District Attorney Small and family are spending a few days in Philadelphia.

Geo. S. Odell now sells Sunday papers in the building formerly occupied by G. N. Childs.
Work has been begun on the iron work of the Millville bridge, by the York Bridge Company.

District Attorney Small closed up three fortune tellers and nine games of chance on the fair grounds on Thursday.

Boyd Cadman and J. E. Roys went to Syracuse, N. Y. in C. W. Funston's automobile, leaving here on Sunday morning.

Robert S. Oman, of Orange, was among the attendants at the fair last week. He has been a reader of this paper for thirty years or more.

Miss Mary Kase died Tuesday of last week at her home in Roaring-creek township, aged ninety-four years. She spent her whole life in this county.

Ex-sheriff John Mourey attended the fair last week. His friends are talking about him as a candidate for county treasurer next year. Should he decide to come out he will make a strong run.

Any 12 Year Old Girl
Can make those delicious Lemon, Chocolate and Custard pies as well as the more experienced cook if she uses "OUR PIE" preparation, which is now sold by nearly all grocers at 10 cents per package. Just the proper ingredients in each package. 10-17-07.

Mrs. Bessie Fisher, of Wilkes-Barre, was hurt by an automobile at the corner of Main and Leonard streets on Thursday. The car was one used by Harry Hosler to carry passengers to the fair grounds. The high speed used was the cause of the accident.

H. M. Johnson will sell at public sale on the premises, one and one-half miles from Jerseytown, on Wednesday, October 30th, 1907, a lot of personal property, consisting of horses, cattle, farming implements, and household goods. ts.

The evolutions of the K. G. E. Commandery Drill Corps before the grand stand last Thursday and Friday were much enjoyed by the great crowds, and they were highly complimented for their fine appearance. Bloomsburg has reason for being proud of the squad.

November 2nd will be Donation Day at the Joseph Ratti Hospital. The articles needed are groceries, canned goods, vegetables, old and new muslin, blankets, sheets, pillow cases, towels, napkins, and anything else useful. Let everybody remember this worthy charity.

The following letters are held at the Bloomsburg, Pa., post office: Mr. Nathaniel Broadt, Mrs. William Coleman, Mr. Patrick Fallon, Mr. Clyde Hawbecker, Mr. T. C. Parsons, Mr. E. F. Stines. Cards, Miss Beagle, Miss Florence Black, Miss Irene Kistner Davis (2) Mr. C. W. Hughes, Andrew Martin.

Mrs. Emma Polk, of Iola, attempted to cross the race track at the fair grounds on Friday, and was struck by the race horse, Billy Cole, as he was warming up for the first heat of the free-for-all. She was thrown several feet. She was taken to the hospital, where it was found that no bones were broken, and she went to her home that day. It is a dangerous practice to cross a race track when it is doing business.

Rabbit Season Opens.

The rabbit season opened Tuesday to continue until December 1st. There are no doubt more highly prized varieties of game—those which call forth greater skill on the part of the sportsman, but it is the rabbit which brings out the greatest number of hunters. Even in seasons when the scarcest, rabbits are pretty evenly distributed and there is not a field, tract of woodland or clump of bushes that may not be reasonably expected to yield a cottontail to the persevering hunter.

Rabbits are reported as very plentiful this year. The report, however, as in the case of woodcock and some other game, may prove to be unfounded. This is a question, however, that each hunter likes to decide for himself, by actual experiment.

There are a few points about the law relating to rabbits that are worth remembering. It is unlawful to have in possession the dead body of a rabbit or a hare taken in this Commonwealth except during the open season, between the fifteenth day of October and the first day of December and for a period of fifteen days thereafter, unless the same shall have been killed by land owners to whom they are doing damage. Rabbits may be taken or killed in this Commonwealth in any manner during the open season except through or with the aid of a ferret. The number that may be shot is unlimited.

There is a penalty of ten dollars for violating the provisions of this section.

Double Tracking Sunbury Division.

The Sunbury Daily has given the following information about the much-exploited, but as yet not accomplished, double tracking of the Sunbury division:

The Pennsylvania railroad has definitely decided to double track the Sunbury division for its entire length and now has the work well under way. For some time past large gangs of laborers have been widening the roadbed in the vicinity of Nescopeck, and now a considerable portion of the track has been laid. The work will be pushed southward all the way to Sunbury and it will not be many months before it will reach here.

At some points serious difficulties must be overcome. For miles the line skirts the base of deep and rugged mountains and the engineers in charge are confronted with the proposition of either blasting away the rock or else making heavy fills in the river bed for long distances.

The traffic on the Sunbury division is probably as great as that on any other single track road in the Pennsylvania system. And it is generally admitted that any man who can satisfactorily handle the business on this road can well fill the same position on any other division.

For many years the local officials have asked the directors to double track the line, but it was not until the past summer that their wishes were granted.

