

THE COLUMBIAN.

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1925.

STATE HAPPENINGS.

Sylvester E. Smith of Clarke street, South Williamsport, an agent for the Singer Sewing Machine company, left home on the morning of September 26 and since that time nothing has been heard of him.

The Watkins Glen property was sold at Sheriff's sale last week on a mortgage of $14,000. A second mortgage of $22,500 was held by the Green estate which bought the property. It seems curious that this wonder resort is not a paying institution.

Mt. Carmel is rejoicing over a new industry secured in the shape of a silk ribbon mill, to be built by Albert and Harman Levy of New York City. It will be a two-story building, 50 by 150 feet in size and its full running capacity will employ from 900 to 1,000 men, women, boys and girls.

The apple crop in York county is largest in many years. Trees everywhere are loaded down and in most orchards it is necessary to use props to prevent the limbs from snapping. During several days last week 15,000 bushels of apples were delivered to the applejack distillery at Bentley Springs, Md.

Arrangements are now being made to transfer the contract for the new $1,000,000 Court House at Wilkes-Barre from Wilson J. Smith to Carlucci Brothers, of Scranton. It is expected this will put an end to the frequent legal fights between contractors and architects which have delayed the work on the building.

The contract for the erection of the Brown Memorial library building at Williamsport has been let to Edwin Gilbert & Co., of Philadelphia, the price being $111,359. The structure will be of marble and will be a fine piece of architecture. The interior furnishings will cost about $25,000, and it is expected that $20,000 will be expended for books at the outset.

Governor Pennypacker has postponed the dedication of the Pennsylvania monuments at Andersonville until December 7; at Vicksburg December 9, and at Chattanooga December 12. These monuments were to have been dedicated in November, but owing to the prevalence of yellow fever in the South the dates were changed by the Governor at the request of the several commissions by which they were erected.

Investigation has revealed the fact that Thos. J. Scott, the geologist and mining engineer who was found dead in a shaft near Belsena, Clearfield county, and who was thought to have met his death as a result of an accident, was in reality murdered. His empty purse and papers were found 200 yards from the mine, and there were evidences of a desperate struggle. The theory is that he was slain and his body carried into the mine to hide evidence of the crime.

Farmers of Westmoreland county have organized a protective association against pot hunters. They have regular officers, a prosecuting committee and funds to pay legal expenses. Trespass notices living extracts from the laws are posted on each farm. Members have agreed to give permission to men who go shooting for sport to hunt under certain conditions, but the pot hunter, especially foreigners, will not be allowed on the property of the members.

Haunted by Man He Killed

Haunted, day and night, by the ghastly vision of the man whom it is alleged he murdered, Steve Forbes is rapidly losing his mind in the Sunbury prison, and it is believed will soon become a raving maniac.

Forbes is the man who is charged with striking John Cozak on the head with an ax during a christening, Cozak afterwards dying. Forbes attempted to commit suicide at the jail by cutting his throat with a table knife Sunday afternoon. Since then he has almost constantly paced his cell, night and day, and refusing food, sleeping only when he becomes so exhausted that he can no longer remain awake.

Professor Surface Will Eat a Worm

Professor H. A. Surface of State College, Economic Zoologist of Pennsylvania, declares that he is ready to eat a cabbage worm to prove that a wide spread belief that this particular kind of worm eaten will cause sure death, is entirely unfounded.

Last week a dispatch from Bloomsburg, Columbia county, Pa., was widely published to the effect that the entire family of Ambrose Sittler, a farmer living near Orangeville, that county, were in dread of sudden death because they feared that they had eaten a cabbage worm.

The dispatch went on to say that while a daughter of the Sittler's was chopping cabbage for a slaw, she saw a long green worm curl itself around the knife in her hand; that terrified her so that she called her father who recognized the worm as one of the dread species of which, it is said, the body is so poisonous that it will cause certain death to anyone who swallows any of it; that these symptoms of poisoning in many cases do not appear for several days and that as the family had been eating cabbages from the same garden they were afraid they had eaten some of the worms.

When the attention of Professor Surface was called to the dispatch he said to a representative of the Patriot:

"Such a worm is sometimes found in cabbages but it is absolutely harmless. Nevertheless the belief that it is poisonous has done a great deal of harm. It has almost stopped the sale and consumption and therefore the raising of cabbages in some sections.

"A few years ago the belief was so prevalent in Iowa, and so many farmers stopped planting cabbages because of it, that Professor H. E. Summers, State Zoologist of Iowa, to prove that the worm or "snake," as it is sometimes called, is perfectly innocuous, ate one of them in the presence of respectable witnesses.

"This had the desired effect," continued Professor Surface. "The Iowa farmers began again raising cabbages, and they had no further trouble in selling them. But the belief still exists in other parts and the publication of such stories as the one from Bloomsburg has done much harm.

"To show that the cabbage worm is harmless, if anyone will bring me one I will, in the presence of witnesses, eat it as Professor Summers did."

"Will you eat 'im alive?" he was asked.

"Yes, I'll eat 'im alive," the Professor replied laughing.—Harrisburg Patriot.

The Proper Thing to Do

Judge Ehrgood of Lebanon, made a sensible decision last week. A woman had been indicted for "hexing" an infant child of a neighbor and causing its death by witchcraft. The judge very promptly dismissed the case and decreed that the magistrate who returned the case should not be allowed costs. Lebanon is one of the few counties in the state where the practice of bundling still prevails. Bundling and witchcraft are relics of the dark ages. They are not necessarily related, but they are both the legitimate outgrowth of ignorance and superstition. People who believe in hexing may not all indulge in bundling, but bundlers all believe in hexing.

The Farmer a Big Traveler. After all, a farmer with a large plantation is the biggest traveler, although he may not get far from home. Some curious Western calculator has found out that the farmer who puts in forty acres of corn travels ninety miles cutting stalks, ninety miles harrowing, ninety miles each for lister and drill, forty-five miles for harrowing, 270 miles not counting trips to and from the field.
