Washington, Nov. 18, 1901. It is a well recognized fact that the 'resident's civil service reform alone could have been quite sufficient to ave prevented his receiving the viceresidential nomination, could the party leaders have foreseen that the ame would come when he would succeed to the presidency. It is now resorted that he proposes to outdo Mr. Cleveland in his promotion of the reform, and that, not only has he signiaed his desire for resignations from some of the party's tavorites, because cal a politician to believe that the derules, but he proposes to extend the classified list to include the laborers that a strong rap at the trusts will ng of including the entire consular service.

As soon, however, as congressmen discovered that these were the only posiuons which their influence could secure for their constituents they inasted upon naming all the laborers and then exerted their further influence to have their nominees assigned to clerical work. This custom is now general throughout the government service and accounts for Maclay, of he Schley-Sampson controversy tame, seing carried on the roles of the Navy Department as a laborer. It is now believed that the President will undertake to satisfy Western Congressmen and their constituents by a forcible recommendation of legislation designed to curtail the power of the trusts and by the exploitation of one or more reciprocity treaties. No Caterpillars Next Year.

Those whose trees have suffered during the summer from the plague of caterpillars may breathe a sigh of relief, for State Entomologist Smith assures them that there is no danger of another invasion of the pest next summer. NEW TREATY SIGNED

Canal Convention With Great Britain Ready.

UNITED STATES GIVEN FREE HAND.

Lord Pauncefote and Secretary Has Put Names and Seals to the Substitute For Old Clayton-Bulwer Agreement.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 .- The new Hay-Pauncefote treaty relating to the construction by the United States of a transisthmian canal was signed in se cret at the state department yester-No unusual formality marked the ceremony of giving life to this notable agreement. In fact, it was believed that it would not be signed until after Secretary Hay's return from New York, where he will spend today and tomorrow. Lord Pauncefote, the British embassador, has been indisposed. and his appearance at the state department was a surprise even to the officers there.

The signatures of the secretary of state and the British embassador were attached to the convention shortly after 12 o'clock. Lord Pauncefote came to the department about five minutes past noon, accompanied by Mr. Percy Wyndham, the second secretary of the British embassy. He expressed a desire to proceed with the ceremony of signing, and Mr. Hay, very much gratified over the opportunity to do so, sent for Sidney Smith, the chief of the diplomatic bureau, and directed him to bring the American copy of the treaty, of which he is the custodian, to the diplomatic reception room. Mr. Wyndham brought the British copy.

The ceremony of signing took place at the long table in the diplomatic room, where many other important international agreements have been per-

Lord Pauncefote and Mr. Hay had a pleasant chat for a few minutes, and then the embassador returned to the British embassy, taking with him the official British copy of the treaty. The copies are identical, except that the name of the president of the United States is first mentioned in the American copy and the name of King Edward takes precedence in the British

The new treaty is practically the same as the old one, except that it contains the following changes, necessary to make it acceptable to the senate:

"It is specifically stated that it supersedes and takes the place of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty.

"It gives to the United States power to guarantee the neutrality of the canal at all times.

"It removes the restriction on the power of the United States to fortify the canal.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Nov. 19.-The girls of the village of Great Bend, Pa., some time ago organized an antitobacco league, one of the principles of which was that no member should associate with a young man who used tobacco in any form. The young men of the village accordingly unanimously resolved to go with none but out of town girls. After standing this neglect for some time the club at its last meeting capitulated and disbanded.

A Contradicted Adage.

The adage, "Happy is the bride that the sun shines on," is one that is unknown in many lands, A Breton bride takes it as a bad sign when the day of her wedding dawns bright and sunny. Rain on her marriage morn is held to signify that all her tears are shed, and that she will, therefore, have a happy married life. A New York daily prints the following: "The earl of Simbrisk called the day before the wedding the weeping day, and the bride and her girl friends weep as much as possible, with the idea of getting the mourning of life over, so that only what is joyful may remain. In some countries this result is attained by sousing the bride with water. The Greeks think that a thorough drenching of the bride will bring her lasting good fortune."

Consul Dickinson Asks For Troops

to Release Miss Stone. SOFIA, Bulgaria, Nov. 20.-It is reported that Mr. Dickinson, the United States diplomatic agent here, has informed the government of Bulgaria that the abductors of Miss Ellen M. Stone and Mme. Tsilka, with their captives, are concealed in a defile of the Belleritza mountains near Smotchno, district of Dubnitza, and has requested that troops be sent to surround the place and liberate the captives. Both Mr. Dickinson and the Bulgarian foreign office decline to confirm or deny this report. Nevertheless it is believed that Mr. Dickinson, persuaded of the impossibility of coming to terms with the brigands and relying upon his belief that they will not harm to women their captives if troops are employed against them, has, after consulting with Washington, decided upon this move.

Only eight bandits now guard Miss Stone, and some of these are known to sympathize with her.

About a fortnight ago Mr. Dickinson approached the foreign office and proposed this same plan, but its carrying out was abandoned because of the un- lutes certainty of the location of the bandits.

Woman is often referred to by man as "doublin: his joys and halving his sorrows." That may be complimentary but it would seem to be rather hard on the woman. For in plain terms it means that where things are going well with the man his wife makes them go better. But when things are going ill with him, he expects the wife to share half his burden. And there's more truth than poetry in this presentation of masculine selfishness. Men don't appreciate the fact that the strain of motherhood alone is a burden bigger than all the loads that rest upon male shoulders.
