STILL WATER.

The "Columbian" Scribe Visits the Pretty Little Village.

Nature was indeed most grand, eving made, as the COLUMBIAN representative, seated in a Bloomsburg & Sullivan Railroad car, rode up through the peturesque Fishingcreek valley last Friday morning. Being in the early part of the day, before Old Sol had reached a sufficient height to make its rays distressing, the trip was delightful. The trees were burdened with their foliage, the hedges and the grass were green, the gentle zephyr swayed the branches to and fro, and high above the musical rippling of old Fishingcreek, the birds poured forth their richest and the state of th their richest melody. In the more shady spots the morning dew sparkled on each sprig and blade of grass, and where the slanting rays of the sun caught them, some diamond drops glistened brightly as in reluctance to leave so fair a world after such brief existence.

After less than an hour's ride through this veritable dreamland, the train pulled up to the station and the genial conductor in charge of the train aroused the writer from the apathy into which he had lapsed, by shouting Stillwater. After a two-minutes' wait the train continued its journey and was soon lost to view.

After crossing the wooden bridge the first person met was Moses Mc-Henry. With a hearty grasp of the hand he bade me welcome and made the visit thoroughly enjoyable. We exchanged pleasant reminiscences of former days, and talked on the changes the past twelve years have wrought.

A walk through the village revealed many pretty homes. The houses are substantial and quite attractive in design. Tall, healthy looking trees lift their heads, and spread their branches in front of the residences, affording a nice shade, and the scene is one of comfort.

We were greatly surprised at the magnitude of the Stillwater Manufacturing Company's plant. This firm commenced business several years ago with only an ordinary equipment, but its success has been steady and continued, until to-day it is one of the finest plants in this section. With an employed force of sixteen hands, the mill is kept running day and night. Straw paper is made principally, and rag and manila. The capacity of the mill is 12000 pounds in twenty-four hours. In connection with a fine water power, steam power is also used. We cannot close this letter without making mention of O. D. McHenry's beautiful grove. We won't attempt to picture in words the magnificence of the place. Its wondrous beauty can be appreciated and understood only all, the improvements are most marked. Swings have been erected, large fish ponds built, and we were informed that Mr. McHenry is considering a scheme to illuminate the grounds.

Stillwater has two churches, Methodist and Christian. Services are held in each one every other Sunday, the hours arranged so as not to conflict.

Miss Miranda B. Hess is the efficient post mistress. She has been in charge of the office for the past 6 years She informed the writer that application had been made by the citizens for free mail delivery. She inclines to the belief that the adoption of the system will be a benefit to the office.

The writer was in that village only two hours, but in that brief interval met many familiar faces and shook hands with a lot of people whom he learned to know while a resident of the place.

As we stood on the station platform awaiting the arrival of the train we could not help but admire the pretty farm land. The Fishingcreek Valley is probably the finest and surest farming country to be found anywhere and the farmer here who attends to his business and understands cultivation of crops and is able to manage is certain of a good living and ought to save some money. You can find instances of successful farming here that cannot be surpassed anywhere on the globe, and it might do good to have them told about-just the plain, unvarnished truth, nothing but the factsmight serve to persuade the rising young generation that there is more honor and more money in the farm than in the store or workshop, or in the overcrowded professions.

WASHINGTON.

Washington, July 22, 1901.

Has New York a new democratic candidate for the Presidential nomination? That question is being asked in Washington since a prominent New York democrat dropped a quiet hint Col. Dan Lamont, who was Mr. Cleveland's private secretary during his first administration and Secretary of War during his second, and who has since been associated with ex-Secretary Whitney in various big business enterprises, might become democratic candidate for governor of New York, and it elected would become a candidate for the Presidential nomination. Of course, there are some substantial "ifs" to be considered in connection with this matter, but the whole Presidential question is one of "ifs" at this time. There are several reasons why Dan Lamont would make a strong candidate for any position he might aspire to. First and toremost is his personal popularity-a man who could spend eight years in Washington as prominently associated with administrations as he was with those of Cleveland without making an enemy, as Dar Lamont did, must necessarily be a remarkab'e sort of a man. The next reason in importance is that he would have the advice and active assistance of William C. Whitney, who has shown himself to be one of the shrewdest political managers the country has or ever had. This thing may be no more than the idle talk of a summer day, but if Dan Lamont becomes a candidate for the democratic nomination for governor of New York, he will get it, and he would probably be elected, and that would naturally make him a Presidential possibility.

