During the progress of a play at the Opera House Friday evening, several persons in the audience showed very plainly that they were brought up in the wilderness. The snapping and cracking of peanut shells made it impossible to hear a word uttered by the performers. People who go to the Opera House to eat peanuts had better stay at home.

J. P. Fritz of Central, who is largely interested in the Pennsylvania Copper and Mining Company, was in town on Saturday, and had with him some fine specimens of copper ore taken from the property in Sugarloaf township. The stock is selling readily at one dollar per share, par value two dollars. They expect to advance the price soon.

Lowery Bros. Circus exhibited Monday afternoon and evening on the vacant lot opposite the D. L. & W. depot. The performance though witnessed by small audience on both occasions, was creditable. Easily the leading feature, though it didn't cost anything to see it, was the balloon ascension and parachute leap by Prof. David McDade. He ascended to an almost invisible height when he left the balloon. Before the parachute was spread out his descent was rapid, but when the folds opened up the speed was checked, he landed on the rear end of William Shaffer's lot on East street. The feat was witnessed by a good sized crowd.

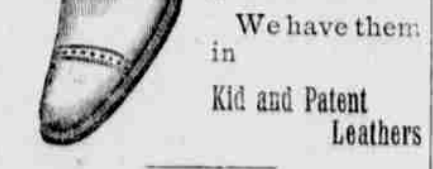

The Financial Record, of New York, date of September 18, contains an illustrated article on the Greene Consolidated Copper Company. One picture shows a group of visiting directors and shareholders at the Puertacitus store in the Cananea district, Mexico. Among them are C. C. Peacock, E. B. Tustin, John G. McHenry, A. C. McHenry, F. G. Yorks, Geo. S. Robbins, Myron I. Low, and W. H. Brooke. The company has declared a two per cent. dividend payable September 30th. The article states that the mines are growing richer and larger every day, and the smelters are producing upwards of 65,000 pounds of copper per day.

A Sensible Sunday Newspaper.

So Promises the Sunday "North American"
—The First Number of Which Will be
Out Next Sunday, Sept. 29th.

The "North American" announces that on September 29th it will begin the publication of a Sunday edition. Prevailing conditions demand that each metropolitan paper issue every day in the year, and the "North American" is sensibly obeying that demand. Rumors of this intention have already been heard and interest and speculation as to what it will be like is keen. The "North American" when it does anything, does it better than anyone else, and in the matter of a Sunday paper the same rule is expected to apply.

For one thing, the "North American" promises that its Sunday edition will be "different." The standard of text and illustration will be as high as that of any monthly magazine. It will not be "cheap" in any sense. It will not magnify the trivial, neither will it make heroes out of the silly and commonplace. The "North American's" motto is "A sensible Sunday newspaper," and if it is such, it certainly will be different and welcome.

It will strive, of course, to be interesting and entertaining. That goes without saying. The special writers and artists are of the first rank and the magnificent mechanical equipment of the "North American" insures perfect printing.

As to the details of the paper itself this much is known. There will be four colored supplements, in addition to the news sections and sheet music. There will be a supplement of eight pages in color, devoted exclusively to women's interests, a comic section of four pages in color, and a sixteen-page supplement in color, explaining the involved and varied processes of making a newspaper. The sheet music will be like that on sale in music stores, in every particular. The first Sunday "North American" will probably consist of 76 pages, of which 32 will be used for news.
