TEACHERS' INSTITUTE LEUTURE COURSE.

We are pleased to announce that there is a rare treat for all lovers of good, wholesome entertainment, in the excellent course which has been provided. Contrary to the custom in recent years, there will be four entertainments instead of three.

On Monday evening, December 1, Wm. Hawley Smith who for many years was the traveling partner of Bill Nye, will deliver his popular lecture entitled "We the People." Mr. Smith is an exceptionally talented artist, and is especially a master of dialect and impersonation. The real effect of his selections lies in their naturalness. There is nothing stilted about them Art in his case only adds lustre to natural talent. That he is a finished elocutionist, skilled in all the rules and practices of that difficult science, is true, but he is more than that; he is a faithful interpreter of nature through the marvelous fineness and complexity of his own being. He possesses the soul of a true poet, and so great is his power of presenting the multitudinous phases of human feeling and action that representation seems to clothe itself with reality as we listen to him. On Tuesday evening, 'The Rogers-

Grilley Concert Company' assisted by the well known tenor Prof. Thomas R. Williams will give an entertainment of a high order. There has been no entertainment of recent years more successful in satisfying the better class of lyceum patrons than the Rogers-Grilley Recitals. They are both earnest students in their respective lines, and their many seasons' experience with the leading artists and combinations has fitted them to give an entertainment which is not only artistic. but at the same time highly entertaining.

No adequate description can be given of the beauties embodied in the artistic rendition of gems of literature when interpreted with the accompanipremium to advance paying subscribment of the harp. The instrument is particularly adapted to the human News. Our gift was only for one year, and we took it for granted that each voice, and their selections given torecipient of this gift would understand gether produce an impression which lingers long in the memory. Add to this Prof. Williams' beautiful tenor that the arrangement was only for that voice and the entertainment is superb. It is an intellectual entertainment for was discontinued at the expiration of quick-witted, broad-minded, liberal that time, unless they desired to rethinking, cultivated audiences. Without decrying any of the rest of your talent, I am very sure the pleasantest and most profitable evening in the Course will be the one when Prof. John B. DeMott occupies the platform. I know of no man in America, with his power of popularizing science; no man who can make instruction so pleasant that it seems like entertainment, until the hearer suddenly realizes that he knows a hundred fold more than he did an hour ago, and yet is not conscious of having made any effort to acquire knowledge. There should not be a vacant chair in the house the night of Prof. DeMott's lecture. I have followed him in a great many lecture courses, and without exception his audiences have been cordial and enthusiastic in their praises of the man, his charming personality the audience in continual laughter and his splendid work.

"Laugh and Grow Fat"

You are bound to do so if you "A Plea for Posterity; or the Problem | There are more real laughs to the minute than in any other farce comedy on the road this season. In addition to a good plot, funny and laughable situations, there is a strong vaudeville bill in which the members acquit themselves with great honors. "On His Honeymoon" is a by word in all towns visited by the company this season and the management will find it necessary to put out three companies next season in order to fill all time offered for the appearance of the play. There is but one company out this season and it will be impossible to play any return dates much as they are desired and those failing to see the play while in this city next week will have to wait till next season. Hans Schnitzel and his lovely bride Araminta keep all evening. An evening is well spent in seeing "A Dutchman's Honeymoon." It appears for one night Monday Nov. 24 at the Grand Opera House. Seats can now be secured to avoid the rush.
