A GOOD GREEK.

Death of George Averoff, Who Gave way Millions.

ALEXANDRIA, Aug. 4 .- M. George Averoff, the wealthy Greek whose gift of 1,000,000 frances for the restoration of the Stadium at Athens led to the revival of the Olympic games a few years ago, has just died here in his seventieth

The late M. Averoff, who was born in Metzovo, Epirus, was a man of almost innumerable charities. When a lad of 17, he became a clerk in his uncle's firm in Moscow and upon the death of his relative inherited $500,000. This fortune he increased enormously as a contractor for the supplies needed for the Russian troops in the Crimean war and later as a banker in Alexandria. He never married, and it has been understood that his desire was to make the Greek navy his legal heir.

At the outset of the Greco-Turkish war he won the special gratitude of the Greeks by presenting 40,000 uniforms to the Hellenic troops. In the erection of public buildings in Greece and the main-tenance of public charities and other philanthropic interests he is said to have expended no less than $7,500,000. It was his generosity which made it possi-ble for the Olympic games to be so snecessfully revived in Athens in 1896. The games were played in the Stadium, which he robuilt. The lower part was con-structed of marble, but owing to lack of time the upper part was finished in wood and painted white. Subsequently the wooden superstructure was removed and replaced by marble at M. Aver-off's expense. On April 5, 1896, the day before the opening of the games, the Duke of Sparta unveiled a statue of the philanthropist, crected by the grateful citizens of Athens. The restoration of the Stadium cost upward of 3,000,000 francs

In Alexandria M. Averoff built a church, a boys' school and a girls' school called the Parthenagogeion. The teach ers in both schools were paid by him. In Athens he endowed and built a boys' reformatory, a military school and a polytechnic college which cost more than $300,000. He was unaffected and unostentatious.

FLORIDA TOWN WIPED OUT.

The Recent Storm Was Worse Than at First Reported.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Aug. 4 .- The first train from Carrabelle, through the storm stricken gulf section, since Monday reached here yesterday afternoon. The crew and passengers agree that the reports of the destruction wrought by the storm have been extremely moderate. Carrabelle is literally wiped from the map. Her docks and wharfs, containing about 400,000 feet of lumber and 5,000 libarrels of rosin, were quickly swept away. Thirteen of the 14 large lumber vessels in the bay were blown ashore and are now lying well up on dry land. These vessels contained several million feet of Their names cannot be ascertimber. tained. Only two or three huts are left standing in Carrabelle, and one colored woman is reported to be killed by the falling of a house. Citizens of Carrabelle are flocking in every direction for relief. The town is isolated, and the wires are all down.

The towns of McIntyre and Curtis Mill are completely demolished, and large in-terests have been destroyed.

AGE OF MAN IN AMERICA.

A Subject That flas Been Soberly Discussed and Intemperately Ridlenled.

The claim of satisfactory evidence of the extreme antiquity of man in the valley of the Delaware river has been suborly discussed and intemperately ridiculed until the public, both scientific and general, have become tired of hearing the subject mentioned; but this is no valid reason why the truth should not be ascertained, says the Popular Science Monthly. If a man in a paleolithic stage of culture did exist on the Atlantic seaboard of North America, then we have a basis upon which to build-a tangible starting point from which to date a history of human activities on this continent. As it is, we have but an immense array of facts, largely underrated, and the greater portion sadly distorted and misleading because of the reckless theories set forth with them by their discoverers, and undoubtedly there never has been, in the whole range of scientific agitation of a simple question, so great a volume of reckless assertion, illogical deduction and disregard of exact statement. The main question was often wholly lost sight of and the author's sole purpose that of demonstrating some one else in error. Predetermination on the part of many has been fatal to the value of their field work. Convinced on theoretical grounds, such are necessarily blinded when on the spot where positive evidence occurs. He who does not desire the object searched for seldom finds it; and later in the day pride declines to accede to the just demands of candor-the admission of having reached a wrong conclusion.

DECEIT IN A PUNCH BOWL.

The Clever Resourcefulness of a Bachelor Girl Who Gave a House "Cooling."

The bachelor girl had a house cooling the other night. The house warming is so effete that she disdains it. and instead gives frequent and merry house coolings. The house cooling takes place whenever she moves, says the Chicago Times-Herald, and as she moves whenever she gets tired of the wall decorations her parties are one of the standbys of the senson.

The last one before her summer flight took place the other evening. It did not differ from the ordinary except that a huge punch bowl, surrounded by a Bacchanalian wreath of grapevines, completed the artistic beauty of the dining table. Whether the claret cup was better than usual or whether it only seemed so, who can tell? At any rate, the house cooling was a success." so much so that the next flat neighbor stayed after the last guest had fluttered away, and when the next flat neighbor stopped to discuss matters it was a sure sign that the evening was a red letter one.

"Tell me," said the hostess, after the portiere had gathered its Bagdad folds together, "was it all right? Could you detect it?"

The next flat neighbor demanded further explanations.

"Why, the punchbowl," whispered the bachelor girl. "If the lynx eyes of my dearest friend did not discover it I could trust my enemy. The punchbowl, with its Bacchanalian wreath of grapevines, is only an old washbowl which I borrowed for the occasion.

A Strangely Fateful Desk in a Kansus School That Bas Been Abandoned.

There is a desk in the Stanley school In Argentine that is no longer occupied, because it is marked by ill fate, says the Kansas City Star. The last three pupils it accommodated met vialent deaths within a year and now it is used as a stand for plants and flowers that serve the double purpose of cherishing the memory of the unfortunate children and excluding others from the ill-starred seat.