There is little that is new in the exposure of the methods followed in the distribution of the patronage of the House, made this week by the National Civil Service Reform League, but it is none the less disgraceful to the republican majority of that body which allows the stealing, for that is the proper name for receiving money and giving no pretense of return for it. Men are carried on the House pay roll who never even come to Washing ton, but have checks for their salaries mailed to them, and others draw salaries for work which they have others to do, paying them only a small fraction of what they receive. The patronage of the House is not under the civil service law. It is controlled absolutely by the will of the majority, and that majority should be held responsible for the willful waste of the people's money, and especially those members who have held up the officers of the House and demanded that salaries be provided for their favorites should be held up to the public contempt they so richly deserve. The weak spot in the long and detailed exting in the names of looting Congressmen. This avoidance is so palpable that it is clearly intentional. Names of the little rascals. A proper exposure would have given the names of those who made the rascality possible, but perhaps the gentlemen who made the investigation for the C. S. R. L. were a little bit afraid to attack the Congressmen by name.

Probably if Commissioner Evans had made rulings that would have involved the paying out of the $5,468,-505.89, unexpended balance of the the $144,000,000 appropriated by Congress for pensions, which he has turned back into the Treasury, the Forty Fort..... ring of pension sharks would have been new Commissioner of Pensions.

The administration has at last found a place for Col. John S. Mosby as special agent of the General Land Office. It isn't a very big place, but it is understood that the necessities of Col. Mosby had become so pressing that he received the appointment with Representative Hooker, of Miss., who passed through Washington this week, does not endorse the idea of dropping silver, and he strongly deprecates the fight that is being made on Mr. Bryan. He said: "Silver has been part of the World's money since since Abraham paid 500 pieces of silver for the land in which to bury his wife Sarah. And why should there be this uproar against Mr. Bryan? He has not been forcing himself on the American people since the last election. It was his privilege to take up newspaper work. He had to do something to support himself and family, and has been going about it in a dignified manner. I served in Congress with Mr. Bryan, and there I gained high regard for his ability.

The long-talked of order of the Post master General regulating second-class mail was issued this week. It doesn' regulate anything, unless it be th have winked at evasions of the law governing second-class mail. It merely provides for an enforcement of the law. which the Postmaster General and every one of his subordinates have all along been under oath to support. If this order is strictly enforced it will simply prove what has been as plain as the nose on your face that there was plenty of law to shut fake publications out of second-class mail and only needed backbone on the part of officials to enforce it.

To Wothers of Large Families

In this workaday world few women are so placed that physical exertion is not constantly demanded of them in their daily life.

We make a special appeal to mothers of large families whose work is never done, and many of whom suffer, and suffer for lack of intelligent aid.

To women, young or old, rich or poor, we extend an invitation to accept free advice. Oh, women! do not let your lives be sacrificed when a word of your lives be sacrificed when a word of advice at the first approach of weakness, may fill your future years with healthy joy. Address a letter to Mrs. Pinkham's Laboratory, Lynn Mass., and you will not be disappointed.

"When I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was not able to do my housework. I suffered terribly at time of menstruation.

fered terribly at time of menstruation. Several doctors told me they could do nothing for me. Thanks to the Pink-ham advice and medicine I am now well, and can do the work for eight in the family.

"I would recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all mothers with large families."— Mrs. Carrie Belleville, Ludington, Mich
