

BOER LAAGERS.

Camp Defenses Formed from Wagons Placed Axle to Axle with Poles Outward.

In South Africa, whenever travelers "outspan" for the night, they invariably form the wagons into a defensive work called a laager. Provided there are enough wagons, this is either square or oblong, the latter shape being preferred. When each ox is allowed 36 square feet the smallest laager that will hold the oxen is that formed by 60 wagons. These are formed in single rank in a hollow square, touching, and with their poles outward. This renders the impolished protection easily removed when the order to "inspan" is given. Each wheel should be locked and fastened securely to its neighbor, to prevent an enemy from dragging out one of the wagons and thus gaining access to the square. Every human being and animal must be within the inclosure before dark, or they may run serious risk from being fired upon by their own friends. If time permits a shelter trench should be dug all around the laager, so that, with men lying in them, the others posted on the wagons, a double tier of infantry fire may be maintained.

Modern Pills.—The day of powerful drastic pills is past, and everyone who is troubled with torpidity of the liver, constipation, headache or indigestion, may well be thankful that it is. Every modern family medicine chest should contain a supply of Hood's Pills, the modern cathartic. While gentle and mild in action, they are thoroughly efficient and cure biliousness, indigestion, sick headache and other troubles due to a deranged condition of the stomach, liver or bowels.
