John Rebman died at his home in Danville Monday evening from liver trouble. The early portion of Mr. Rebman's life was spent in the circus business, he at one time having been connected with Forepaugh. At the time of his death he was a member of the Danville Borough Council. He was member of the Danville Lodge No. 516 F. and A. M. and also Lodge No. 109 I. O. O. F.

A new use has been found for paper. An ingenious inventor is going to weave it into a fabric that shall be a substitute for carpet and supplant the Chinese matting so generally used. The new fabric has a cotton warp and a paper filling, a tough variety of tissue paper being used. The fabric may be dyed and produced in variegated designs similar to any ingrain carpet patterns now in market. A well known Gloucester business man is interested in the enterprise.

At a special session of court on Saturday afternoon at Danville Judge Little passed sentence on Harry R. Landis who had previously been found guilty of selling liquor on Sunday and of maintaining a slot machine during part of the time he was proprietor of Hotel Oliver in that borough. Sentence on the charge of Sunday liquor selling, Landis was sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution, a fine of $100, and to undergo a term of 20 days imprisonment in the County jail.

CHARLES B. JACKSON.

C. C. Evans, Esq., as follows:
TO THE PRESIDENT AND MEMBERS OF THE BAR OF COLUMBIA COUNTY:

Your committee on resolutions offers its tribute to the memory of Charles B. Jackson, Esq.

On Thursday afternoon, October 25, 1900 Mr. Jackson passed from this life to the life beyond the grave. He was born at Berwick June 7th, 1836 and resided there continuously until the date of his death. He was educated in Berwick public schools and the Dickinson Seminary of Williamsport, Pennsylvania.

During early manhood he became engaged in the mercantile business, which he followed until his admission to the Bar in 1875 from which time he devoted his entire attention to the practice of the law. The influence of constant association with his father, the late M. E. Jackson, who was one of the foremost lawyers of this county enabled him to early grasp the fundamental principles of the law. He was an able and a successful lawyer.

Mr. Jackson was several times a member of the School board and for a number of years Solicitor of the Borough council. As a citizen he was progressive and useful, an affable gentleman, well read in general literature, a good conversationalist, and popular in social circles.

In his death the public has lost a good citizen, the Bar an able lawyer and his family a loving and indulgent husband and father.

CHARLES C. EVANS,
FRED KEELER,
B. FRANK ZARR,

C. W. Miller, Esq., and J. B. Robinson, Esq., then made some remarks, in which they paid high tribute to the character of the deceased, as a man and as a lawyer. The resolutions were unanimously adopted, and the meeting then adjourned.

The Danville News of Monday says: One of the most daring, and well planned burglaries ever committed in this city, took place Saturday morning. The Philadelphia and Reading depot office was entered, the operator bound and gagged, the safe blown open, and a sum of money stolen, without the smallest clue as to the identity, or whereabouts of the perpetrators.

At nearly two o'clock a south-bound freight train passed the station, and Annon Keiser the night operator, had just reported it, when some one called to him from the baggage room window that "his friend Thomas" wished to speak to him on the platform. Keiser replied saying "I don't know Thomas and I don't know you." At that moment the window shutter was raised, and Keiser covered by several revolvers. Several of the men, at once crawled through the window and Keiser was securely bound and thrown into Agent Foust's rear office. Before leaving they relieved him of his watch and about $1.50 in money. They also took his tobacco and helped themselves liberally to his lunch. After a number of trials the safe was finally blown open and the money taken. The amount is not known as the officials have refused to make any statement in regard to their loss. It is supposed to have been quite a large sum, possibly $250.

After the robbers had made their escape, Keiser managed to extricate himself and gave the alarm. The officers and Agent Foust were soon on the scene but careful search failed to reveal any clue by which the thieves could be traced.

The boys and girls should read the "Farm Journal." It will help them on the farm. We will send it five years, the remainder of 1900 and all of 1901, 1902, 1903 and 1904, to every one who will subscribe for the COLUMBIAN; both papers at the price of ours only.

