The men de posted the box couch according to the gald's directions, and went their way. The neid went to her own room on the third some sewing for herself, and secuple of hours later the mistress of the stablishment returned. The mistress of two minutes before she discovered that she was out just $6,000 worth of diamonds. The jewels had been left by her in a jewel bos men only a few moments before leaving the house on her shopping expedition, but when she opened the bureau drawer upor her return the box was gone. The mistress of the establishment made careful search of the room, and of the adjoining rooms before she summoned the maid. Then she mag for the maid and cross-examined her with reference to her visitors during the chernoon. The maid told the mistress that the three men with the box-couch had been the only visitors, and showed her mistress the bex-couch. The mistress at once said that she hadn't ordered any box-couch, and seesed the maid of being in cahoots with the three men who had brought it, declarug that the maid had arranged for them bring the couch in order to divert sus placen from herself. The girl cried and proused and went on her knees, but the misthat the maid was the thief, or at least the geomplice of the thieves, and she locked the doors and declared that when her hus tand returned from his office she would have the girl arrested. She did summon a suple of men from the St. Louis central stice when her husband returned from buiness and announced his belief, too, that the girl was either crooked herself or in sque with crooks, and the detectives gath and the girl in. They investigated her, and they found that she had a first cousin who we a well-known sneak thief. They failed wind that the girl had ever had anything to do with the crook, but the mere fact that she had any such relative was enough al when the girl was tried for the theft of the jewels it was the biggest point unist her. The chief tried to put the girl frough the third degree, but she stuck to be smertion that she was innocent, in the fice of all sorts of promises of lighter punment if she would own up and make some sort of a statement that would give a line as to where the jewels could be rewared. The nerve with which she stuck to be assertion that she was innocent got let of her questioners going, but she wa

GIRLS NEVER PAY BETS.

Expect the Men to Settle, But Are Oblivious of Their Own Obligations.

The man who makes a bet with a girl must expect to lose, whichever way things go. At the Washington park race course, says the Chicago Chrontele, thousands of pairs of gloves have been wagered this season, but the dealers have not profited except when the men have been the losers. One who has had a good deal of experience in betting with the fair sex said the other day: "I'd as soon expect diamonds to grow on trees as I would to have a girl pay a bet. They have queer notions about its being made in fun, and not counting, and all that. There's the bet I made with Lucy Jockman the time the house party was going down to Jackson park. She said she'd see the lake first. I said she wouldn't, and it was gioves to gloves, for we both needed them. Well. she was easy. All I had to do was to keep her talking about the time I knew the blue water line ought to heave in sight, and she didn't see at all. Then I said: 'Lucy, there it is.' Maybe you think I got the gloves? Well, I didn't. Didn't expect to when I made the bet.

"But if the shoe had been on the other foot, mind you-if I'd been the loser-I'd have had to pay up, of course, If I didn't, Lucy would have called me down roundly and I'd never have heard the last of it."

"No, sir," her brother soliloquized, "A man who makes a bet with a girl is sure to be swindled. He goes into it with his eyes open, of course, but he's swindled just the same. Never saw a fellow who didn't think the same way.

DAZED A CONDUCTOR.

How a Nervy Western Woman Resented an Insult on the Street Cars of New York.

western woman who is on a visit to New York was boarding a street car in that city the other day. She had just placed her foot upon the step and was preparing to take another step to the upper platform when, with a furious "Step lively," the conductor pulled the strap. The car jerked forward and the western woman swayed back for a minute, then just caught herself in time to prevent a bad fall upon the cobbles.

She confronted the conductor with angry eyes eyes that had looked undismayed into those of mighty horned monsters of the prairies.

"What do you mean by starting the car before I was on?" she questioned. "Can't wait all day for you, lady," the conductor snarled. "Just step in-

In a moment the western woman, with a backward golf sweep of the arm, lunged for the conductor's head. He dodged. The blow sent his hat spinning back into the track. The woman entered the car and sat down. She was flushed, but dignified, While the other women passengers were rather startled, they all knew just how she felt. Then the car stopped while the conductor went back for his hat. The western woman rode free that

CELEBRATE DEVIL'S BIRTHDAY

Chinamen Regard It as Sacrilegious to Neglect Giving the Evil One Presents.