Nuptial Serenades Are Riots, Says Judge Bell.

Wedding serenades may soon be a thing of the past. Judge Martin Bell, in the Blair County Court, has pronounced them "a species of riot," and says they ought to be suppressed. He even grants persons so annoyed the right of suppressing them.

This edict against common custom of treating newly-married couples was announced in the Judge's charge to the jury in the case of James Fasic, of Altoona, who was charged with aggravated assault and battery. Fasic's sister was to be married, and a crowd of calistumpians gathered in front of the house, and made such a racket that the ceremony of tying the nuptial knot had to be postponed for two hours.

Meantime the family telephoned for the police, but no officer appeared. Finally, in desperation, Fasic went out to disperse the mob, and when George Smith refused to go, Fasic punched him in the face, breaking his nose.

"This serenading business is a bad custom," said Judge Bell to the jury. "It is a species of riot. The householder has a right to use due force to clear his premises from serenaders. Even spectators at such affairs are as guilty as those who make the noise."

Fasic was acquitted on the strength of his Honor's remarks.

Five Thousand at a Barbecue.

Democrats Roast an Ox, and Creasy "Roasts" Sheatz.

Nearly 5000 people attended an old-fashioned barbecue at the yearly meeting of the Democratic County Committee of Northampton county at the fair grounds at Nazareth, last Saturday. It was perhaps the first ox roast held in that vicinity in the last quarter of a century, and the revival of this once popular method of out-door feasting was a great success. All roads in the county led to this historic Moravian town. Hundreds came by special trolley car and hundreds more in vehicles of all descriptions.

The largest gathering of farmers in years was present, the attraction being "Farmer" W. T. Creasy, who was the principal speaker at the meeting.

Mr. Creasy, in his first speech of the campaign, was unsparing in criticism of the Republican State machine and of John O. Sheatz, the Republican nominee for State Treasurer. He said the machine desired a Treasurer who would demand and collect funds from the common people while the corporations paid little. The Republican machine, Mr. Creasy declared, always nominated for Treasurer a man it could depend upon. "No man in the last Legislature was readier to please 'Jim' McNichol and 'Iz' Durham than Sheatz," said Mr. Creasy, who added that Sheatz lacked the backbone needed for the position, and that he serves a boss. When the boss was out with the machine, Creasy declared, Sheatz was against it, and when the boss was with the machine Sheatz was with it.

"If Sheatz is elected," asserted Mr. Creasy, "the Capitol grafters will go scot free, the same as Sam Salter did in Philadelphia." In closing, the speaker blamed Sheatz for the Governor's veto of the pension bill, declaring that Sheatz went to Penrose, who referred him to General Mulholland, and the latter prepared padded figures to fool the Governor.

After the speechmaking came the ox roast. The ox weighed 2040 pounds. The roasting took place on the fair grounds in view of the thousands of visitors. Fifty butchers in full regalia were utilized in carving the beef. Generous slices on pointed sticks of wood were handed to the crowds, with other lunch accessories.

The Jamestown Exposition As It Is.

So much has been written in belittlement of the Jamestown exposition that the majority of Americans have been inclined to regard the enterprise as a failure. That it is, however, both an attractive and a successful affair is shown in Harriet Quimby's article, and an accompanying page of illustrations in the current issue of Leslie's Weekly. Miss Quimby's statements are the result of personal observation, and she relates the facts without bias. The number contains many interesting pictorial features. Note-worthy among them are Sigurd Schou's cover drawing representing an exciting chase after a wild steer in the streets of New York; exterior and interior views of New York's new $6,000,000 custom-house; a page of foreign pictures; theatrical portraits and scenes; the photo contests; panoramic views of the naval academy at Annapolis and of Battery Park, New York, and photographs relating to the anti-Oriental riots in British Columbia and the State of Washington. Charles M. Harvey contributes a strong article on New York's pre-eminence as a seaport; Frances van Etten writes entertainingly of deer hunting in the Adirondacks, and Harriet Quimby supplies chatty comments on things theatrical. The sayings of notable men and topics and pictures of fifty years ago are up to the high mark of interest. "Roscoe" deals with the copper situation, and gives valuable hints to those who seek to make money in mining. "Jasper" discusses popular hallucinations which have militated against prosperity and shrewdly advises his readers who would court fortune in the stock market.

Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.

DEAR SIR:—Some time since I was troubled with blotches coming out on my breast, of a scrofulous character, and my general system seemed to be out of order. I was induced to try Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. The first bottle drove the eruption away and I feel better every way. It is a splendid blood medicine.—Henry S. Eldredge, Rochester, N. Y.

The ladies of St. Margaret's Guild who prepared the supper given by Washington Lodge F. and A. M. on Monday night, were very highly complimented for the excellence of the meal. There were about four hundred and thirty seated at the tables.
