WASHINGTON, Nov. 2cth, 1896. Has President Cleveland made a deal with President-elect McKinley? | be extended to them. Strange as this question may appear current rumors make it pertinent. One of those rumors has it that a list of Federal employes in a number of they are all to be dismissed and gold allowed to retain their places under Bridgewater, Pa. the McKinley administration. Ex-Congressman Forman, of Ill., who took an active part in the campaign as a gold democrat, and who has just been appointed Commissioner of Internal Revenue to succeed Mr. Miller who resigned to enter private business, is said to have received assurances that he would be allowed to keep the office under the McKinley administration. In fact, it is said that he would not otherwise have accepted the office. These rumors cannot be authenticated, and it would be difficult to believe such things possible had it not been for the political happenings of the last year. Just

of the past twelve months one year

The larger the number of Republican Senators and Representatives in Washington grows the more probable it becomes that no real effort is going to be made by them to pass the Dingley tariff bill in the Senate. While there are a few conservatives among them who favor passing the Dingley bill or some other bill slightly amending the present tariff law at this session of Congress and sparing the country the worry of an extra session, the great majority of them are determined to have an extra session and to pass a high tariff bill in the House and to try to pass it in the Senate, and will probably have their Senator Mills, of Texas, is among the early Congressional arrivals. He says he doesn't care to guess what will be done at the coming session of Congress, but his talk indicates that he doesn't expect any tariff legislation. commended to the gentlemen who are inclined to follow the advice of Senator Peffer and favor the organization of a new party to combine all the elements opposed to McKinleyism and the gold standard. Said Mr. Mills: "The democratic party will live as long as the government lives.

No amount of whipping can kill it."

Some of the friends of the McKinley administration are not talking as wisely as they might about the posstariff bill which is to be put through the House and attempted to be put through the Senate at the extra session of Congress expected to be called as soon as McKinley is inaugurated. For instance, Representative Grout, of Vt., after expressing the belief that the constituents of these Senators would compel them to support a protection tariff bill, goes a step further and makes the threat that if they do not vote for it they will be ignored in the distribution of Federal patronage in their States during the entire term of McKinley. While this threat would almost surely be carried out, it is certainly impolitic, not to call it absolutely foolish, to publicly make it before the Senators have indicated their intentions. Highspirited men are seldom controlled by threats, and if the fool-friends of protection are not careful they will drive away votes they might have got had no threats been made.

Senator-elect Pettus, who will on the 4th of next March succeed Senator Pugh, of Ala., was a law partner of Senator Morgan about thirty years ago and might have been in the Senate twenty years ago had he not declined the nomination. When he takes his seat Alabama will have what no other State has or has ever had-two Senators who are residents of the same town. Gen. > Hood's Pills cure all liver ills. Susquehanna Navigation-

Among the estimates for river and harbor improvements presented to the secretary of war by the chief of engineers we note an item of twenty thousand dollars for the Susquenanna river. If the chief of engineers seriously contemplates transforming the rocky Susquehanna into a highway of commerce he should begin with twenty million instead of twenty thousand dollars, and should study the ancient history of slack water and canal navigation as recorded in the newspapers of the port of Lancaster some forty years ago.

It is hard for our citizens of to-day to realize that there was once a port of Lancaster with at least one iron steamboat making regular trips from Reigart's Landing on the Conestoga to Philadelphia and return. The short cut across country by rail killed that round about transport service, and floods and freshets ruined costly locks, so that we have long ceased to think of the Susquehanna as a possible highway of commerce, but a full explanation from the chief of engineers would be interesting. The expenditure of twenty thousand dollars to improve the navigation of that river appears at first glance about as sensible as the squandering of a like sum to tap the bottomless pit. The Susquehanna in dry seasons is just a river of rocks with a little water down in the cracks, and in the spring freshets it is a howling torrent of icebergs and trees. The chief of engineers may know what he is about, and in these days of engineering marvels almost He had a few words to say that are anything is possible, but it is suggested that Congress had better call for plans and specifications before voting even a little twenty thousand dollars for the navigation of the Susquehanna. -Lancaster Intelligencer.

The Lancaster paper is right in estimating that $20,000 would be but as a drop in a bucket in comparison with the enormous amount it would require to make the Susquehanna navigable. But it is wrong in its conclusion as to what the appropriation ible relations of the silver republican is asked for. ## A Bomb Among Liquor Sellers.

