

MCKINLEY'S BAD MEMORY

The President Contradicts Himself in Discussing the Philippine Question.

Mr. McKinley's letter of acceptance brings things new and old out of his treasure, like the householder of Scripture, says the New York Evening Post, Independent Republican. Some of the controversial weapons he uses, however, with surprising carelessness. In slashing at his opponents he makes ribbons of his own previous argument.

If one could cross examine this immense witness, many pertinent questions would be asked. Why publish this one of Dewey's dispatches, and keep the rest under lock and key? Why, if Mr. McKinley was thus warned of trouble, did he not take measures to prevent it? Why did he go out west, lay his hand on his heart, and declare that he "never dreamed" the insurgents would attack us? The truth is that the president, in his eagerness to make a point against the Filipinos, has forgotten the role he had before tried to play.

But the whole thing is a pure presidential afterthought. See how plain a tale shall put down this belated invention. Gen. Merritt's problem was to deal with the insurgents, was it? They were spilling for a fight even in July, were they? Well, what did Merritt himself say to the Paris commissioners in October? He was specifically asked if the Filipinos were disposed to make trouble, and roundly replied, "I think there is no danger of conflict."

Mr. McKinley, however, has another argument in reserve just as good. What put end to the "cordial feeling"? Certainly it was not the peace treaty, the presidents asserts. Those who maintain that it was have "forgotten," he declares triumphantly, "that before the treaty was ratified... the insurgents attacked the American army." Yes, but possibly other things have also been forgotten. The president may have forgotten that he, before the treaty was ratified (six weeks before), issued a proclamation to the Filipinos asserting that the cession of the islands was complete, and that our military government would be extended to "the whole" of Philippine territory.

He may have forgotten that this proclamation was a gross violation of the constitution, void both in morals and in law. He may have forgotten that, irrespective of the legal aspect of the proclamation, it was drawn in such an excess of wantonly tyrannical language, that Gen. Otis was alarmed, and tried to suppress it, fearing that its publication would drive the Filipinos to instant insurrection. It was published by accident, and the insurrection followed. All these facts Mr. McKinley may have forgotten, but the future historian will not forget them; neither will he forget to characterize the conduct of a ruler who tried to shuffle away from the consequences of his own inconsiderate action.

The Election in Maine. If the Hon. Mark Hanna can draw any comfort from the returns of the Maine election he is welcome to the enjoyment of it. An unusually active and earnest canvass had been made in the hope of securing such a majority as would impress the country with the belief that the people have implicit confidence in the McKinley administration. The most distinguished orators of the country were brought in and the strongest defense of the president's course that it was possible to invent and present was made. But the result is not reassuring to the Republican managers. On the contrary, it is most discouraging, for it not only shows a dangerous decrease of the Republican vote, but a threatening increase of the Democratic vote.

Mr. McKinley is so firmly wedded to the idea of benevolent assimilation that he is long past the point where the leaden bullet and the point of the bayonet seem inappropriate factors in the scheme.

The "Full Dinner Pail" Argument.

There is an old and familiar adage to the effect that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach. Mr. Senator Hanna in his recent speech at Youngstown, O., in which he told his hearers that all of the issues of the campaign boiled down are contained in the catch phrase, "a full dinner pail," seeks to extend this saying and would have us believe that the way to a man's mind is through his stomach. It is the most pitiful trickery to attempt to convince the voter that so long as he has enough to eat he should not worry himself about anything else.

The proposition Senator Hanna makes to the voters of this country is that they trample under foot all other considerations because he tells them that the present administration has given this country prosperous times. The crops which the Almighty has watered into full fruition and the laborious industry of the farmer and the workman have of course had nothing to do with a better condition of things, although the benefits which the workman at present enjoys exist chiefly in the imaginations of the ingenious gentlemen who would perpetuate Mr. McKinley's maladministration.

Mr. Hanna asks the voter to believe that if under the McKinley administration he has in the sweat of his brow secured food enough for himself and his family it is not for him to bother his brains about any enormity to which the Republican party may see fit to commit the country. He argues that it is not for the people to insist that her historical governmental policies be observed, and that is not for them to criticize any actions of the party in power which they may think is drifting the republic away from her ancient moorings. Unless the temper of the American people is changing very sadly they will not submit to any such bullying, and will assert in no unambiguous terms their inalienable right to judge for themselves.

It used to be this kind of argument which the Republican party was most vehemently opposed to when some of the apologists for the institution of slavery would point to the many slaves who had plenty to eat and were well taken care of. It was very properly pointed out that their physical well being did not alter the fact that they were held in cruel bondage, which denied them the priceless boon of liberty to own their own bodies, to work for whom they pleased and to come and go as they wished. But now Mr. Hanna adopts the pro-slavery argument and seeks to thrust it upon millions of men, white and black, all through this broad land, and says to them in effect: "Why should you worry about the way this government deals with the public questions of the day when you have enough to eat and enough to wear?"

Where They Dance in Church. During the octaves of the festival of Corpus Christi and on the three last days of the carnival a strange scene takes place in the cathedral of Seville. On either side of the open space in front of the altar, within the iron screens, five boys dressed in the costume of the seventeenth century, with tunics of white and blue silk, hats looped up with a plume of feathers, scarfs fastened across the shoulders and silk mantles hanging behind, take their stand. Presently they begin a slow and measured movement, singing the while hymns to the patroness of Spain and keeping time with ivory castanets. For half an hour do they dance, and then the magnificent organ peals forth, and the bells ring and the congregation that has assembled to view the dancing streams out of the cathedral.

