Washington, Dec. 21, 1903. reciprocity bill passed the Senate. After it receives the President's signature, the two years' fight for tariff reduction to Cuba will be ended, with concessions to the Island as great as could have been expected from a "stand pat" republican Administration. Most of the Democrats favored the bill as the best which could be obtained under the circumstances. On e republican, Senator Bard voted against it. Before the vote was taken Senator Bailey and Senator Spooner took opposite sides in a debate on the constitutional authority of the President and Senate to negotiate a treaty which called for the reduction of the tariff and to make this treaty contingent on the approval of the House. Mr. Pailey said that as all revenue acts should originate in the House, the President had not this right. Mr. Spooner, republican, was enthusiastic in his defense of the Administration, but it was generally admitted that he put forth the weaker argument. Referring to the recent decision of the democrats to be bound by caucus rule, Mr. Bailey declared that henceforth there would be no "White House Senators' to be found on the democratic side of the chamber.

Perry S. Heath is scored again in the report of Holmes Conrad and Charles J. Bonaparte on the scandals of the Washington Postoffice, which has just been published. It says, "So far as is indicated by the papers submitted to us, the persons directly responsible for these fraudulent employments were Perry S. Heath and George W. Beavers," The report also tries to place some of the responsibility on former Postmaster General Charles Emory Smith. Mr. Heath continues to protest his innocence, but takes care not to waive the statute of limitations, so that he might be brought to trial.

Assistant Postmaster General Bristow's report on the postal scandals has been sent to the Government Printing Office and will be given to the public in a few days. The publication of the report was decided upon by the House Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads Each member of Congress will be supplied with several copies which he may dispose of as he sees fit. Mr. Bristow strongly advised the publication of the entire report and it is said that he intimated to the Committee that his report had been too much edited at the White House, and that certain parts of it were toned down before the synopsis was published. Senator Gorman and other democratic leaders are determined that the public shall get at the bottom of the postal frauds and they will continue their Congressional inagnation vestigation.

Democrats of the Senate have decided to accomplish an effective organization by requiring submission to caucus rule. Senator Gorman, the duly chosen leader, has thus been successful in his efforts to get his democratic colleagues to act as a unit on the public questions which will be discussed this coming winter and from the issues of the next campaign. In this way the minority will be better able to oppose the republicans, who however they may differ individually in the primary stages of a controversy, always unite on the policy determined upon by the majority of the party. Leader Williams, in the House, is confident of democratic success next year. He says, "The democratic outlook is more hopeful than for years. The democratic party is more nearly united than it rededication the devout assemble in nearer meaning something. Con-servative business interests distrust Roosevelt. His strenuousity is so

States has been argued before the portunity. Supreme Court and the decision of the Justices is now awaited. During the two days' hearing the court was crowded by those who followed the trial with great interest. Mrs. Roosevelt, many United States Senators and prominent business men were seen among the audience. The case came on appeal from the decision of the Circuit Court for the District of Minnesota, which was to the effect that the purchase of the greater part of the stock of the two railroad companies constituted a merger and was contrary to the Sherman Anti-Trust Iaw. Attorney General Knox represented the government and Mr. John G. Johnson of Philadelphia, ex-Attorney General Griggs and others represented the companies. Mr. Johnson argued that in acquiring the stock of the two railroads the securities company did not purpose to prevent competition or restrain trade, but to protect its own property and increase trade. powder. He took exception to the decision of the Circuit Court that the possession of the power which the company had was a violation of the law, and contended that such holding was not in accordance with the decisions of the Supreme Court, which was that it is the use of power, and not possession of it, which constitutes the offense. He declared that the holding by the Securities company of the majority of the stock of the two railroads was not a violation of the Sherman act and not a monopoly, and that the act did not declare illegal the two companies, and that if it did, it are killed. would be unconstitutional. Attorney General Knox argued that the arrangement effected by the company was a combination in restraint of interstate commerce and, as such, a violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act; that it constituted a monopoly; and that the court had the power to prevent it. He said, 'The final result of these transactions was that one and the same set of men, Mr. Hill, and Mr. Morgan and their associates being the ruling spirits among them, acting under a charter agreement and through the agency of a corporate on other people's feet." organization, became vested with absolute power of control over two parallel and competing systems of interstate railway." He added that it was absurd to say that two railway companies that were under one control would ever compete in Festival of the Jewish Church Which Comes Along About Christmastime.

It is a coincidence that about the time of Christmas, the great festival of the Christian Church, the Jewish people have one of their most beautiful feasts, that of "Lights and Consecration," known as "Chanukah," which begins on the 25th day of Kislev or the Jewish month (between the new moon November and in December) and continues eight days. During this feast of has been for a long time. It comes the synagogue daily. On each day in the synagogue a portion of the Pentateuch is read; Psalms 113-118 are chanted besides the 18th benediction and in the prayer of reveal the motives of this church festival. The feast itself commemorates the defeat of the ancient Greeks under King Antichus Epiphanes he so much needs. and the complete victory of Mathathias and his sons, the Maccabees, over them about the year of the creation of the world 3620. The Jews being again in possession immediately rebuilded the new altar and rededicated the Temple. Owing to the lighting of the lights in the synagogue and in the Jewish home, the feast has received its name: "Feasts of Lights" or of Rededication." The number of lights is increased daily by one, beginning on the 24th day of Kislev until the eight days
