

Michigan Woman Has Two Husbands

Man Who Married and Deserted Her Years Ago Reappears at Her Son's Death

Mrs. Harmon Alexander, who lives three miles south of Riga, Mich., has unknowingly become a bigamist, and legal steps will be at once taken by her to straighten out the entanglement.

CAME HOME MUCH WORSE FOR DRINK.

The son grew to manhood, and like hundreds of others, became discouraged with the humdrum of country life, and went to the Klondike about a year ago.

From that time on she had no peace of mind. Mrs. Alexander brooded over the possibilities of her husband's return.

The remains were received at Traverse City, the old family burying ground. Treadway, who had deserted her years before, did not hesitate to make himself known, says the Chicago Inter Ocean, and taunted her when he learned she had married again.

After a long talk with her present husband, Alexander, they decided it was best to separate. Alexander, who believed himself her lawful husband, deeded the farm to her and departed for the west.

ENTERTAINING A MONKEY.

The Simian Roysterer Got Tipped and Proved an Expensive Guest to a Party of Merry-makers.

A party of Parisians who had been lucky at Longchamp agreed to celebrate their good fortune with a little banquet. They were very merry, and, coming across a monkey on their way to the eating house, they entered into negotiations with its owner with the result that it was soon trotting along by their side.

As ill luck would have it, when the young men were in the middle of their repast the cord snapped and the monkey, now free, made up for lost time by rushing about the room in quite a frantic manner. In a few minutes the dinner service was reduced to a complete wreck.

After a discussion which lasted fully an hour it was finally agreed that the sum demanded by the proprietor of the restaurant should be paid to him, and so horrified were his customers at the responsibility which they had incurred through the ownership of the animal, whose naturally lively spirits had been so dangerously elated by that fatal drop of absinthe, that they presented it to him as well.

MUSIC SOOTHES SNAKES.

How a Pennsylvania Fiddler Hypnotized a Couple of Rattlers and Made Them Dance.

Many stories are written in which the charming of snakes by music is the leading feature, and every one who has been to a circus has seen a snake-charmer at work; but the circus snake has been deprived of its fangs and the other is fiction. But Gabe Crandall, a violinist, of Deep Hollow, Pa., tried the art upon two rattlers with such success that he escaped without being bitten.

He was walking along a narrow road out on the mountainside on his way to Halstead, where he was engaged to furnish music for a dance. When he reached a point in the road where it winds around a sharp spur and is narrow, he heard the warning noise of a rattlesnake, and, looking up, saw a big reptile directly in his path.

It occurred to him that he had read somewhere of persons charming snakes with music. Drawing his violin from its box, began to play. As the low notes of the violin were played the big snakes gradually uncoiled, as if they were coaxed by the music, and stretching themselves out, glided toward the fiddler. Closer came the snakes, and faster went the bow. When within two feet of the terrified musician the snakes halted, and, winding themselves up, lifted their heads close together.

New Musical Prodigy. "What do you think? A new prodigy has been discovered in Berlin. "Is that a fact? What in heaven's name can't it be?" "Just think of it! A 14-year-old girl has been found who cannot play on the piano."—Leslie's Weekly.

Another Mouth to Feed. "I've just got ter have mo' wages, missy." "But, Matilda, we are paying $18 a month now." "I've aware ob dat, missy, but I've gwine ter be married."—Detroit Free Press.

A Happy Term. A little four-year-old occupied an upper berth in the sleeping car. Awakening once in the middle of the night, his mother asked him if he knew where he was.

Point of View. Miles—I dread Rounder's stories on account of their length. Gilles—Yes, but there is one redeeming feature about them. They are fully as broad as they are long.—Chicago Daily News.

How to Cure Her. Jags—Doctor, my wife has insomnia very bad. She very often remains awake until two or three o'clock in the morning. What shall I do for her? Doctor—Go home earlier.—Baltimore World.

Absent, But Well Represented. "You miss your dear husband dreadfully, Mrs. Simpson?" "Yes, of course; but our youngest daughter is exactly like him. She tries to regulate the grammar and manners of the whole family."—Detroit Free Press.

Her Point of View. "What," queried the very young man, "can be worse than taking a kiss without asking for it?" "Asking for a kiss without taking it," replied the young woman who was doing her third season.—Chicago Daily News.

Look Ahead, Girls.

If young girls would look ahead it would sometimes save them from serious collision with the men they marry. It is here that ignorance is almost a crime. The young husband cannot understand it when the wife changes to a peevish, nervous, querulous woman. And the young wife does not understand it herself. She only knows that she is very miserable.

If ever there is a time when nature needs help it is when the young girl is adjusting herself to the new conditions of wifehood.
