So much opposition has developed against the erection of a statue of M. S. Quay at Harrisburg, that the project may not be carried out. The last legislature appropriated $20,000 for this purpose, but protests from many influential sources are coming to Governor Pennypacker that he may not ask the commission appointed by him, to proceed with its task. If not erected before the session of the next legislature the bill will undoubtedly be repealed.

The Philadelphia Press compliments the Democratic press of the state as follows:

"The Democratic newspapers of the state very generally are to be credited with a large amount of good sense for not having treated the election of William H. Berry as a Democratic victory. They know that it is not in any degree to be construed as a partisan triumph, and almost every Democratic paper in the state has had the intelligence and frankness to say so. That party had the advantage of a good candidate and an aroused Republican resentment of the system which had grown up under boss control of the Organization. It required about as many Republican as it did Democratic votes to win the victory, which belongs to the conscientious and public spirited people of the Commonwealth and not to any party."

A COSTLY WRECK.

It is estimated that the recent wreck on the Lackawanna at Hunlock's Creek, cost the railroad company at least $50,000 in equipment alone.

With the settlements already made with some of those who were hurt and the probable damage suits of others, because of injuries or death, the disaster will be an exceedingly costly one.

The equipment totally destroyed was two engines with their coal tenders, an express car and baggage car. One end of the smoking car was torn away, its interior badly smashed. The remaining coach is also in bad condition inside. The whole pile of twisted iron and broken wood will, it is expected, bring about $1,000 as junk, thus an idea of the expensiveness of a wreck can be conjectured.

To Die at Dawn.

Miss Blanche Hazelton comes to Bloomsburg, Pa., next Tuesday, Nov. 28, 1905 in her new play "To Die at Dawn" which is said to be by all odds, the best vehicle in which she has yet appeared.

It is from the pen of E. Laurence Lee, who on being commissioned to write the play, set about looking for material from which to construct it, and like other playwrights he cast his eye Kentuckywards, and after spending several weeks in and around Hardin County, that State, in which is located the famous Mammoth Cave, there found the theme for the play.

Constructed along original lines, with its vein of comedy, mingled with just enough pathos, a magnificent scenic equipment, the star supported by an excellent company, with the entire production under the personal direction of the author. "To Die at Dawn" will undoubtedly pack the Grand Opera House next Tuesday Nov. 28.

Clubs Entertained.

The Century and Ivy Clubs were entertained by the Wednesday Club at the home of Mrs. Dr. J. P. Welsh on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Phillips, wife of the Principal of the West Chester Normal School was present, and gave an interesting talk on life in Germany where she spent a year with her children. Prof. Hartline also talked on life in the German universities, where he spent a year. It was a very enjoyable afternoon.

Later on Mrs. Welsh entertained the Wednesday Club at a dinner.

Deer Killed at Orangeville.

Curry Montgomery of Orangeville on Tuesday shot a fine buck on Nob Mountain, about half a mile from Orangeville. He was out gunning for birds and had a shot gun, when he first spied the deer. Dropping his gun he went down to the village and procured a rifle, and on his return found the deer very near where he left it, and killed it the first shot.

Where the animal came from is a question hard to solve. With bears on the Catawissa hill, and stags roving at large on the Nob Mountain, we are getting back to the days of the primeval forests.

Lectures in a Cell

Talent, a magazine of the lyceum, tells the following story of Mr. Edward A. Ott, lecturer on "The Haunted House" and "Sour Grapes"—next lecture course number in Bloomsburg, on December 5th.

"A very ludicrous incident occurred on one of the Western courses last winter which appears the more ludicrous when you remember that one of the hobbies of Dr. Ott is the 'eternal fitness of things,' especially in artistic surroundings for an entertainment or lecture.

"It seems that the lecturer who was to precede Dr. Ott on the course had not arrived. The committee was indignant, as usual, and had scarcely become good-natured for the next number.

"However, they did their best, and put on the finest piece of scenery the opera house afforded, which happened to be a prison cell used in a previous amateur performance. When the lecturer, therefore, was ushered on to the platform, he was snocked enough to note his surroundings, and after the committee man introduced him to the audience by saying that 'this time they were to have the lecture sure,' he expressed his appreciation of the situation by saying he thought it all right for a disappointed committee to make sure of a lecture, but he didn't see any necessity for providing to keep the man in town after the lecture was over.

"He probably, however, felt just as well as he did the month before when lecturing in a town where the background of the stage was a landscape scene with a country road leading directly from the stage off behind the hills. In one instance there was no escape—the iron doors and windows prevented it; in the other case there was a country road leading directly to the woods. The lecturer, however, has never been compelled to take to the woods, and prefers the prison cell to the country road."

Church Club's Fall Meeting.

The Church Club of Central Pennsylvania, composed of laymen in the Episcopal dioceses of Harrisburg and Central Pennsylvania, held its Fall meeting and banquet at the Allen House, Allentown, last Thursday night.

The president, Colonel Charles M. Clement, of Sunbury, presided at the meeting which was opened with prayer by Bishop Darlington, of Harrisburg. The report of the treasurer, Frank C. Angle of Danville, showed an excellent financial condition. Ten new members were elected, the membership now being 210, with Bishops Darlington and Talbot as honorary members. Suitable action was taken upon the death of the late Andrew L. Fillebrown, of Sunbury.

The following were elected delegates to the next annual conference of Church Clubs in the United States, to be held in Rochester, N. Y., in April, 1906:

James M. Lamberton, Esq., of Harrisburg, the vice president of the National conference, and O. C. Foster, of West Pittston; T. S. Hamilton, Shamokin, and J. P. Jones, of Pottsville.

After grace had been said by Rev. R. H. Kline, rector of Grace church, Allentown, dinner was served to about sixty members and their guests. After dinner, President Clement introduced George R. Booth, of Bethlehem, as ruler of the feast, who called for the address of welcome from Lawrence H. Rupp, of the Allentown bar. Robert H. Gardner, president of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, spoke on "The Layman's Place in the Church"; Bishop Darlington upon "The Missionary Thank Offering of 1907"; Hon. Asa Bird Gardiner, of New York, on "The American Church Militant"; and Bishop Talbot, of Central Pennsylvania, upon "The Church Club as a Diocesan Auxiliary." It was after midnight that, after singing the doxology, Bishop Talbot gave the blessing.

THANKSGIVING

It hardly seems necessary after all these years to remind the good people of Bloomsburg that the Union Benevolent Society depends almost entirely upon the Thanksgiving offering for its funds to help the needy and carry on its benevolent work for the winter; and yet people do forget, and so we take this way to remind them that a good liberal donation is desired this year. Money can be given at the church service on Thanksgiving day or sent to the Treasurer, Mrs. M. C. Walker, any time between now and Christmas or at any time thereafter. Donations of food of any kind or of clothing in tolerable condition also thankfully received.

MRS. M. C. WALKER, Committee.