The Nazareth, Pa. Item, published by Albert O. Sturgis & Co., grew to nearly twice its usual size last week. The extra matter which was in the shape of a supplement, consisted of a description of the resources and industrial advantages of that growing town. Nazareth is situated in the busy center of a cement district, which for richness and importance is second to none, and the Item which disseminates the good tidings of the town's prosperous condition, holds an enviable position in the list of Pennsylvania's up-to-date weekly newspapers.

WASHINGTON.

From our Regular Correspondent.
Washington, Oct. 26, 1900.

When old Zach Chandler made Hayes a possibility by claiming his election after the returns showed Tilden's election, he established a precedent that has been slavishly followed by the republican managers of every national campaign since. The republicans have already re-elected McKinley, according to their claims, and the voting ten days hence will be a mere formality. The object of this bluff and bluster is so plain that he who runs may read it. Once get that large portion of the public which takes no personal part in politics other than to vote to accept the idea that McKinley's election is assured, and the way will be paved to work Hanna's plans to secure the election by the corrupt use of money and any other crooked way that presents itself, and those who know little or nothing about the manipulation of political machinery will be more apt to accept the result so obtained because it had been so confidently claimed before election.

"He laughs best who laughs last." The democratic managers could shatter some of the "surface indications" which the republicans are pointing out as assuring McKinley's election, but to do so they would have to show where many thousand Bryan votes are which the republican bosses are fondly counting for McKinley, and that they do not deem it good policy to do. It is the "silent vote" which they are depending upon to elect Bryan and Stevenson, and to locate that vote for the republicans would be to make trouble for the voters and to lose much of it. Just let every democrat keep his shoulder to the wheel and remember that November 6, is the day on which the President will be elected.

The slobbering—the word isn't elegant, but it is exactly expressive in this case—of the men who first kicked the late John Sherman out of the Senate to make room for Hanna and then kicked him out of the Cabinet, where he had only been a figure-head while Day performed the duties of Secretary of State, over the death of Mr. Sherman, which occurred in Washington this week, is about as disgusting an episode as the political world has seen on this side of the Atlantic. It was killing a man and then praising him for his many virtues. Mr. Sherman was not a political paragon. He belonged to the school which follows the motto, "the end justifies the means," and he left a long string of his political friends in the ditches he crossed in his extended political career, but it is certain that he never treated any of them as badly as he was treated by the Hanna-McKinley crowd. Some think that Mr. Sherman died from a broken heart, but there is no evidence that his heart was the kind that breaks. That he had been a soured and disgusted man ever since his failure to capture the Presidential nomination of his party everybody knows, as he advertised the fact in his book of recollections; but as he always was glacial and ungenial it is not likely that disappointment shortened his life. He was seventy-eight and he had been a hard worker. That is enough to account for a death from natural causes.

Bank Examiners that can detect fraudulent manipulation of bank books by crooked employes is a needed reform which has been emphasized by the news of a $700,000 defalcation of an employee of the First National Bank of New York City. Secretary Gage was inclined to treat the matter rather lightly, when asked why the bank examiners employed at high salaries by his department had not discovered the big defalcation in their examinations of the bank's books. He said, nonchalantly, as though it were a matter of no consequence: "Our examiners cannot be expected to discover an old defalcation when the bank officers themselves have not found or suspected it. The First National Bank can stand it easily, with a surplus of $6,000,000." These few words of Secretary Gage are a strong indictment of the national bank system, as it is now run. If the bank examiners "cannot be expected" to find crookedness until it is pointed out to them by the bank officers, pray, how do they earn their salaries? If the people elect Mr. Bryan President, he will get a Secretary of the Treasury who will expect more of the bank examiners, and will see to it that they are men with knowledge and skill enough to meet his expectations. This particular bank has been such a pet of republican Secretaries of the Treasury, since 1877, when it jumped into prominence as one of the most successful New York banks, through favors given it by the Treasury Department, that the bank examiners may have been afraid to look too closely into its books.

