McCLURE'S MAGAZINE FOR FEB'Y. The February McClure's opens with a second instalment of "The Life of the Master," by the Rev. John Watson (Ian MacLaren), illustrated with four of Mr. Linson's brilliant paintings, reproduced in the colors of the originals, and a number of beautiful drawings in black and white.

Other noteworthy features of the number are Walter Wellman's account of the extraordinary experiences of his last year's Arctic expedition; Governor Boutwell's reminiscences of the Grant administration, under which he himself was a member of the Cabinet; Mr. Alleyne Ireland's exposition of the relative strength of the great powers in colonial territory, population and resources; Cleveland Moffett's account of the latest discoveries and speculations regarding the composition of the interior of the earth, as unfolded in conversations with the great earthquake expert, Prof. John Milne; and Ray Stannard Baker's intimate biographical and character study of the new Governor of Cuba, General Leonard Wood. All of these articles, except Governor Boutwell's, are fully illustrated.

A piece of fiction entitled "The Killing of the Mammoth," published in McClure's some months ago, was taken by many readers as a record of fact—as much to the surprise as to the regret of the editors. In the present number, Mr. Frederic A. Lucas, of the National Museum, gives us "The Truth About the Mammoth"; and the truth, as Mr. Lucas, out of his ample scientific knowledge, presents it, is so extremely interesting that even those who were most misled by the inventions of the story writer will feel that ample amends are here made.

The fiction of the number includes a story of mining life; a yachting and love story of the Georgia coast, a story of English prison life, and a railroad story—all original in incident and interestingly illustrated.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Notes and Comments, Political and Otherwise, on Matters of Interest.

By Andrew J. Palm.

Our Republican friends are boasting considerably about what they call the absence of the soup house, and hold forth the idea that everybody is prosperous. It is worthy to note, however, that the Republican papers of Philadelphia on the day after Christmas gave a list showing the number of persons who had been fed by charity the day before. The number fed in different places varied from 75,000 in the homes and asylums to 225 fed by the Life Line League. The total number was 110,425. It would be well in view of this not to destroy all the soup houses just yet. They will be in great demand by and by. McKinley has sent many thousands of our idle men to risk their lives in killing off our fellow men in his scheme of benevolent assimilation, but as they will all be asking for pensions by and by, it isn't much advantage after all over the soup house.

The New York World has done a great work in securing a monster petition of the best men of the country urging President McKinley to offer his services toward stopping the criminal aggression of the English against the Boers in South Africa. But what does the World take McKinley for? He has no sense of consistency, and he has never been credited with courage, but lacking both consistency and courage he still has sense enough to know that if he would say to John Bull, "You are murdering innocent men in the Transvaal, let me show you how not to do it." Bull would quick make reply, "You're another. You began first, now quit before you begin lecturing us." Oh, no, Mr. McKinley isn't going to mention anything like that to England. He is more likely to send a commission of college professors over to learn how an Englishman can stick a lance through two prisoners at once, a brilliant feat that they call "pig sticking." It's so English, you know, that we ought by all means to have it.

The United States mail service now carries a letter 7,000 miles for two cents, and yet nobody is complaining that it is too cheap. The telegraph companies, however, continue right along exacting at least three times as much for their services as it is worth. There is no more reason why the government should not assume control of the telegraph than there is why it should give the mail service over to some trust or corporation. The wonder is that the Mark Hannas and Pierpont Morgans have not discovered before this that the government ought not to be troubled about the matter of carrying the mails. If the mail service at the present time were in the control of private individuals it is safe to say that the powers controlling our public affairs would see to it that the government should have nothing to do with it. They would point out the dangers of government control of the mail service, and the majority would be foolish to believe them, or at least not take enough interest in the matter to declare that private control of the public mail service should cease. The public ownership of the telegraph and railroads never ought to have been given into the hands of private parties, and should be taken charge of by the government without unnecessary delay.

We hear so much flappoodle about the dear old flag, exalted patriotism, how sweet it is die for one's country, etc., that one would almost be led to believe that men are anxious to give themselves a sacrifice to the god of war that they may be referred to as heroes. We find, however, that of the patriots who were so madly in love with their country that they were willing to leave the comforts of peace and civilization to fight against Spain, 5,772 deserted. In the civil war the desertions from the Union army were 117,640. The sweetness of dying for one's country may sound well in story books, but it is the mytheist sort of myth when it comes down to actual business. The sweetness in military matters is confined exclusively to those gentlemen who draw big salaries as officers and to the shallowed hero worshipers who seem to think that the business of destroying life and property and causing untold suffering is more worthy of honor than saving life and relieving distress. If it were not for the army contractors who grow rich by stealing from the government and the brass buttoned duds who receive big salaries and the plaudits of the multitude the war spirit would die out in a generation. It is high time that we should either cease to hang men for committing a single murder or quit paying and teaching thousands to commit wholesale murder.