Similar in some respects to the celebration of Christmas in Christian countries is the observance of the devil's birthday In China. On this anniversary many costly gifts are laid upon the altar of the evil one. There are many other superstitions current. In sending the kitchen god to Henven every year, the Chinese housekeeper has to burn it and let the fumes ascend. It reports on the good deeds of the family for the year and brings good luck. Before burning it the housewife dips her fingers in a jar of molasses and smears the upper and lower lips of the idos, so that when he arrives at the pearly city he may tell a sweet tale on the family and thus insure benedictions. A family, when gambling, will cover the eyes of the idol until the card playing is through. A woman in Luhoh city went to the temple to pray for the recovery of her son from smallpox. He recovered, but was marked from the effects of the disease. She returned to the temple in a great rage put a coll of rope around the idol's neck and soused it several times in the river, saying: "I'll teach you to lose your benign in-fluence, you rascal."

WEATHERED MESSENGERS.

Interesting Pacts About the Great Barrier Pigeon Post to New Zenland.

The Great Barrier pigeon post, although depending on feathered messengers for the safe transmission of mail matter, is a branch of mail service between Auckland, N. Z., and the Great Barrier islands. The pigeons in traversing the route between Great Darrier island and the city of Auckland fly across 60 miles of water, and it is a somewhat difficult matter to train the small messengers to start from Auckland to the island, but it has been accomplished, and several mails are sent and received daily. Each pigeon can carry four sheets of tissue paper, quarto size, used for pigeon post. The messages are folded smugly, scaled with a stamp covered with waterproof and fastened to the leg. The birds then start for "home," where, in accordance with their training, they raise a tiny door and enter

What a splendid type of tireless activity the sun as psalmist describes it issuing like 'a bridegroom from his chamber and re joicing like a strong man to run a race," Every man ought to rise in the morning refreshed by slumber and renewed by rest, eager for the struggle of the day. But how rarely this is so. Most people rise still unrefreshed, and dreading the strain of the day's labors. The cause of this is deficient vitality and behind this lies a deficient supply of pure, rich blood, and an inadequate ourishment of the body. There is noththing that will give a man strength and en-ergy, as will Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It does this by increasing the quantity and quality of the blood supply. This nourishes the nerves, feeds the brain, builds up enfeebled organs, and gives that sense of strength and power which makes the struggle of life a joy. The "good feeling" which follows the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" is not due to stimulation as it contains no alcohol, whisky or other intoxi cant. It does not brace up the body, but builds it up into a condition of sound health.

Literary Notes for September McClure's

The September number of "McClures Magazine" will contain an elaborately illustrated article by Samuel Hopkins Adams or "The Training of Lions, Tigers, and other Great Cats." The drawings, by Charles R Knight, of the American Museum of Natural History, because of the artist's technical skill and scientific knowledge, are doubtless the nost startling and lifelike portraits of Lions that have appeared in any magazine for some time. The author relates several capital anedotes of hairbreadth escapes of trainers om death

Hon, George S. Boutwell, Ex-Secretary of he Treasury, will write in the September 'McClure's" of "An Historic Sale of United States Bonds in England." "How McGrath Got an Engine" will be the title of Frank H. Spearman's railroad story in the September "McClure's". Mr. Spearman has already, in the August issue, written of "Conductor Pat Francis;" later he will tell stories about the southway the will tell stories about the switchman, the yard-master and soon; in the September umber he will relate the daring adventure of young and inexperienced "wiper" in the ace of great danger.

"A Bill from Tiffany's will be the subject of the second of the "True Stories from the Under-World," by Josiah Flynt and Francis Walton, in "McClure's" for September. The hero is a New York detective, and the action centers round a metropolitan diamond ol bery. This story shows how professional thieves live and how they treat each other. The illustrations will be from studies of ypes in the Rognes' Gallery.

Miss Edith Wyatt will contribute to "Mediure,s" for September a story of contemporary Chicago life, of no little satirical orce. In "Richard Elliot" she has revealed n a ridiculous light the character of an affectedly refined example of literary nincom-poop; the picture of the German family of Ioffmans is intensely realistic and typical of Chicago.