The government service is in a crippled condition in all the departments and is likely to remain so until after the election, owing to the absence of nearly all of the responsible officials, who are in the field doing political work of some kind, or putting up a bluff that they are, while their salaries are going right along. A man filling a scientific position in the Department of Agriculture thus voiced his disgust: "This is our busy time, and we need our full force. The service is being neglected by the very men, and by their orders, who prate about 'giving the people a business-like administration.'"

REFORMS IN COUNTY LAWS.

Changes Recommended by Commissioners in Convention.

The annual state convention of the County Commissioners of Pennsylvania adjourned at Allentown to meet next year at Bellefonte. Besides listening to many papers, addresses and discussions, the convention adopted resolutions recommending that the fee system for county officials be abolished; that the laws may be so amended that the counties may retain their portion of the state tax without first sending it to the state treasury; that a law be passed making it a felony for a public officer to demand or receive more fees than the law allows; that the law be amended so that for trivial cases returned to court the costs may be put on the magistrate; that the law requiring the counties to pay the costs in discharged cases be repealed; that the school boards be compelled to pay for the registration of school children; that the law in regard to fees for executing affidavits to returns of births or deaths be repealed; that a law be passed making county tax a lien on real estate; that a description of all real estate purchased be filed in the County Commissioners' office; that the fees of stenographers be made part of the costs in all cases, instead of being paid by the counties, and the law making constables fire wardens and appointing fire detectives, be repealed.

The decision of the Luzerne County Commissioners to build the new court house on the site now occupied by the old one does not appear to meet with popular favor. Had the matter been submitted to a vote of the people the present building would be torn down, the square converted into a public park, and the new building erected on River street. This would also add to the beauty of the city. Commissioners are paid to do the will of the people, but they don't always do it.

ON GUARD

The warning cough is the faithful sentinel. It tells of the approach of consumption, which has killed more people than war and pestilence combined. It tells of painful chests, sore lungs, weak throats, bronchitis, and pneumonia. Do not suffer another day. It's useless, for there's a prompt and safe cure. It is which cures fresh colds and coughs in a single night and masters chronic coughs and bronchitis in a short time. Consumption is surely and certainly prevented, and cured, too, if taken in time.

A 25c. bottle for a fresh cold; 50c. size for older colds; $1 size for chronic coughs and consumption. "I always keep a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral on hand. Whenever I get cold I take a little of it and I am better in a day." JAMES C. BRYSON, Oct. 19, 1898. El Paso, Texas. Write the Doctor, if you have any complaint whatever and desire the best medical advice, write the Doctor freely. Address: Dr. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

The Mysterious Band.

Among the many new pictures to be presented by the Lyman H. Howe Moving Picture Co. at the Opera House on the evening of November 2, 1900, is a wonderful one by the celebrated French magician, Robert Houdyn. It is entitled the "One-man Band," and is unexcelled as a mysterious subject. The beginning of the picture shows the magician in the foreground and after bowing to the audience he immediately proceeds to cause a number of chairs to mysteriously appear on the stage. He sits down on one of them and as he rises the audience is amazed at the fact that he leaves an exact counterpart of himself sitting in the chair. The same phenomenal result is attained as the magician rapidly seats himself in the various chairs, and every chair is soon occupied by an animated counterpart of the magician himself. Each of these individuals is seen to have a musical instrument and at a signal from the leader they proceed to render a selection, after which they mysteriously disappear. It is unexplainable. Don't fail to see it. Admission 25 and 35 cents.

Not That Kind of a Woman.

A woman was taken before an Easton magistrate and asked her age. She said twenty-eight. The judge looked up and said: "Madam, you were before me ten years ago, and you gave the same age." Said the woman: "I do not doubt it. I am not a woman that will say one thing to-day and another thing to-morrow."

Accidentally Shot.

While gunning in the woods, near Aristes, Saturday, two boys, Oscar Leiby and John Knittle were badly wounded by the discharge of a gun. Leiby was shot in the neck and breast, while Knittle had a finger severed from his hand and was badly perforated with shot.

A man named James Dennis was killed on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, in White Haven, Friday night. Papers found in his pockets would indicate that he either lived at Nescopeck or had relatives there. So far, however, all efforts to locate or identify him have proven futile. The body is being held in White Haven for further orders.
