WEALTH THROWN AWAY.

Much of Value Is Cast Into the Waste Baskets of a Large City Every Day.

"In the waste baskets in St. Louis," said a business man the other day, reports the Republic, "there is wealth enough to make any one man independ-ently rich for life." "Come again," said the doubting friend, "Rich for life," went on the other. "You don't see how? Of course, you don't. I do. "Did you ever consider the thousands and thousands of waste baskets that are emptied by the janitors in offices every night? Well, suppose you could get all that paper. Your income every day would be up in the hundreds of dollars. That is, if you simply sold the paper to pulp mills.

But supppose you could add to that tidy income by possessing yourself of the stamps that are dropped into the waste baskets by mistake. There would be another fine item in your income.

"Suppose, then, if your conventional mind will permit you to stray so far affeld, that a man could buy all the business secrets that he could find lying in waste baskets. He would have, I assure you, such a lever that he could pry solid gold into his bank account.

"Why, man, there is more money going to waste in the waste baskets in this town every day than many men make in a long life of hard work. I wish I could buy the privilege of taking all the stuff. That's all."

PHILADELPHIA'S FLY-KILLER.

Gathers Thousands Into a Room and Exterminates Them with Persian Powder.

Philadelphia has employed a man to kill flies. He is an expert in the slaughter of these pests and has no compunctions concerning their extermination. In common with the head of the Philadelphia health department, he believes that files have no value as scavengers, but that, like rats and mosquitoes, they are active enemies of the human race, spreading a variety of dirt diseases and making epidemics possible, says the New York Evening World.

He regards the hole-in-a-piece-ofbread-over-a-goblet-of-molasses trap as a weak and ineffective device; fly papers are to his mind expensive and valueless, dishes of fly poison worse than useless, screens merely a defensive appliance. His method is to make a chamber attractive to flies, gather thousands there, burn a handful of Persian powder in the chamber and exterminate his guests.

The undertaking seems a task for Hercules, but its profit promises to be

GRAND MARSHAL DONE FOR.

"When power-driven vehicles shall have superseded horse-drawn vehicles entirely, as no doubt, in the not far distant future, they will have done," said Mr. Gozzleton, according to the New York Sun, "what will become of the grand marshal? Will anything be devised that will enable him to shine with anything like his present glory?

"Now, with a broad, bright-colored sash worn diagonally across his manly bosom, and with a dahlia-like rosette pinned upon his breast, he rides grandly at the head of the procession mounted on a horse. What would a procession be without a grand marshal, and what would a marshal be without a horse? And what will he do when there are no horses?

"His prospect now is dim, indeed; but let us hope that, when the horseless age shall actually have come, some means will be found to preserve the glamour and the glory of the grand marshal."

NATURE SCULPTURE.

Ragged Outline of California Bowlder Bears Striking Likeness to George Washington.

One of the most remarkable pieces of nature sculpture in California is the George Washington rock, about 35 miles northwest of Los Angeles, in the "When are we going to get some Santa Susana mountains, says the Sun-real summer weather?" with em- set Magazine. Near this rock a two-Santa Susana mountains just outside Chatsworth Park. A chiseled monument could hardly bear truer likeness to George Washington than this chance picture in the ragged contour of a huge bowlder. Viewed from one point and points the rock is a shapeless mass. The image measures full 25 feet from chin to brow and is close to the top of the hill. Here is the plain, unadorned fact: Many of the cottagers leave their pet cats to starve. Persons residing in the vicinity the year round are witnesses. Sometimes the poor animals are left locked within the cottages, when the doors are barred and windows boarded. More often they wander the beach, wan ghosts of their old selves, picking up a scant living from fish, until cold weather puts an end to

WASHINGTON.

From our Regular Correspondent.

Washington, August 17, 1903. The personality of the democratic national ticket continues to be the most talked of political subject in Washington. When General Miles retired on August 8 and his retirement was announced by a stereotyped order, signed by Corbin and unaccompanied by a word of congratulation or commendation for his long and faithful services, the possibility of Gorman and Miles as the democratic nominees be came a subject of general discussion but soon reports began to come from the South which dissipated the idea that Miles could ever become a democratic candidate. It was shown that the Southerners had never forgiven Miles for putting Jefferson Davis in irons and in some cities of the South, Miles' retirement had been celebrated. In Atlanta, the state house had been decorated with flags and bunting in honor of the occasion.

It is generally held in Washington that Senator Gorman is today the strongest possibility and the Maryland statesman's friends maintain that, as leader of the minority in the Senate during the approaching session, Mr. Gorman will gain new laurels and will enter next summer's campaign with not only the confidence of his own party with the approval of that large element of the republican party which rebels at the "stand pat" policy of the administration and desires moderate tariff reform, especially in those schedules which have been raised to their present high altitude at the demand of the trusts. "Sound money and moderate tariff revision" is the platform for which Senator Gorman stands and it is evident from the attitude of the eastern press that he is regarded as a very strong candidate, by republicans as well as democrats.

Another possibility has loomed up he horizon recently in the person of Judge Gray of Delaware. Judge Gray undoubtedly profited much in public opinion by the fairness with which he presided over the Anthracite For Piles. Coal-strike Arbitration Commission and the equity of the decision of that commission reflected credit on all its members and doubtless insured to Judge Gray a place in the affections of the labor element. Now Judge Gray is again acting in the capacity of peacemaker between labor and capital. He is presiding over the commission called into existence to adjust the differences between the Alabama coal operators and their employes. Delaware, though a small and southern state, is a doubtful one John Sts., New York. and it is regarded as not improbable that Judge Gray's name will figure NERVOUS DEBILITY prominently before the democratic He had just alignfed from the national convention. Secretary Root is to retire from the Cabinet, not immediately but probably some time in December. Mr. Root's retirement will be a serious loss to President Roosevelt who has long been opposing it, for in all the cabinet there are two men on whose judgment Theodore Roosevelt relies, but two men who can influence him for his own good when he has determined upon an injudicious step. Fostmaster General Payne is scheduled for retirement, as soon as it can be said that he is not "resigning under fire," and the old story that Secretary Wilson is to resign, to take a little life position as president of the Iowa Agricultural College, is again in circulation.
