Hogs Catch Smallpox-

The frightful discovery has been made that hogs are susceptible to the contagion of smallpox of the character peculiar to man. Forty-seven carcases have been held at Buffalo because they exhibited all the indications of this contagious disease. This may account for the difficulty which health officials have experienced in several places in checking the ravages of smallpox. The hogs which an inspector of the Bureau of Animal Industry has found to be affected came from Louisville; but there is no reason to believe that the malady has been confined to Kentucky hogs. Since these animals have no doubt been infected from human sources, it is rational to assume that hogs with smallpox may in turn convey the infection to persons. This condition calls for an extension of the safe guards which have been depended on to restrict the epidemics of smallpox. Whether other animals than hogs are liable to take the disease is still to be determined.

Telegraph Pole by Express-

A telegraph pole, one would think, is the last article in the world that an express company would undertake to handle, yet such, and an iron one at that, is what Howe and Polk, of Danville, shipped to New York by the United States Express company. The pole is a full-sized one, skeleton in form, known as the Electric Tripartite steel pole, the sole manufacture of which is in the hands of Howe & Polk. The pole is a sample consigned to Oliver Wethered, Switchmen's Lane, London, England. In order to catch one of the outgoing steamers it was necessary to make the best possible time between Danville and New York, hence the shipment was made by express. The first of these poles was manufactured at Howe & Polk's last summer. The pole is 30 to 32 feet in length, consisting of 3 bars of "U" iron 2 by 21 inches fastened together by seven spreaders or collars and is chant marine. The capacity of the the invention of G. V. A. Separate Cars for Sick-

The railroad companies are planning to set apart cars for passengers afflicted with contagious diseases. And why need we stand it? We can Humanitarianism rejects the idea of see how the subsidy is affecting Engsubjecting such unfortunate patients to needless discomfort when traveling, but there is equally an obvious duty to the healthy passengers who must perforce travel on the same trains, particularly now that winter is setting in.

Orippling the Railroad.

The P. & R. officials are anticipating that the railroad will be considerably crippled for the next two weeks, on account of the wholesale vaccination of the railroad hands, and the consequent sore arms. On the Shamokin division of the P. & R. alone, Dr. Brothers is vaccinating 1700 hands, while on the main line the number is consequently larger.

National Issues Discussed by National Leaders.

HANNA ON SHIPPING SUBSIDY BILL

The Senator Says the $200,000,000 Now Paid Annually to Foreign Shipowners Is a Drain No Nation but Ours Could Stand.

BOSTON, Dec. 11,-In celebration of its twenty-fifth anniversary the Boston Merchants' association met at the Vendome last evening and were entertained by four men of national reputation with spirited addresses, chiefly along political lines. Postmaster General Charles Emory Smith spoke on reciprocity; Hon. Kogaro Takahira, the Japanese minister, upon the subject of "Commercial Relations;" Senator Marcus A. Hanna on the ship subsidy bill and Hon. Henry Watterson of Kentucky on "Kentucky and Massachusetts." These were the principal guests, but at the tables were many men of state prominence and also Hon. P. A. Collins, mayor elect of Boston; Congressmen Conry and Naphen and Marlon E. Taylor of Louisville, Ky. Simple decorations of a floral character besides the American and Japanese flags lent beauty to the banquet hall, while orchestral music added to the interest.

Senator Hanna was the last speaker and confined his remarks entirely to the question of ship subsidy and the latest bill for that purpose which has been presented to congress. He referred to the fact that the American nation is today supreme in the agricultural and industrial business of the world, but is at the very lowest in regard to its merchant marine. He referred first to the growth of the merchant marine on the great lakes and said that this had been accomplished, first, by our natural advantages, and, second, by the protection given by the United States government.

The coastwise trade of this country has grown almost as rapidly under the same provisions and the same protection. In 1789 the First congress passed laws allowing the increase of the mer-American vessels in the foreign trade at that time was 123,893 tons. After ten years it had increased to 534,000 tons. In 1821 the American ships carried 88 per cent of the foreign commerce. In 1826 it reached the high water mark and carried 92 5-10 per cent, In 1861 was the highest point we ever reached, when the American ships carried 2,396,894 tons to foreign ports, and then it began to decrease. It decreased building was erected by contract and 40 per cent from 1861 to 1865. From cost the state $16,300. The Mauch the highest point in 1861, when we caruntil today American ships only carry 8 per cent of the foreign tonnage.

We are building a magnificent navy and shall continue until we are second to no nation. We should also build something for that navy to defend. The amount now paid annually by American merchants into the pockets of foreign shipowners is $200,000,000. No country on the face of the globe could stand that drain but the United States. land and her war with South Africa. Her vessels have been taken for transporting her troops and munitions, while the raw materials from our mines, etc., are lying on our docks awaiting transportation abroad. Mr. Hanna spoke of the bill introduced into congress last year and declared that the bill that was presented last Monday had been simplified and modified to meet the objections to the former one.

Mrs. Dale Not Guilty. NEW YORK, Dec. 10.-The inquest into the death of little Emeline Dale, whose mother, Elizabeth Howe Dale, has been under arrest in Hoboken under suspicion of having murdered the child on the morning of Nov. 19 in Busch's hotel, ended last night and resulted in a verdict exonerating the mother. There was new and strong evidence brought into the case at the last moment which tended largely toward the finding of the jury. It was given by a man who heard the cries of the child before even the mother did and who was an unwilling eavesdropper to what occurred in Mrs. Dale's room.
