

TO MAKE THE SUSQUEHANNA NAVIGABLE-

Navigation Committee Meets at Harrisburg. and Considers Plan Feasible.

The subject of converting the Susquehanna river into a navigable waterof the Navigation Committee at the Board of Trade in Harrisburg last Friday night.

A large number of letters were read from business men residing along the and North branches at Sunbury and reserved approval of the scheme and gratifying estimates of the amount of their respective localities, and in the discussion of this feature of the value stress was laid upon the benefit that would accrue to the public in conditions of such freight congestions that now proves such an obstacle to the shipping of coal from the anthracite fields.

The cost of the improvement of the waterway, it was argued by some of the speakers, would speedily be made up by the business contributed to the river. An illustration of this was cited in the case of the Monongahela, which since it was opened has ever heard of any important Eskimo reaped an enormous income in the way of freights and tonnage.

QUESTION OF EXPENSE.

Department of Internal Affairs, and was formerly engaged in engineering, said he had been in conversation for any jail. with a government engineer who had made a thorough inspection of the territory traversed by the Susquehanna between the point of junction and the mouth. The engineer, he said, had declated as a result of his examination a belief that the conversion of the stream to navigable uses was entirely feasible, and that the question was merely one of expense. He did not give this opinion officially, was highly gratifying to those interested in the plan of making the Susquehanna an artery of commerce.

As a result of the discussion it was decided to have made a summary of the reports contained in the letters from points along the river. These will be forwarded to Colonel McKen- the streets.
