bushels and 16 pounds of potatoes.

Keeping Horses Idle. A fault in handling farm horses, of which not a few of us are guilty, is to keep them idle much of the time. If work is properly managed horses can be used 234 days of the year. Ground can be plowed in the fall, fence material be hauled in place, wood be sledded up and gullies be filled in the winter. When work is so managed, less horses will suffice than when their work is put into 180 days of the year. I find that our horses work on an average of above 230 days of the year and have lasted an average of fifteen years, -Country Gentleman.

Weed the Herd. Sell the poor cows and buy no others unless you know all about them, Farmers lose more money by buying cows than from any other source. They cannot judge of the ca-pacity or disposition of the animal until it has been tested; and disease may be brought in a herd unknowingly. When the foundation of a herd rests upon breeding, and the farmer patiently waits until he has secured cows of his own breeding, the road to success will then be easier.

The Rule of Ten.

Ten hens in a house that is 10 feet square, with yards 10 times the size of the house, is a rule to go by. Ten hens with one male is the correct mating, and 10 eggs under a sitting hen Ten weeks winter are enough. are long enough to keep a broiler before it goes to market. A pair of ducks or fowls should weigh not over 10 pounds; 10 cents per pound is near the average price for fowls in market, and 10 cents should feed a hen one month what he wast to ! A WILD CHARGE.

The Lone Soldier Dashed Through a Reg Iment Unscathed.

Some of the most amusing stories are those which have a serious side. An old Confederate soldier the other day told a story that is very laugha-ble in these days of peace. It was after John Morgan was made a general that a company was formed of some of his old squadron who had just re-turned from Camp Chase, where for some time they had been imprisoned. The company had been formed by a man named Quirk, a reckless, daring fellow, and a stranger to fear. The company went by the name of Quirk's

At this time the company was down in Middle Tennessee, and was skir-mishing around for a fight, when they suddenly came upon a regiment of Federal cavalry. In a short time the two bodies of soldiers were standing face to face, and the bullets were fly-ing thick and fast through the air. The fight that followed was a desperate one, and each side seemed determined to stand its ground. Suddenly, as the fight was at its hottest, a horse was seen to dash out of the Confederate line, and start in a direct line for the Yankee regiment. On the horse's back was a man named English, who was leaning back in his saddle and pulling with all his might in a futile effort to stop his frightened horse. The animal was yellow in color, and in running took long and clumsy jumps. The rider finally saw that he could not stop the animal, and he made up his mind to make the best of his situation. He leaned forward in his saddle until his head almost touched his horse's neck and his hands clapsed the bridle near the bit. Even the rider's ears seemed pinned back, great was his effort to make himself as small as possible. His face was as pale as death. On went the animal toward the regiment turning neither to the right nor left, and closer did the rider keep to the animal's

The Yankees saw the horse with its rider making straight for them, and they were seized with consternation. Some of the soldiers ceased firing and looked excitedly at the maddened an-imal flying toward them. In a short while he reached the regiment, but did not stop. The federals almost fell upon each other in their effort to get away from the horse's heels, and a regular panic followed. The animal went plunging through the centre of the regiment, foaming at the mouth, and with head down. The horse and rider dashed on through the entire regiment, and the Yankees kept making way for them all down the entire line. Not a shot was fired until he had gotten out of range, and then nearly half the regiment, who had managed to recover themselves from their astonishment, fired at a cloud of dust rising in the air, but the horse and rider were at a safe distance.

The horse made a complete circle, returning to the confederate company in safety. When the rebels saw their comrade had returned without a scratch from such a dangerous ride, they almost forgot the fight before them, and there went up a great cheer. -Louisville Courier Journal.

The Rothseilds Fortune.

The fortune of the Rothschilds has often been mentioned in print, but the Paris Signal gives some new and interesting information about it. According to this authority, the total wealth of the Rothschild family at the present time amounts to 10,000,000,000 francs, of which the French branch possesses 1,000,000,000. In 1875 they had less than half this sum, showing that their fortune has doubled in 18 years. In 1800 the grandfather of the present generation of Rothschilds had nothing, his financial success begin-ning after the battle of Waterloo. It is estimated that in 1965 their fortune will, if continuing to grow as heretofore, amount to the stupendous sum of 300,000,000,000 francs. The interest on this capital would be sufficient to sustain 37,000,000 people, that is, the entire present population of France.
