LACKING IN SYSTEM

COMMON FAULT AMONG WOMEN SAYS A DUSINESS MAN.

One Reason for the Servant Problem, It Is Suggested-Hotel Managers Dependent on Men to Organize Their Households,

The head of the house put down his newspaper, looked thoughtfully at his young daughter and asked if system was taught in the public schools.

"System," she repeated, puzzled. "Yes, system," her father persisted. "I don't believe, though, that system can be taught," he contipued reflectively. "It's like common sense, or a sense of humor. One must be born with it." "What on earth are you driving at?" asked his wife.

"I'm driving at this: I have come to the conclusion that the New York woman is about the least systematic in the world. I am not referring to business women so much as to women in the home, women who are not obliged to earn their living."

"And men?" asked the wife. "Well, I have met men who apparently had mighty little system about anything, but as a general thing men far outrank women in this respect.

"What started me going on the subject? Why, this: Jones told me to-day that he had discharged his housekeeper and put a man in her place, and that the only reason the assistant housekeeper was kept was because women guests and the maids needed a woman's help occasionally. A big force of chambermaids are required in his hotel, to say nothing of dozens of other employes who formerly came under the supervision of the housekeeper. Now he has a man to do that work-does it better, Jones says."

"What was the trouble with the housekeeper?" asked the wife.

"Lack of system, Jones said. Then he pointed out a phenomenon I had never noticed. He said that when a woman undertook to run a hotel it generally degenerated into a boarding house, and that when a man took hold of a boarding house, which isn't often, it generally grew into a hotel, and all because of a question of system.

"A woman who has been trained h a business concern, who began, say, as errand girl, office attendant, or stock girl and works her way up to a responsible place, often learns a good deal about system. Under such circumstances I think system can be required in an institution of learning. I am also sure that, take some business women out of their environment and set them up in an independent venture, they will drop almost immediately into what I call a systemless system. To illustrate:

"A relative of mine left school at fifteen to work in a large manufactaring concern, in which she rose to a place second only to that of the owners before she was thirty. I myself wendered at her success.

"When she was thirty-two years eld she married a prosperous bustness man, a widower, with two children and a good sized house, who can afford to keep several servants. He made no secret of the fact that he selected his wife because of her talent of managing for her systematic arrangement of her duties and business engagements.

"They have been married two years, and a worse managed househeld from my point of view it has pever been my luck to see. I have never known a meal to be served in that house on schedule time in spite of the fact that they live far enough out of the city to make it necessary for the man to travel in and out by train; the children are quarrelsome, unsuly, unpunctual and so usually, my wife tells me, are the three servanis. Their mistress has lost her plant, confident, business air and locks as if she had tackled a job too hard, for her, which is, indeed, exactly the case.

'In other words, she has no systorn by which that household may be reduced to a smoothly running, harmonious basis. She could manage with ease a hundred or more employes in a concern of which she was not the head, but where she is absolute boss three servants are beyond her.

"But in justice to women I think this ought to be said: The system which is possible in a hotel is not, in my opinion, possible in a private house, and I doubt if the general run of man would do any better than the general run of woman in managing an ordinary household."

The manager of the same hotel spoke differently. Said he:

"System is system, whether in a small or a large house, and no one appreciates this better than women servants, who themselves are quite incapable of originating anything approaching system. A system must be aid down for them and they must be taught how to follow it, if satisfactory results are looked for. A systemless mistress is bound to have a systemless servant; and that even the most charming and accomplished of mistresses are often almost without any system at all in their housekeeping no one, I think, will deny.

Put a tiny cork into the end of brass curtain rods when they are to he run into starched or lace curtains.

The rods will slide in easily. Soak new lamp wicks over night in vinegar. This will cause them to give a more brilliant light.

WE SHOULD DRESS FOR DINNER.

Medical Experts Claim It Is Conducive to Cheerfulness.

The custom of dressing for dinner is strongly advocated by a well known medical journal, which goes even further, and declares that every worker should change his clothes before the evening meal, even if he does not possess evening clothes.

The explanation most likely is that the clothes after they have been worn all day get more or less clogged and lose temporarily their ventilating properties, so that the emanations from the body do not escape freely.

Nor need the changing of clothes be the exclusive luxury of the persons who dress for dinner. The hard-worked clerk, the shopkeeper and the working man would all be better if they would cast off their work-a-day clothes and put on clean clothes for the evening meal after the day of toll is over.

The bracing effect of a change of clothes is well known. Many a man feeling almost too fatigued after an arduous day's work to change his clothes, finds himself considerably refreshed when the change is accomplished, and at the same time he experiences a feeling of cleanliness and preparedness for his dinner, and good digestion invariably waits on healthy appetite. The changing of clothes may even thus favorably affect nutrition.

The effect of a change of clothes after a day's toll is in some respects similar to that of a bath, mildly stimulating, bracing, dispelling the feeling of tiredness and fatigue so commonly experienced.

Ironing Board Fast to the Wall.

The housewife has been so long accustomed to spanning the ironing board across the backs of two chairs that she naturally never thinks of any other method of doing it. But there are more convenient ways of supporting the ironing board, as shown by the illustration. The idea is certainly a good one, and any housewife would welcome the introduction of one into her household.

Attached to Wall.

This simple arrangement of hanging the ironing board on brackets attached to the wall was designed by a California man, and he thinks so highly of it that he has had it patented. Still, this is no reason why any housewife cannot have one made. A glance at the illustration will suffice to show the construction. When the ironing board is not in use it is swung back against the wall, where it is held in place by an arm connecting the tops of the brackets. It can be just as easily lowered.

