WASHINGTON, Dec., 3, 1897. It is the business of Congress to legislate for the interests of the whole will consume a large amount of materpeople, or only to do what Mr. Mc-kinley thinks will be beneficial to for their use. When the pork barrel him and to the republican party? is full the farmer is at least fortified Such a question would seem to admit for the winter with meat, and in many of but one answer. Because the Dingley tariff law has failed to provide the money needed to properly carry on the government, and because he does not dare to tell Congress so and ask for additional tariff legislation to furnish more revenue, Mr. McKinley Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, wants to deprive the people who pay the heavy taxes called for by the Dingley tariff of privileges to which is not a quack medicine. It was prethey are clearly entitled. The private claim against the government, no matter how just it is nor how much gredients is what produces such wonbe suffering, will be allowed to pass, and no river and harbor appropriation will be passed. Czar Reed may bite Toledo, O. off more than he can chew, if he attempts to carry out these ideas. Neither he nor Mr. McKinley will be as strong at this session as they were at the extra session; their favors have mostly been distributed. It is well known that failure to get through a public building bill for his district has cost many Representatives their seats, and next year the Representatives will all be passed on by their constituents. There has been much talk which came to nothing about a revolt against Reed by the House, and a successful one, too.

A scrapping match between two reac prominent W. Va. republicans, Mr. ing. F. A. Scott, who is a member of the Republican National Committee, and January, and Judge Nathan Goff, has just declined a Cabinet portfolio, is indicated by the announced aspirations of both of them-a desire to succeed Senator Faulkner, whose term will expire March 3, 1899. W. Va. democrats laugh at the expectations of Messrs. Goff and Scott, and say that they have no doubt of a democratic majority in the next legislature. Meanwhile Goff and Scott are preparing to fight each other. Mr. McKinley tried to nip this one give relief inside of 30 minutes.—45. in the bud by asking Goff to become Attorney General when Mr. McKenna is nominated for the Supreme Court, but that gentleman declined and said that nothing but a seat in the Senate is at present posing as a friend of lines that in bad weather a large numboth Scott and Goff, but it is believed ber of bottles of wine and other liquors The

Dr. Elson gave a very interesting alk on history. Jackson was the first United States President who came from the depths of the people, his predecessors all having been members of the upper class of society.

The three important events of Jackson's administration were first; the introduction of the spoils system; second, the dis-establishment of the national banks; third, the effective check given to the attempt at nullifica-

After Dr. Elson had finished, the institute enjoyed a violin solo by Miss Marion Harter.

Prof. J. George Becht, Supt. of Lycoming County, made a short address on Mental Indigestion. There is a condition of the child wherein he has been thoroughly saturated and crammed with facts of knowledge, this condition can be called mental indigestion

Prof. William Noetling-The Klndergarten-I am pleased to see so many teachers, parents and ministers of the gospel. The Lord has endowed us with common sense and we should exercise it so as to prevent physical and mental indigestion.

"What the School Should do for the Children," was handled in an able manner by Dr. Twitmyer. We should have an exalted idea of our work. We should teach our boys and girls how to live physically, mentally and morally.

. The Committee appointed by Superntendent Miller to select some classics for the study of teachers reported that they had hardly had time to make the selections, but they would submit the following notwithstanding:

Sketch book by Washington Irving. Lowell's "The vision of Sir Tamfal."

Lamb's Tales from Shakespeare. Cotler's Saturday Night by Burns.

Deserted Village by Goldsmith. 6. Hamlet by Shakespeare.

Those who have Shakespeares plays as many of you have no doubt, can purchase Lambs Tales from Shakespeare. We as a committee presume these classics could be purchased of a great many companies. But the Rep. of Maynard classics is here and we notes cannot be purchased any where any cheaper than from him. All of except Hamlet which is 25 cents.

He put the terrier inside to battle with them, but the dog was soon overpowered by the half-starved

> Armed with two clubs, Croak entered the cage himself, forgetting to set the spring lock on the outside of the door. The door closed and he was a prisoner among the rodents. The rats swarmed over him and bit him wherever his body was exposed. He closed his eyes and fought right and left, but the awful odor in the cage overcame him and he fell unconscious.

A doctor who examined Croad says that unless blood poisoning follows he will recover. His head is so swollen that the physician is unable to say whether his eyesight has been destroyed or not.

There were 20 dead rats on the cage floor. The men who rescued Croak declare there must have been 200 in the pack.