Science Improves on Nature. A diseased larynx caused loss of voice to a man in Sydney, Australia. Prof. Stuart, of the University of Sydney, made an artificial larynx, and it can be so regulated as to make the voice soprano, tenor, contralto or bass, whichever the man chooses.

His Terrible Cough.

Few things are so depressing and weakening as a constant cough. Few things are as discouraging as a cough that will not yield to treatment. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures coughs when all other medicines fail, because it is more than a cough medicine. The cough is but a symptom. "Discovery" makes new and pure blood, heals the lacerated tissues, and throws off disease. It cures the cough by curing the cause of the cough. There is no alcohol, neither opium, cocaine, nor other narcotic in the "Discovery." "I had a terrible cough something over a year ago and could find nothing to stop it, or even to do me a particle of good," writes Mr. J. M. Farr, of Cameron, Screven Co., Ga. "I chanced to see an advertisement of your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' Before I had taken half a bottle I was entirely well."

The patriotic purpose of "The Times" to aid in the restoration of the Government to the principles on which its foundations were laid is a matter of sincere rejoicing among men who cling to the Constitution as the safeguard of popular rights. With millions of my countrymen I see in this loyal expression of fidelity to the simple faith of the fathers, as against the arrogance of a military system and the domination of lawless trusts, the promise of an awakening of the conscience of the people of Pennsylvania that must bear fruit in impelling lovers of civil liberty to greater and more determined effort to break the thralls that have chained them. The Democratic party is to be congratulated on the accession of a powerful ally in the cause of the people.

W. J. BRYAN. Special Dispatch to the Editor of "The Times." Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 1. The Democracy of this entire country is to be congratulated upon your editorial this morning. It is an inspiration to the defenders of our free institutions.

You can and will aid greatly in both our national and State affairs, and your faithful adherence to the Democratic party will insure you the position of the greatest political power in the eastern part of our State. I ask of the Democratic organization, as well as the rank and file of the party within the State, their hearty co-operation and support in making "The Times" a most successful and influential Democratic organ.

J. M. GUFFEY. Pennsylvania Member of the Democratic National Committee.

Special Dispatch to the Editor of "The Times." Erie, Pa., October 1. In advocating the cause of Bryan and Stevenson and the principles of the Democratic party, you are performing a noble duty, for which you deserve the gratitude of the great mass of the common people, whose cause you uphold. You have come to the defense of our country when its very foundations are being undermined. The seeds of empire that have already been sown by the present vacillating administration must be uprooted. You are bound to be the greatest newspaper in Pennsylvania, and every Democrat ought to subscribe to your paper. I wish you abundant success.

Accept my hearty congratulations for "The Times" support of Bryan and his clear announcement of its stand against Imperialism, Militarism and McKinleyism. "The Times" editorial of today will appeal to the true American people.

RICHARD CROKER. Special Dispatch to the Editor of "The Times." New York, October 1. The Democracy of New York are gratified that "The Times" will support the National standard bearers. The cause is growing every day all over the Union. Accept my congratulations.

DAVID B. BILL. Special Dispatch to the Editor of "The Times." Reading, October 1.

I am very glad to know that we have once more a strong and popular newspaper in Philadelphia advocating the cause of the Democratic party and the election of Wm. Jennings Bryan to the Presidency. I congratulate the Philadelphia "Times" in the earnest and manly stand it has taken in advocating the interests of the common people, and its patriotic attitude in favor of the maintenance of a republican government and the institutions under which this country became great and prosperous. At this critical moment in the life of the Republic, the assistance which the Philadelphia "Times" can, and I know will, give in advocating a true American policy, and in defending the Stars and Stripes as the flag of the free, teaching a lesson of liberty, equality and humanity to the downtrodden and oppressed of all nations, and holding out to them the blessings which have been achieved under it is much needed, and I know your paper will receive a cordial welcome from those who hold patriotism above McKinley commercialism. Very truly, HENRY D. GREEN, Member of Congress from the Ninth Pennsylvania District.

Special Dispatch to the Editor of "The Times." Easton, October 1. "The Times" for Bryan makes Pennsylvania Democracy rejoice. Its editorials to-day are like a blast from the bugle that calls to battle. Trusts and Imperialism are sure to find their heads hit hard by this champion of the people and defender of the Declaration of Independence. HOWARD MITCHELL, Next Congressman from the Tenth District.

Special Dispatch to the Editor of "The Times." Reading, October 1. I congratulate the people and "The Times" upon the stand it has taken in the battle for popular rights now being waged by the Democratic party. It is easy and profitable to take the side of power; it is a brave thing to take the side of the people. H. WILLIS BLAND.

Special Dispatch to the Editor of "The Times." Milltown, October 1. As a lifelong Democrat of the Jefferson and Jackson stripe, and as a daily reader of "The Times" for many years, I desire to congratulate you on the noble stand you have taken regarding the candidacy of Hon. William Jennings Bryan for President of the United States as indicated in the sound and forceful editorial in this morning's "Times." Your hearty support of the Democratic candidate and the platform of the Democratic party will mean more votes for Bryan in Juniata county, and many more readers of "The Times." Sincerely yours, OREN C. ORTNER, Superintendent of the Common Schools, Juniata, Pa.