President Judge Schuyler and his associate Judge Scott, of Easton, threw consternation into the ranks of liquor dealers recently by announcing that all petitions for license in 1896 will be treated as new applications, and every petitioner must make out his case with the same precision as if presented for the first time. Heretofore applications for a renewal of Senator Vest, of Mo., isn't one of license were granted at once except where remonstrances were filed.

The rich never carry much money. There are millionaires who never carry more than one dollar to five dollars habitually. Mrs, Lease is apparently proud of her voice. She used it as spectacularly as she could, ringing in one's ears when any occasion gave the vaguest excuse. But it is an admirable voice for pub-

The matter of her speech was not as notable as the manner of it. She seemed to enjoy the mouth-filling platitudes of the graduating day, when all virtue is godlike and all vice the possession of men. But once in a while she abandoned the valedictory phrases, and then she apparently deeply impressed her henrers,

Among other things she said were these which aroused the most notable instances of enthusiasm:

A Light in the Window.

A light shines all night from an upper window of John Y. McKane's big house on Voorhees avenue, Sheepshead Bay. Every evening his wife places it there-"so that John may see the way when he comes home," she says. "He went away in the morning, but I always think that he will come back after sunset, and I want him to know that we are waiting for him."

When the King of Gravesend was sent to prison two years ago for violations of the election laws his wife bore the blow better than her friends pardon. She thought at first Governor Flower would act immediately, and then knew pardon was impossible until the strength of public sentiment against her husband had abated. As months went by and no friends arose, her hope did not die, but the daily disappointment wore on her health until now her physician says she has not long to live.

Her separation from her husband has been her lightest burden, his disgrace her keenest affliction. He has suffered only in pride and has grown fat in prison. The ignominy he scarcely feels has crushed the woman's heart and broken it. She lights the lamp at evening and looks down the walk to the gate, which is never opened by the hand she longs to see upon the latch. Neighbors have come to know the meaning of the lamp, but few dare to touch the sore spot by mention of her sorrow. To such as do she talks of her husband as a martyr and gilds him with her wifely tributes to his generosity and his tenderness until those who hear doubt the honesty of courts and feel that he is under an unjust sentence.—New York Journal.

Hunted for a Better Job.

Mr. Kellond, the district passenger agent of the Illinois Central, tells a good story on himself and a colored boy whom he employed when his headquarters were at New Orleans.

Mr. Kellond had hired Sam, a young black boy, to run errands at a salary of $3 a week. But Sam's clothes were so dilapidated that he was an eyesore, so the railroad man bought him a suit of clothes, the condition being that only fifty cents were to be deducted from Sam's wages every week until the suit was paid for.

The purchase was made on Saturday and on Monday Sam did not show up at the office. Mr. Kellond went down to his home to investigate. He found Sam's mother washing and asked her where her son was,

"Hi-hi, ky-hi. I 'clare he done look so scrumptions in 'speciable close I dun tol' him ter see f'e couldn't fin' a bettah job. Hi-hi-e-e!"--Louisville Commercial.

The Lights of New York. New York is one of the best lighted cities in the world. Thirty thousand lamps, gas, electric and naptha, flame out in its streets and boulevards every night at dusk. There are 3,300 electric lamps used for street lighting. It costs the city more than $1,000,000 a year to light the streets.

Respect the Stomach.

Few people do have proper respect for the stomach. If a thing "tastes good" and is not so hot or so cold as to be painful to the mouth or throat, it is swallowed by too many people regardles of consequences.

Do not give the stomach food that will irritate it or retard it in the performance of its natural functions, or it will retaliate in a way that is decidedly unpleasant. A headache, a "lump" or "heavy feeling" in the stomach, and irritations of the skin, are mostly symptoms of disordered digestion resulting from unwholesome

Alum baking powders are responsible fon the larger part of this un-wholesome food, for it is a fact well recognized by physicians that alum renders food indigestible and unwhole-

The danger to health from this cause is so imminent that it behooves everyone to adopt precautionary measures to keep alum baking powders, which are now so numerous, from the kitchen stores. It will be found that those powders sold at a lower price than Royal are almost invariably made from alum, and therefore of inferior quality and dangerous to health.

The safer way is to look for the well-known red and yellow label of the Royal Baking Powder. That is certain to cover a powder free from alum. The Royal is made of cream of tartar, a pure, wholesome fruit acid derived from grapes. It is renowned for adding anti dyspeptic qualities to the food, thought she might.
