BILL NYE'S" NEW YEAR MEDI-TATION.

The Thoughts Inspired in the Famous Humorist's Mind by the Advent of the New Year.

Of course the serious business on Year Day is to make good resoions, and no person who respects self or has due regard for the proeties will begin to smash them un-I the bright eyed young cherub whom picture as the New Year has been g enough in the world not to mind aring the crash of the fine china. me authorities on the etiquette of e day say that while the breaking ould not begin before sundown of ew Year Day, it may be inaugurated fter that time, as the cherub, being by young, and tired out with moving , may be presumed to have retired or the night. This however, is a oubtful point, upon which it is not afe to act.

Personally, I don't begin to toy with the good resolutions until late in the day. I work up to them by degrees. The first thing I do in the morning is to think over the good I have done. I find that I can finish this very nicely before breakfast by six minutes before James, my butler, brings in the first course of sun-kissed strawberries. I think I may say, without undue pride, that these strawberries are kissed through the hothouse windows at fifty cents a kiss.

After breakfast I attend to my regrets for things done which ought not to have been done, and things left un done which ought to have been done. This is the long undertaking of the day, and I should have to pull down the curtains upon the still night and the white mantle of virgin snow, and find myself an enthusiastic regretter, and soon tire of my work. I knock off with the comforting thought that we should only regret enough to chastise ourselves, anyhow, and then with a firm, rigid upper lip should proceed to do better. We should let our sorrows heal, if they will, instead of keeping them open, torn and bleeding, as cowardly soldiers sometimes do to avoid the coming battle. I always to me to be a sort of cleaning-day, when we can put our past out on the line, look it over, and pound it with a broom and knock out the dust of selfishness and unkindness .- From "New Thoughts for the New Year," in Demorest's Magazine for January.

A Journalist's Dream.

In answer to the question. "What would you do if you had $250,000,oco?" asked by a Chicago paper, Moses P. Handy wrote :

After making myself and family thoroughly comfortable in residence at Washington, which is going to be the most beautiful city in the world, I would establish a daily newspaper to appear simultaneously in Chicago and New York, the editions differing only in local news and local comment. Every editorial chair would be endowed as professorships in universities and colleges are now endowed, and the editorial and business departments would be entirely independent of each other. I would also establish a national home for retired and superannuated newspaper men, admission to which would not be a matter of charity, but of right, and I would make sure of my own right of admission to that institution when my for tune was spent in the endeavor to make my newspaper self supporting.

Attempt at Swindling.

Frank Campbell, of Elysburg, who will be remembered attempted to windle the First National Bank out of $2,000 last February, tried to work little game on shoe merchant Bolich n Tuesday whereby the rogue would secure $2.50. He stopped in front of the store and picked a pair of boots and carried them into the store, remarking as he did so that they didn't Mr. Camp walked to the money wer and gave Campbell $2.50, the price of the boots. When Campbell valked out Mr. Camp accompanied im to the door and noticed that the soots were missing from the table in nt of the store. He managed to the money from Campbell after ich he called Mr. Bolich. The entleman at once made an investigan and things became very warm for Campbell and he "dusted."-Mt. Carmel News.

Scranton. Rev. Dr. Robinson for some time past has been denouncing the police of the city, and last Saturday evening delivered a sermon in getting up at my usual time, which is which he intimated that there was much rottenness in the city government, and denounced the state of affairs in existence there that permitted brothels to remain open at midnight, with police officers on corners to inform young men what dens of iniquity were safe.
