CLOTHES FOR BIG MEN.

Everything from Hate to Shoes Has to Be Made Specially for the Extra Large Ones.

A giant wanting to refurnish his wardrobe in Chicago would probably have to have most of his outfit made to order, although by a judicious huntmg around he might find many things ready made on sale—that is, if he were Bot too much of a giant, says the Chi-

Most of the department and readynade goods stores do not carry men shoes in a larger size than 12. The biggest hat is seven and three-quarters in derby and soft styles, while in silk and opera hats seven and one-half is the largest. In socks 12 is the largest size, and in shirts 17 and 18. Fat men have made it necessary for the stores to earry a size of collar far in excess of the size ordinarily worn, many of the stores carry size No. 19 in collars. In gloves nine and a half is the biggest earried in most stocks. People who gaze at the feet of Chicago policemen know well that a No. 12 foot in the pofice department would be considered capable of wearing Cinderella's glass slipper, and they wonder where the hundreds of blue-coated guardians of the peace get shod. One store makes a specialty of shoeing the police department, and it carries shoes that run in size up to 14. Almost all of the Chieago coppers can get fitted in this store, but some few require even a bigger shoe than 14, and these must have their shoes ordered for them from the factory.

The policemen who have hands to match their feet have a favorite glove dealer who carries gloves in sizes ranging up to 12, and the giant might get a glove that he could wear.

THE HEIGHT OF FORMALITY. As le Was Reached in a Domestie Matter Between "High-Falutin" Families.

With the exception of a substitution of names, the incident herewith retated is absolutely true, says the Phila-delphia Record. It illustrates the fondness for the initials and hyphenated names displayed by some people who are socially ambitious, and also the ridicule that sometimes falls to the lot of the "high-falutin" ones. A Germantown woman, wishing to get a reference from the former employer of a nurse girl, wrote as follows in the third person: "Mrs. O. Whata-Chump would esteem it a great favor if Mrs. John J. Smith would furnish a reference as to character and ability of Mary A. Brady, who formerly lived with Mrs. John J. Smith. Mrs. O. Whata-Chump has many social engagements which prevent her from giving her personal attention to her children, and it is very necessary that her maid should be thoroughly effi-When Mrs. John J. Smith received this communication, in spirit of fun and sarcasm she framed the following reply: "Mrs. J. Jones-Smith presents her compliments to Mrs. O. Whata-Churm and cheerfully recommends Miss M. Agnes Brady as an efficient nurse maid. Miss M. Agnes Brady has in the past carefuly catered to the wants of Master L. Barrett Jones-Smith, and Master Jo Jones-Smith, Jr. Furthermore, Miss A. Ag-

& Luxury in Hothouse Vegetables That Is for the Very Rich Only.

"I suppose the costllest of all vegetables sold here at this time of the year, or at any time, for that matter." said a dealer in fine fruits and vegetables, reports the New York Sun, would be the hothouse asparagus that has just come in. It is produced by a grower in Illinois. This retails now at ten dollars a dozen bunches, or one dollar a bunch. Each bunch is likeby a grower in Illinois. This retails of these some are sure to be pretty slender, so that you don't get very much asparagus for a fiollar.

"Take the stalks big and little, as they run, and they cost you about 15 cents apiece. The prices for this asparagus hold up pretty well till say along in March, when they get down to about $7.59 a dozen.

"There is more of such asparagus sold than formerly, but altogether there is not a very great quantity, though there are more people in New York now than ever before well able to buy whatever luxuries they want, and they buy costly fruits and vegetables more freely than they ever did."

Fortunate Forgiveness.

A man while suffering from influenza in South London, was surprised by the sudden appearance in his room of his wife, who, 20 years ago eloped to California. Falling on her knees she implored his forgiveness, the man with whom the took flight, after making a fortune, having recently died. The husband forgave her. She nursed him so well that he recovered, but she eaught the influenza herself and died, leaving him $300,000.

Hequeathed Their Skulls.

