A device for holding the leaves of a book open, so that the contents will be plainly visible and at the same time allow free movement of the hands, is shown in the illustra-

Probably the most common, and at the same time unsatisfactory, method of accomplishing this it to place weights on the open book. Because of the incline formed by the leaves of the open book the weights seldom stay in position, readjustment being neessary every few minutes. In addition, the weights in the majority of cases cover the contents of the page, especially if it is

The holder consists of a board containing numerous perforations arranged in parallel rows. Bars supporting the clamps fit in the perforations, so that the clips can be adjusted to clamp books of various sizes. The holder is also equally as efficient in holding down flat sheets of paper inclined to curl at the ends. After clamping the book or other article to the holder the latter can be tilted or placed in any position de-

Growth of Pearl Button Industry. "The button industry along the Mississippi River is flourishing," said Will M. Narvis of Muscatine in Des Moines recently, "and there is a constant demand for men and girls to work in our factories. The industry never was in better condition. I suppose that 6,000 people are engaged in working in the factories up and down the river, and half of them are at Muscatine, Muscatine, you know, was the center of the business, it really originated there, and It maintains its supremacy in the Geo. Gold in Walls of Old Mint.

The passing of the old United States Mint building at Denver minds old timers of the early struggles of the Government to make the maintenance of the mint worth while. Then came 1879 and the great strikes at Leadville, which brought tons of bullion to Denver and kept the mint officials busy and the institution running at full capa-

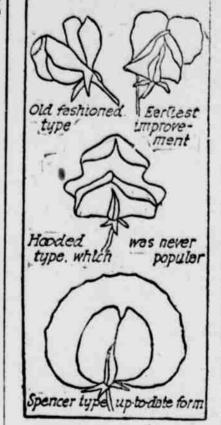

The destruction of the buildings marks the end of the chapter. By the terms of the conrtact for the destruction of the building and the erection of the new Boettcher building on its site all the material necomes the property of the contractors, and they are saving every particle of plaster on the theory that there must be some valuable settlings of gold dust in any of the previous material after the mint's long years of use. The plaster will be submitted to a process whereby much gold s expected to be extracted.

EVOLUTION OF SWEET PEA.

Remarkable Improvement During the Last Twency Years.

The drawings herewith are a p and-ink attempt to show the advauthat has been made in the sweet pe during the last twenty years. From being a small flower, available in few colors of not over-vigorous halfit, it has been developed to a point at which one wonders where the next improvement will take pirce.

The large, substantial blooms with frilled upright standards and prominent wings, a vigorous habit, and free-blooming propenities, as many as six blooms being found upon a single stem, borne upon long stalks upon a haulm sometimes 8 feet in height, are a few of the improvements that have been reached by expert growers. Then there is a wonderful range of color, from pure white through exquisite shades of cream and buff, through softest pinks up to a dazzling color approaching scarlet, from porcelain to the deepest blue, and from lilac to the darkest maroon. Then there are stripe!, blotched, and marbled blooms in all the richest art combinations.

The first essential of a sweet-per is its fragrance, and it is pleasing to find that this favor is retained to the fullest extent in most of the improved types.

First Treasurer for Uncle Sam.

Few persons who handle ten-dollar notes take the trouble to look very closely at them. if they did they would notice on the newer notes the picture of Lichael Hillegas with the inscription, "First Treasurer of the United States." For many years it was popularly supposed that Robfield. Muscantine alone produced $2,- jert Morris, the hnancier of the revolution was the first treasurer of this country, and in many books he was hamed as such. The recognition of Hillegas, who was long obscured, is tredited to a descendant, the Rev. Michael Lee Menich, who interested Secretaries Hay and Shaw in his proofs, succeeded in having Hillegas's prior claims acknowledged and his portrait engraved on the $10 note. Hillegas was a Philedelphian , a wealthy sugar refiner. He was second only to Morris during the revolution in procuring funds for Washington's lattered, discontented army. It was he, not Morris, who, after the states and been banded together became irst treasurer of the united country. -Philadelphia Record.
