WASHINGTON, July 30, 1897. It would be difficult to find a more disappointed and disgruntled gang than those republicans who hoped for some sort of appointment up to the hour of Mr. McKinley's departure on an extended vacation. They had expected that a large number of appointments would be made as soon as failed to be acted upon by the Senate. He added to their disgruntlement by amending the civil service rules so that no office holder in the classified service can be removed except for cause and upon written charges, and then only after failure to make a satisfactory defense. He pleased some of the republican Congressmen by excepting from the civil service rules some of the confidential employes in each of the internal revenue and customs districts, but offended others by extending those rules to the smaller Custom Houses that were left out by

He says he was virtually compelled to change his endorsement, and gives the following as the conversation that took place at the White House between himself and Mr. Mc-Kinley: Mr. McK .- "I wish you would endorse my nephew for the place, Mr. Prince. Mr. P .-"But, Mr. President, I have already endorsed Eastman (the editor), and if I go back on him now I will be held responsible politically." Mr. McK. - "Well, say to them that you endorsed him at my request." Mr. Prince says there was nothing else for him to do after that but to endorse Mr. McKinley's nephew, but he may find that the editor thinks differently, and if he cannot satisfy him in some way he may also find that he has to pay a big price for having obliged the President.

A study of Czar Reed's committees of the House, announced just before adjournment, shows that Pennsylvania and New York, with nine chairmanships each, got one-third of the fiftyfour chairmen of House committees. while twenty-three states got no chairmen at all. The Eastern States got twenty-eight chairmanships. When it is remembered that the legislation of the House is practically in the hands of the chairmen of committees this division is significant of the controlling

If proof were needed that Mr. Mc-Kinley was virtually compelled by Campaign promises to send that currency commission special message to Congress it is easily furnished by the positive statement of prominent republican Senators that no attempt will be made to push the currency commission bill, which was jammed through the House, to a vote in the Senate. It has further become known that Speaker Reed would not have allowed the bill to get through the House had he not been certain that it was to be allowed to die in the Senate. When Mr. McKinley has paid all his campaign debts he may possibly do something because he believes in it, but it seems that there are still a lot of those debts unpaid.

Where People Live Long.

As the doctors figure up the year's vital statistics, how about the statement that comes from Phoenixville, Penn? Within twelve miles of that town there are thirty persons whose ages average pinety-five years, and fifty whose ages average eighty-five years. There are several centenarians in the group. The little village of Birch Runville contains 100 people, the ages of seven of whom average ninety-five years.

This item of news, good as far as it goes, is incomplete, for the public will want to know how the thing is done. Scientific research will find a fruitful field here in connection with solving the problem of longevity. Once on earth we figure how to remain there. Let us have the life stories of these Schuylkill valley patriarchs. Do they use tobacco, intoxicants, turn night into day, take a whirl in ward politics, or indulge in anything else common to the average life? Life is an accident, and death is the result. Swarming Box For Bees.

A contributor to The American Agriculturist says that every beekeeper ought to have a swarming box, and gives these reasons why: It is not only convenient in hiving bees, but it saves cutting and mutilating fruit trees and other shrubbery upon which bees are liable to cluster. Make of some light material 10 or 12 inches square or longer one way than the other and close one end. Put a hole through the center and attach a handle some 10 feet long. With an inch bit fill with holes, so as to give the bees ventilation. This is important gether, and with the use of such conveniences they may be kept separate.

The Wearing of Hats.

In the thirteenth century the use of the scarlet hat, which distinguished cardinals, was sanctioned by Pope Innocent IV. Throughout mediæval times the wearing of a hat was regarded as a mark of rank and distinction.