Singular are the requests sometimes made to genius. Prof. Wildez, of Cornell university, recently asked Gabrielle CAnnunzio if he would be willing to lequeath his skull after death to a colection of the crania of celebrated hen it is proposed to form in connection with the phrenological museum of the university. The journal states that D'Annunzio has now for-mally made this strange bequest, as have also been and Verestchagin.

Dueling is made a safe pastime by Dr. Devilers, of Paris, who has pro-vided a kid of chalk bullet that feaves only a harnless mark where it hits.

PRUNING FRUIT TREES.

Every Variety Presents Its Peculiar Problems Which Must Be Studted by the Grower,

Every kind of tree or plant, in fact, every individual, presents its own peruliar problems to the pruner. Hence no arbitrary rules can be given. To to the work most judiciously the opcrater must understand the principles involved, then apply them to each case. Skill in pruning can come only with experience and practice. Perhaps the most important thing to observe the manner in which the fruit is borne. For instance, an apple or pear tree bears its fruit mostly on "fruit spurs," and so would not be pruned in the same way as a peach tree, which bears its fruit only on last season's growth. A quince tree, which produces its fruit on the tips of the growth made the present season, would naturally be pruned differently from either an apple or peach tree. Likewise, the correct pruning of grapes is based on the fact that the shoots of the present season produce this year's crop. The same principle in pruning holds true throughout the whole list of fruitsthat is, the manner in which the fruit is borne should govern the manner of pruning.

. In a general way, it may be said in regard to tree fruits that all dead branches should be removed and the tops of the trees be kept sufficiently open to admit an abundance of sunlight for the coloring of the fruit. Reasonably open tops are also of great advantage in spraying the trees and in har sting the fruit. The natural half of the tree should suggest the fruit to be adopted by the pruner. In other words, a tree the branches of which naturally droop cannot well be pruned to an upright form, and a tree with a strong tendency toward forming an upright head cannot readily be made to assume a decidedly spreading form. Of course these natural tendencies can be influenced in a measure by the manner of pruning, but they cannot be entirely overcome. The tops should be kept symmetrical and as well balanced as possible. The pruning of the various kinds of small fruits is based on the same general principles as the pruning of fruit trees-that is, the manner in which the fruit is borne and the character of the growth should govern the method of pruning .- Farmers' Bulletin, No. 161.

BRACING CORNER POSTS.

Expansion Spring in Wire Fencing the Only Device That Gives Genuine Satisfaction.

I have used almost all kinds of devices for bracing the corner post and have found all a failure to a certain extent until I commenced to use the expansion spring, which takes all the strain from the post in winter and keeps your fence tight in summer. In building 100 rods of fence, first set the corner post good and solid; anchor with stone three or four feet under ground, which is far better than the brace, using the expansion spring in connection with each wire, every 25 rods. At the end of 50 rods set another post and anchor one way to draw the first 50 rods, as that is as much as can be drawn at once one wire at a time. When each wire is drawn tight enough to cause the springs to expand one-half inch between each coil, it is tight enough Fasten wire, remove ratchet, and the same with each wire. When you have finished the first half fasten the wires to middle post, and go ahead with the last the same as the first, placing the springs 25 rods apart, using the ratchet for tightening the wires; fasten the wires to your posts, then place stays of some kind to keep hogs from spreading them apart. This is one of the best methods for using straight wire that any farmer can use. The cut shows mode of building and anchoring; C. P., corner posts. The illustration shows first and last half of fence, with springs in the middle .- P. V. Savage. in Ohio Farmer.

Sterilizing Garden Soll.

The practice of sterilizing the soil for greenhouse or cold-frame work is coming more and more in vogue with large market gardeners. Exposure to steam heat, which raises the temperature to above 150 or 160, or even 180, degrees will kill the germs of damping-off, blights, rots, etc. W. W. Rawson says he can now grow better crops on sterilized soil under glass than outdoors. A writer in Farm and Fireside says: "We who have not the facilities for sterilizing the soil in this manner must content ourselves with changing the soil on the greenhouse benches every year, getting a new supply where we be-lieve it to be uninfected from such disease germs."

The Odor of Cow's Milk.

