

THE REVOLT MAY END

Filipino Leader Meets MacArthur and Offers to Surrender.

ALSO OFFERS TO BRING IN AGUINALDO

News Comes Through the Junta at Honolulu That Negotiations Are in Progress Under the Amnesty Proclamation.

HONGKONG, Aug. 8.—Manila advices to the Filipino junta assert that Major General MacArthur, the military governor of the Philippines, and General Alejandro, a leading rebel commander, are negotiating the surrender under the amnesty proclamation of the insurgent forces in central Luzon.

Diligent inquiries at army headquarters in Manila failed to confirm the report of any such negotiations being on foot. It is known, however, that General MacArthur has been in constant conference with the rebel politicians and military leaders with the object of bringing about peace otherwise than by fighting.

On Saturday last General MacArthur, with an escort of officers, went to San Fernando and met Alejandro at a conference which had previously been arranged. According to the Filipinos General Alejandro then made his offer to surrender the central Luzon rebel commands and also to produce Aguinaldo under certain conditions which were not made public.

There has been an increase of insurgent activity during the last three weeks, especially in the way of ambushes and attacks upon small parties. First Lieutenant Alstetter of the engineer corps, with an escort of 15 men, was taken in ambush in the province of Nueva Ecija, Luzon, by a large force. The Americans fought until their ammunition was gone, and as they were surrounded, there was nothing to do but surrender. One man was killed and three were wounded.

General Lacuna, who was in command of the insurgents, returned the wounded with a letter promising to treat the prisoners well.

Lieutenant Boeton Halesberg (?) was ambushed and killed near Santa Cruz, province of Laguna.

ROMANCE OF A RING.

And her hand there, With its ruby inside color, and the sparkle of its ring! —Owen Meredith. JOHN BOURBOUGHS got into the habit of taking a dose of literary browsing every afternoon.

One blistering summer day he flung off his vest, passed between wide red-dish portals, swung up the few stone steps leading to the hall, entered the elevator at his right, and said: "Sixth!"

There was a moment's pause as the car conductor waited for his signal from the starter, then the iron door of the elevator was closed, the lever thrown over, and the car shot upward toward the reference room on the sixth floor.

One—two! He happened to glance at his hands. He had a feminine dexterity of soiled palms and fingers. That rummaging for old receipts in the old desk— "Six!"

He stepped from the elevator. There, to be sure, at the left, was a row of marble basins. He wheeled around, gave his hat to the attendant, removed his cuffs, and turned the hot water faucet.

"Greatest Scott!" he said to himself, "what kind of a memory have I got, anyway? I haven't been drinking. Might as well have been, though. To get queered over a bubble—"

He didn't want that ring, but he did not wish to part with it except to its rightful owner. He wished to return it in person, and yet the wish was without reason of any kind.

"This is for the dearest girl in the world," he had explained. "It's my engagement ring for Phyllis Lane. We will be married in the fall, and you'll be the best man, God willing!"

She rose, coloring deeply, drawing back a little, looking up at him. "You are mistaken, sir. My name is Faith Ferris." Bourboughs drew the ring from his pocket. "This—" he began.
