Mr. Carter, it is said, has created a detective play in "Too Proud to Beg", and with an ease that might almost put Conan Doyle's "Sherlock Holmes" to blush. Aside from making detection a permanent feature of the story there is a theme of love and intrigue cleverly woven with comedy and thrilling situations, thus making an entertainment that is safe to assert will interest and amuse the most blaze theatre patron.

The cast presenting "Too Proud to Beg" is a capable one and includes actors of ability, much above the general average. Opera House Friday, January 4th.

Governor Pennypacker will go out of office without issuing the death warrant of Mrs. Kate Edwards of Reading. Mrs. Edwards was convicted nearly five years ago of assisting a negro to murder her husband, in order that her intimacy with the negro might go undiscovered by the husband. Her negro child was born in jail. The negro was hanged. The life of the woman has been spared by the merciful governor.—Ex.

Was it an act of mercy, or was it the shirking of a responsibility that the law placed upon him? If the new Governor does not sign her death warrant, what is to be done with the woman?

The reported estimate by Henry H. Rogers that John D. Rockefeller's income from Standard Oil alone will be $60,000,000 this year has resulted in the usual computations as to Mr. Rockefeller's income per minute, etc. One of these shows that every time the clock ticks off a second $1.90 goes into Rockefeller's coffers. By the time a whole minute has elapsed he is $114 richer, and in an hour he has added $6,840 to his fortune. A day brings it up to $164,160, enough to pay the salary of President for three years, with a little left over. The rate goes on every day in the week, Sundays and holidays. Even if the clock stops ticking the $1.90 keeps on coming in every second.

Vinegar.

One of the provisions of the new pure food law is that every barrel of vinegar which is put out must be labeled plainly with the name of the one who barreled it, together with a statement as to whether the barrel contains pure cider changed to vinegar by a natural process, a composition, or if acid is used in bringing about fermentation. A violation of this involves severe penalties. Another thing, it would be just as well if no "new" maple sugar is on the market before February 1st. Maple sugar offered for sale must be accompanied by a statement as to what year it was manufactured, and if there has been any glucose, or any other kind of sugar used in the manufacture, or anything except the boiling down of the natural sap of the maple tree, it must be clearly stated, or the person offering it for sale is liable to get into trouble. Butter artificially colored is also forbidden by the pure food laws.

Wife Beaters.

Commenting upon the dogmatic declaration of that Butler murderer that he "had the right to kill his wife if he wished to," the Bradford Era declares that he "is certainly a person of brilliant originality." It adds: "Many husbands believe that they have the right to blacken their wives' eyes, compel them to struggle in domestic slavery and to make their lives a small edition of sheol, but it remained for the Butler individual to discover that a husband's ownership of a wife includes the death as well as the life of the woman." The fact is, a country which admits to its shores thousands of men who honestly believe their wives are their property, just as though they were beasts, is going to reap the whirlwind presently.

Of Course It Paid.

Judge tells a story of a boy who wrote on the blackboard at school: "John Jones can hug the girls better than any fellow in the class." A stern inquisition conducted by the lady teacher fastened the authorship of this declaration upon John Jones himself, and the culprit was commanded to remain after school was dismissed. His sympathetic classmates lingered in the vicinity to learn his fate. "Well, did she lick you?" they inquired, when he finally appeared. "Nope," said John. "What did she keep you in for, then?" they asked. "I ain't a-goin' to tell," he answered; "but it pays to advertise."

Big Bear Chases a Man.

The Lock Haven Express says that an interesting story comes from Leiby township, Clinton county, the truthfulness of which is vouched for by Detective J. H. Keller of Lock Haven who was in the vicinity on official business. The particulars are as follows:

Albert Calhoun, a young man living in Leiby township, was engaged in working on what is known as the second bridge, situated in a most remote part of the township, being at least three miles from any habitation. As was his custom, he always took his trusty Winchester with him and to this and his true marksmanship he owes his life.

Friday afternoon Mr. Calhoun noticed fresh bear tracks in the snow and from the imprints made they indicated that it was a big one and worth going after. So he followed the tracks some distance and arrived just in time to see bruin crawling into his den. Mr. Calhoun went towards it when the big brute made for him and chased him quite a distance, the young man yelling at the top of his voice for help. Detective Keller was just passing near there, and hearing the cries, asked what was wrong, when suddenly there was a crack from a rifle.

This worried the Detective more than ever and he went to the assistance of the man and found him standing over the carcass of a dead bear that weighed at least 400 pounds. Mr. Calhoun stated that his nerve at first failed him, but he knew perfectly well that the bear was rapidly gaining on him and he turned and fired, the bullet entering the eye and going through the brain, killing it instantly. The carcass was dragged to the road and taken to that gentleman's home on a sled.

TOO PROUD TO BEG.

Every man, woman and child thinks he is a born detective. A proof of this is the eagerness with which one accepts the privilege of wearing a shining badge with the words "special officer," which gives no power nor authorizes one to make an arrest but makes the owner unmeasurably happy just the same. The detective instinct will be given a new impetus when Lincoln J. Carter's latest play, "Too Proud to Beg" is presented at the Grand Opera House, Friday night, January 4th.
