DYED THE GOOSE PURPLE.

The Bird is a Terror to Tramps and Playmate of Children.

Lawyer William D. Brinnier of Rondout, N. Y., has a curiosity in the shape of a goose that he thinks is as sagacious as a human being. The bird is purple in color.

The goose was secured by Lawyer Brinnier as a pet for his children, and during the absence of the family from home one of the youngsters secured a box of dye and transformed the bird's appearance. The bird showed a marked partiality to the child who had dyed it, and now follows him about wherever he goes. The children have taught the goose to play tag with them, and the bird seems to enjoy it. At night no stranger can enter the yard, the goose acting as a watchdog.

The other day the child who dyed the goose was playing in the yard, when a large turkey gobbler enraged by the sight of a flaming red scarf the child wore, rushed at him, cager for battle. The frightened youngster essayed to climb a fence, but the gobbler was too quick for him, seizing him by the arm and throwing him to the ground.

Suddenly with a mighty hiss the purple goose appeared on the scene, and a battle royal took place, the goose finally conquering the gobbler by seizing its neck in its bill and choking it to death.-New York Journal.
