

Ears Grow During Life

These Attachments Do Not Attain Full Size Until Death Comes.

The systematic examination of more than 40,000 pairs of human ears in England and France has resulted in some interesting conclusions. For one thing, it is accretained that the ear continues to grow in the latter decade of life-in fact it appears never to stop growing until death. If one will take the trouble to look around in an assemblage of people, as at church, he will discover that old folks have ears considerably larger than those of the middle-aged. A woman who has small shell like ears at 20 years of age will be very apt to possess medium-sized ears at 40 and large ears at 60.

Why ears should go on growing all one's life any more than noses is a mystery. There are a good many other points about them that are instructive, their shapes being markedly persistent through heredity.

An ear will be handed down so to speak from father to son for generation after generation with comparatively little modification. Some athorities on criminology assert that criminals are very apt to have a peculiar kind of ear, which is recognized by an expert in such matters.

There is probably nobody in the world who has a pair of ears perfectly matched; in most people the two differ perceptibly, not only in shape but also in size. Frequently they are not placed precisely alike on the head. a little angrier I'm going to play go-The age of a person may be judged ing into the lion's cage.—Spare Mo- ter having rendered judgment in favor with great accuracy by the ears, which ments. after youth is past assume an increasing harshness of contour. A pretty woman whose first youth has departed may not show the fact in other ways, but these telltale features will surely tell the story of the flight of time. Then there is the little wrinkle that comes just in front of each ear during the thirties-a fatal and ineradicable

Near the top of each ear just within the downturned edge and slightly toward the back, will be found, if one feels for it, a small lump of cartilage. This is a remnant of what was originally the tip of the ear, when ever so long ago that organ in our remote ancestors had a point to it. Most of the carefully and cannot find the slightest apes today have pointed ears, but in trace of a plot. human beings the upper edge of the organ has in course of ages been folded over so as to cover the real tip .-Saturday Evening Post.

An Odd Disease.

Hoosier Doctors Baffled by One Called "Gas Eye."

A Dablin (Ind.) dispatch to the New York World states that a new and pecular disease has taken hold of the en-ployees of the pumping stations throughout the gas belt, and for the want of a better name it is called the "gas eye." The pain caused by this affliction is said to be of the severest, and physicians are unable to determine the cause of the disease or to prescribe a remedy.

The men working around the big compressors are surrounded more or less by escaping gas all the time.

Thier eyes become inflamed, and it is almost impossible to bear the light. Not all the men become afflicted, but those employed in the compressor rooms have periodical attacks of the disease in the severest form imaginable. Permanent injury to the eyesight has resulted in several cases.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address, F. J. CHENEY & CO.,

WASHINGTON.

From our Regular Correspondent.

Washington, December 29, 1902. There is every reason to believe that President Roosevelt now faces the most serious crisis in his political career and the fear that he is about to make a grave error is by no means confined to his political opponents, When Germany and Great Britain assented to the proposition of the United States, that the Venezuelan situation be submitted to a court of arbitration, it was supposed that the Hague Court would be called upon to decide the many questions involved. There is reason to pelieve, too, that this was the preference of Great Britain but Germany objected and as a result an informal proposition was made to Mr. Roosevelt to act as arbitrator. As is customary in diplomacy this proposition was made informally with a view to permitting the President to decline if he saw fit without refusing the formal invitation of the powers. He replied, informally of course, but in such terms as to leave it evident that, while somewhat reluctant, he was not positively adverse to accepting the responsible position. That the President was greatly flattered by the offer, has been evident to all who have come in contact with him. As a result, the formal offer has now been forwarded to Washington and even if the President determines to decline the responsibility he cannot do it as gracefully as when the offer had been made only informally.

At the Cabinet meeting on Tuesday, the question as to whether or not the President ought to arbitrate the Venezuelan question was extensively discussed and your correspondent learns from an authorative source that Secretaries Hay, Root and Hitchcock earnestly opposed his so doing, while Secretaries Shaw and Wilson and Postmaster General Payne advocated his assuming the responsibility. For Piles. Mr. Knox's position cannot be learned and Mr. Moody was absent. The argument of the opposition is that afof the Europeans, as it seems likely he would have to do, the President powers might deem necessary for the contrary, the arbitration is submitted find out how much alimony he can pay. to the Hague, the President would maintain a neutral position and could promptly protest at any course which appeared to involve violation of the Monroe Doctrine. No decision was reached even after the Cabinet meet-

Salt pork is a famous oldfashioned remedy for consumption. "Eat plenty of pork," was the advice to the consumptive 50 and 100 years ago.

Salt pork is good if a man can stomach it. The idea behind it is that fat is the food the consumptive needs

Scott's Emulsion is the modern method of feeding fat to the consumptive. Pork is too rough for sensitive stomachs. Scott's Emulsion is the most refined of fats, especially prepared for easy digestion.

Feeding him fat in this way, which is often the only way, is half the battle, but Scott's Emulsion does more than that. There is something about the combination of cod liver oil and hypophosphites in Scott's Émulsion that puts new life into the weak parts and has a special action on the diseased lungs.

Senator Jones has asked that the Attorney General be required to submit to the Senate certain papers he is alleged to have received when the coal strike was at its highth and which, it is claimed, furnished ample proof of the fact that an anthracite coal trust exists and that the coal companies are doing bussiness in violation of the law. The President has settled, it is believed, the question of privilege between the Senate and the House into a broker with the result that he volved in the ratification of the Cuban treaty by sending the treaty to the Senate only and advising members of the House that when it is ratified he will ask Congress to pass enabling legislation.