A German professor has experimented to determine the effects of various foods on the odor given off by cows' milk. Some cows always give milk of strong or disagreeable flavor no matter what may be the food, which is apt to cause digestive troubles. In vain the food is changed-the flavor persists. The taste of the milk depends in a certain measure on the cow's feed, Boars the but in a degree more important on the Signature peculiarities of the animal.

N. J. Bachelder, late master; The grange has experienced a prosperous year in New Hampsbire, and the present membership of 25,109 shows a net gain over all losses of 962. The 6,000 meetings held have been well attended. For fourteen years the Grange Mutual Fire Insurance company has been maintained. The business has annually increased, and the property upon which policies are now in force amounts to about $6,000,000. All losses and expenses have been promptly paid, making a saving of over $100,000 over the cost of insurance upon the same property in stock companies. The establishment of rural free mail delivery is one of the grandest achievements of the Order. In New Hampshire ninety-five routes have been established, exceeded only by 113 in Maine and 134 in Connecticut. New Hampshire stands second in the number of pieces of mail handled on its rural routes during the year, reaching 4,017,612. The life insurance branch of the order is reported as successful, the present number of members being about 600.

The Grange as an Educator.

Worthy Master W. F. Hill of the Penesylvania state grange, referring to the educational work of the grange in his annual address, said it affords the very best opportunity for the farmer to develop into a man of culture and of broad mind. The exchange of ideas, the social intercourse it provides for the farmer and his family, the valuable discipline of this well established, conservative organization, are all strong factors in building a better, stronger rural citizenship. Who is it that has membership in the grange that is not conscious of its having made him a stronger man, with more love for our beloved country and all her grand and noble institutions? Who is there among the intelligent citizens of our commonwealth who loves the state and glories in her development but honors and respects the grange for achievements and possibilities in the education and elevation of our rural population?

Unbinsed Testimony.

Mr. E. P. Powell, the well known agricultural writer, has this to say of the grange in the Tribune Farmer: "I am not a member of a grange, but I believe in them with all my heart. They are doing an immense amount of work, and it is of a very wholesome sort. The social influence is as good as the educative. It has the advantage of bringing together husbands and wives, as all clubs should. The grange work, so far as I have watched it, has been invariably for sound legislation, for honest elections, for progressive farm work; for improved institutes and for the general social welfare of farm neighborhoods."

The Future of Agriculture.

As I view the future of agriculture in America the organization of farmers is a necessity for their success. Study, investigation, the taking, reading, writing for the agricultural press become a matter of necessity and duty which we cannot ignore or escape if the American farmer hopes to hold his relative position in the industrial interests of our matchless country .-Aaron Jones, Master National Grange.

Under Grange Auspices.

The Connecticut Dairymen's association, by invitation of Lyme grange, held an institute at Hamburg with large attendance. Vice President Birge gave an address on "The Future of Cattle Feeding In New England," Secretary Noble on "Dairying," Professor L. A. Clinton, "How to Increase Profits of the Dairy;" Cattle Commissioner Averill, "Foot and Mouth Disease."

Our Responsibility.

R. R. Galusha, lecturer of the Vermont state grange, says, "The object of our association primarily is greater development socially and educationally, but it follows as naturally as the seasons that with increased knowledge there is an increased responsibility along all lines related to human wel-

The Soil of the Mind.

The laws of growth and development require the constant stirring of the soil of the mind, and today there is no organization capable of doing so much for the future of the state through its members as the grange.-Maine Farm-

In Maine the state grange pays the traveling expenses of one delegate to the state grange meeting from each suberdinate or Pomona grange. His other expenses are borne by the grange sending him. Good idea!

More inquiries concerning grange organization have come to us in the last month than in any three preceding ones. The necessity and advantage of organization can no longer be ignored. says Farm and Fireside.

National Master Jones in his annual address took a strong stand for weekly meetings of the grange on the ground that we need all the chance for education we can have. The literary work should be strengthened.

Hon. N. J. Bachelder, lecturer of the national grange, is now governor of the state of New Hampshire. May he make as good a governor as he has lecturer.