Miss Selby, teacher of the room in which the desk stands, is not superstitious, but she will scarcely be blamed for her reluctance to assign any more of her scholars to occupy that particular piece of furniture. One year ago a bright little girl who sat in it was thrown from a horse and sustained injuries from which she died. Three months later Lee Jewett, a boy in the same class, who next used the desk, was drowned while bathing in the Kaw river, near Turner. Three men met their death while trying to recover young Jewett's body and the tragedy will long be remembered in Argentine. The last scholar to use the desk was Bert Jessup, aged 12, who, a week ago Saturday, went husting frogs with another boy and a 22-caliber target rifle. The gun was accidentally discharged and Bert sustained a wound from which he died early the next morning. The sad reflections inspired in the minds of teacher and pupils by the record of the year in that schoolroom have naturally developed a prejudice against the desk of fate that, in the case of the pupils at least, borders very closely on superstition.

McClure's Magazine for August-

McClure's Magazine for August, with its special cover designed by Will H. Low, its profusion of beautiful pictures, its half dozen in Orange town excellent stories, and its other interesting contributions, is a number to allure one out of any degree of midsummer indifference. It has an illustrated article on "The Cape to Cairo Railway," by W. T. Stead, whose acquaintance with Cacil Rhodes and other promoters of the enterprise has yielded him much new and valuable information regarding it. Miss Tarbell contributes a new ac count of Lincoln's assassination and death, embracing interesting unpublished reminis-cences from n.en who were with Lincoln at clifferent moments during the last twelve hours of his life; the article is illustrated with the last life portrait of Lincoln and other pictures. But the number is especially a "Midsummer Fiction Number;" and its more particular excellence lies in its short stories. These are of the most varied character, comprising a dramatic story of the courts; a humorous story of Irish life; a thrilling true story of the United States Secret Service; a pathetic and tender story; a kindly, human story of the circus clown of early days; and a breezy, amusing racing story. All of the stories are well il-lustrated; and of not one of them is the reader likely to say, "I tried that and could not make it go." They one and all have ready interest; and at the same time, they have substance and significance. The S S MCCLURE Co , 141-145 East 25th Street, New York.

A Monument to General Stark.

PERU, Vt., Aug. 8.-The erection of a monument to commemorate General Stark's heroic march with 1,000 men through the wilderness to meet the invasion of the British at Bennington was begun here yesterday with the laying of the cornerstone amid exercises of especial interest and a large gathering of country folk. Reuben Bigelow Burton, Jr., of New York Inid the cornerstone. The site, which is made memorable by the encampment of General Stark upon it, lies a short distance north of this village. It is only a small clearing on rising ground. Around it on all sides is the same wilderness of forest nearly as unbroken as on the day when General Stark made his march through it.

Gold From the Klondike.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.-Reports received by the director of the mint show that so far this senson the amount of gold received at Seattle from the Alaska goldfields aggregates about $4,000,000, of which $4,018,262 arrived during July. The amount so far received at San Francisco is approximately $2,700,000. These amounts, however, do not represent the entire output of the fields, as large quantities are supposed to have been held for later shipment, and considerable amounts are believed to have been brought into the United States by other routes than San Francisco and Scattle.

Bridge Material For India.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 8.-The Penn-sylvania Steel company has shipped about 4,000 tons of material to be in constructing the great bridge at Gakleik, India. Sixty-three carloads of steel have thus far been forwarded, and 18 more will go this week, with the remainder of the structural material. The com-pany is three months ahead of its con-tract.

Baker Not Guilty.

BARBOURSVILLE, Ky., Aug. S.-The jury in the case against James Baker, charged with the murder of Wilson Howard, returned a verdict of not guilty on the first ballot. There was a general handshaking when the verdict was an-nounced. The Bakers will not return to Clay, and they say the feud is over on their part.

An Inn 200 Years Old Burned. WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 8.—The Elm Tree inn, in Northboro, which was 200 years old and a famous stage tavern on the Boston and Worcester turnpike, was burned last night. The loss is $8,000. Two women were rescued with difficulty.

A HANDCUFF ADVENTURE.

The Awkward Predicament of a Jocular Mail Clerk Who Got Caught in One.

A little Jun at the Birmingham post office led to a remarkable sequel, says the South Wales News. Among the postal tickets was a parcel containing a pair of handcuffs, which were being sent from Derby to a manufacturer in Birmingham to be fitted with a key. The paper covering of the package had, during transit, been badly torn, with the result that when the handcuffs reached the Birmingham sorting officer they were exposed to view.

They were an object of curiosity, and presently one of the clerks jocularly clasped one of the cuffs round the wrist of his left hand. To his dismay there was no key to unfasten it, and he therefore went to the central police station. Here a key was found, but as the officer was turning it it broke off in the cuff. The situation, at first comical, had now become really serious. The broken key would have to be drilled out or the handcuif filed through before the clerk could be released from his unpleasant incumbrance. But it was Sunday and no place of business was open. The clerk therefore returned to the post office and explained his plight to his superintendent, by whom he was ordered to go to Derby by the first train the next morning, explain the whole circumstances to the owner of the handcuffs and apologize; and then return to Birmingham and proceed to the manufacturer and have the handcuff taken off.

A Difference Only in Name.

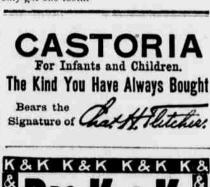

We call it ice cream. To the English it is known as cream ice. Just when or where it was invented is the question many people have tried to solve. In the beginning of the century it was almost unknown in England, though well known in Naples and Sicily, where the cream was artfully made into copies of peaches, apples, apricots and such dainties, much as we have them to-day made in molds.
