A little saltpetre added to the water in which cut flowers are put will keep the flowers fresh a long time.

Prick a nutmeg with a pin, and, if it is fresh and good, oil will instantly spread around the puncture. Silver spoons that have become discolored by eggs may be cleaned readily by rubbing with a soft cloth and a little dry sait. To remove tar from any kind of cloth, turpentine, and every trace of the tar may be removed.

If brooms are dipped in a pail of ho suds for a minute or two once a week it will make them tough and pliable, and they last much longer.

Fresh meat should not be allowed to remain rolled in paper, for the paper will absorb the juices. Remove the paper and lay the meat on an earthen plate.

To extract the juice from an onton, cut the colon in half and press it against and move it slowly over a grater. The juice will run off the point of the gra-

An essential article that should b found in every kitchen is a vegetable brush. Lettuce, spinach, celery, and many other vegetables may be cleaned much more readily with one than with the bands.

A piece of horseradish root put into a jar of pickles will keep the vinegar om losing its strength, and the pickles will not be as liable to become soft or mouldy. This is especially good for

Silks or ribbons that are to be packed away should be rolled in brown paper, as the chloride of lime in white paper will discolor them. White satin should be folded in blue paper and a brown paper put outside and pinned closely together at the edges. A simple disinfectant to use in a sick room is made by putting some ground coffee in a saucer and in the ntre a small piece of camphor gum. Light the gum with a match. As the gum burns allow the coffee to burn with it. The perfume is refreshing and healthful as well as inexpensive.

A shelf over the door in a diningroom is an excellent place for large and highly colored pieces of china, which may thus be made very ornamental to the room. Many of the new houses are finished with a narrow shelf around the dining-room walls at the height of the door; it is intended for plaques.

A hanging bookshelf may be rendered more ornamental if made with the lower shelf extending on either side so as to form a bracket for a vase or plece of bric-a-brac. It is also easy to construct one with a small supboard enclosing the two lower shelves, or with portions of two shelves irregularly railed off to hold curios.

Paims, rubber plants, and foliage plants used in the house should have a weekly washday. Using a soft cloth or sponge, each leaf should receive a light washing with lukewarm water, and the soil should be loosened about the roots. Plants breathe through their leaces, and cannot grow well unless they are kept free from dust.

FASHION NOTES.

A way to utilize one's collection of bangles, now no longer insisted on by fashion to be worn on the wrist, is to use them a umbrella handles. Three or four welded together at intervals are easily and inexpensively mounted in this way.

Here is an idea for a teagown, a triffe lovely, for that. It is of white satin, having a Watteau plait and a long fastened with diamond buttons. Long, flowing ends of white chiffon fall from the lowcut throat to the very edge of

Much of this 's the fault ofindiscriminate shop-One thing chosen without reference to the other, with conglomeration as the result. It's a wonderfully good plan when buying gloves to carry a bit of the gown with which they are to be worn in one's purse. Try the effect of it with the gloves, and lots of trouble will be saved.

"Should women weep?" is a topic of discussion by the readers of Woman, a London publication. One contributor put in a most emphatic "No!" The crying woman, it is maintained, is out of date-she belongs to the '40s and '50s, not to this end of the century. Woman was then a submissive slave and man the righteous ruler. Now all is changed. The new woman is here, and she rules; therefore, she should not

In this unlimited opportunity for variety in effect. A few yards of chiffon and ribbon transform a gown which has done duty through one season into a fresh, pretty tollet suitable for any dressy occasion, and when a renovated gown a success it is often a greater delight to the wearer than when it was new.

Gay and pretty corsages made of mash ribbon are worn by fashionable young ladies to brighten up dark or black satin skirts. This corsage, worn in lieu of the waist proper, is made in the shape of a tight-fitting round walst with neck opening in pom-padour shape and made of the sashes, hich are gathered full on the shoulder and gauged into narrow compass at the waist. The opening is filled in with gathered net or chiffon. did and for a vast multitude of guests besides. They had the most splendid pillars 60 feet high. It was hung and the gold and precious stones orna mented it would have made your eyes blink.

Adjoining this building were too gorgeous chambers for the hundred bridegrooms, while for the remaining 10,000 an outer court was enclosed and hung with costly tapestry, and tables were spread outside for the multitude. A separate seat was assigned each pair, and all were arranged in a semi-circle on either hand of the royal throne. Each bridegroom had received a golden vessel for his libation, and when the last of these had been announced by trumpets to the multitudes without, the brides entered the banquet hall and took their places.

And now don't you think each bridegroom stood up separately and vowed, "With this ring I now thee wed," and so on. No, the ceremony was very simple; the king gave his hand to Statira and kissed her as his wife, and the other bridegrooms folowed his example.

Eye Sight Restored.

Hood's Pills cure sick headache. Railroaders Have Their Markers.

All railroad men who are properly acquainted with their division on which they they run have their "markers," and many of these old markers are fast disappearing to make room for improvements of all kinds. Engineers have their markers at different points for "shutting off" when desiring to make a regular stop. The marker elaborate, perhaps, but none the less stone. Brakemen take advantage of these markers also in their line of business, and they are an indispensible train in the back. The neck is cut business, and they are an indispensible square in both front and back, and it is article to the success of the engineer and flagman at night and in heavy fogs. By the old land or road marks railroad men know just where they are under all circumstances. A man can be fixed up in a fog on the railroad just the same as a man at sea or anywhere else. Some may think these queer statements, nevertheless they are true.

Miners as Mail Carriers.

A free delivery system is in vogue in the mining districts of the Rocky mountains, though the portal authorities have nothing to do with it. From every mountair, post office trails diverge up every draw and gulch. A miner setting out for his cabin, perched somewhere far up on a mountain, will take with him all the mail belonging to his neighbors, though they may live miles from his place.

At each turning point a small box will be found nailed securely to the modern industry is "point lace, into the trunk of a stout old pine tree, and upon this box is scrawled the names of all the miners who must pass that tree in going to their respective cabins. Into this box the last may from town deposits all the mail belonging to miners living up that particular gulch. From that gulch a miner will occasionally descend for mail, and as he returns to his trail he deposits in turn the placed at convenient points. In this way one man can save many a weary step to the other miners who live out the long winters in the very heart of the Rocky mountains. Small errands are done in a similar manner.

Money, tobacco and other notions in light weight is always properly respected and the mission fulfilled, no matter how much the snowshoe pedestrian may be under the influence of good fellowship as he returns from town after an hour with jolly com-