HOME COOKING.

Oyster Pot Pie.

Have ready nice light raised biscult dough; cut it into small squares; season the oysters well with butter, pepper and salt,, and thicken with a little flour; this may be baked in the oven in a pudding dish, browning on top.

Oyster Omelet.

Beat six eggs very light, season with pepper and salt, add two tablespoonsfuls cream and pour into a frying pan with one tablespoonful of butter; then drop into the omelet eight or ten large oysters and fry, fold over and send to table at once.

French Toast. To one egg, well beaten, add onehalf pint of sweet milk and a pinch of salt. Into this dip dry slices of bread and fry like griddle cakes in a little hot butter until nicely browned on both sides. Serve with maple syrup.

Date and Orange Sandwiches. One-half cup finely chopped dates. two tablespoons orange juice, blend fruit and orange juice thoroughly; use between buttered slices of whole wheat bread.

Mulled Jelly.

Take one tablespoonful of currant or grape jelly, beat with it the white of one egg and a teaspoon of sugar. Pour on it a teacupful of boiling water and break in it a slice of dry toast or two crackers.

The French Point of Beauty.

A point of beauty always sought by the French in the arrangement of the hair is to present a joli nuque that is, a pretty nape of the neck. Effects they produce in this respect are wonderful, and are chiefly attained by care in securing a graceful line marked by the hair from ear to ear, and a charming contour which clever waving of the hair produces.

You can sharpen scissors perfectly on the neck of a bottle.

DOCTORS MISTAKES

Are said often to be buried six feet under ground. But many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous pros-tration, another with pain here and there, tration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they present alike to themselves and their easy-going or overbusy doctor, separate diseases, for which he, assuming them to be such, prescribes his pills and potions. In reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some uterine disease. The physician, sporant of the cause of suffering, keeps up his treatment until large bills are made. The affecting patient gets no better the reason the wrong treatment, but probably worse. A proper medicine like Dr. Plerce's Favorile Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of by dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery. It has been well said, that "a disease known is half cured."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the landle system.

As a powerful invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, scamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unis the greatest earthly boon, being un-equaled as an appetizing cordial and re-

As a scothing and strengthening nervine "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

F. H. WASKEY IN CONGRESS.

Alaska's First Delegate Says He Is Thorough Miner.

Since shedding swaddling clother persistent as the howl of his own malamutes has been Alaska's efforto obtain just if not dignified repre sentation in the halls of Congress Of right to representation in that august body her gold output of the last ten years - some $49,000,000would seem to substantiate.

Alaska's dependency upon Washington is not unlike that of the American colonies upon England before the Declaration of Independence Indeed, so fragrantly has Washing lugton ignored it that one time Fairbanks is said to have forbidden the celebration of the Fourth of July.

While a territory it has no territorial government. It is governed like the District of Columbia. To possess territorial government-the home rule for which Ireland has fought and bled-is now the controlling ambition. The first step toward realization was the election of the Democratic candidates for delegate to Congress-Frank H. Waskey, of Nome, and Thomas C. Cale of Wairbanks. Waskey was elected to fill the short term, while Cole is the long term delegate.

The Republican party merged the long and short terms into one and nominated Thomas C. Murane, a lawyer of unblemished character.

In Fairbanks, Cale's district, Murane had a single vote against the Democratic_candidate's 650!

Alaska's delegate has no seat or voice in Congress. Like a hearer at college, he is admitted to the floor of the house. In the committee room, where the real business of the house is transacted, he is entitled to a respectful audience.

"There are no more intelligent men in the world," said Waskey, 'than the miners of Alaska. Few are the camps, the cabins or the roadhouses they frequent in which the best current literature is not met. Miners devour such publications as the World's Work, the Scientific American, the Review of Reviews and mining publications. They are the thinkers as well as the doers in these parts.

"Every man, I suppose," said Waskey, recalling his life in the north, "has some one thing of which he is prouder than another. My pride is that I am of pioneer stock. My father was forty years a miner. He and my mother came from New England to Minnesota when it was a forest, thence to Callfornia in its earliest days. From that frontier I pushed to Alaska.

'Newspapers have said I am not a miner; that I never sunk a shaft or handled a pick. The fact is there is no work pertaining to mining I have not done and continue to do. I am first and last nothing else but a For Good Roads.

Legislature Should Take Action On the Subject.

Our present State Legislature should not fail to take some action with regard to the subject of good roads. As a matter of economy, it has been demonstrated in other states, that it is more profitable, not only to the townships, but also to the farmers and others who frequently have to use the reads, to have good r ads rather than poor ones. The experiment was tried a R. F. Bodine, merchant, Locust. few years ago in one of the western counties of this state; the government was induced to construct a road which has proved to be very satisfactory and well worth the money spent in its construction. The average township supervisor doesn't seem to have any conception of what is required to make a good road and keep it in repair. The money appropriated for roads, in the several townships of this county, is practically wasted, owing, in a great measure, to the custom of allowing any man, who owns real eatate, one or two dallars a day for doing twenty-five cents worth of work in order that he may have Daniel Kistler, Catawissa Boro. a chance to "work out" his road B. B. Freas, Bloom. tax. The method of road making is simple, when in charge of a competent man, and easy to learn. This has been demonstrated by the work done on roads, already constructed by the government.
