COMMENCEMENT WEEK

Well Rendered Programs Closes a Successful Year's Work at the Normal.

On Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock the music pupils of the first, second and third grades give a recital. On Friday evening a students' recital was given in Normal Auditorium.

The Junior contest in oratory was held on Saturday evening at which time an interesting program was rendered. On Sunday afternoon the baccalaureate sermon was preached by Dr. D. J. Waller, Jr. MIDDLERS DRAMA.

"The Lady of Lyons," a play in five acts and numerous scenes, was presented in the Normal auditorium Monday evening in the presence of an audience that entirely filled the large auditorium.

CLASS REUNIONS.

Tuesday was essentially one of reunions at the Normal School, a large number of alumni being present from many classes. The only classes in reunion, however, were 1883, 1893, 1898, 1903 and 1906. The shining light at all of the reunions and especially of the older classes was C. for a lot of ground situate in the B. Noetling, of Beaver Valley, a former instructor at the school and one beloved by all who had the privilege of receiving instruction from him. He was given a very hearty

IVY DAY EXERCISES.

Forming two by two, each carrying acre situate in Fishingereek town- an orange and black pennant and joined by long chains of daisies, the class of '08 of the Bloomsburg Normal School marched to the lower campus Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock where a most appropriate Ivy program was rendered.

DR. WALLER GAVE GOOD ADVICE.

Joseph Shovlin, president of the class, acted as chairman of the meeting and after a few remarks, called upon Dr. D. J. Waller, who very happily gave some good, sound advice to the graduating class. He congratulated the members of the class upon the success of their efforts and spirit during the time that he has had their acquaintanceship. The class has been a harmonious one and could look back to allow the diploma which they would receive to satisfy them but to use it as a fourdation upon which to build higher. The importance of an education is greater now than ever before. Many of the men and women of influence are those with a college education. He urged them to get as high an edcuation as they could possibly attain. In this country you can go as high as you want to in education, it is only a question of determination and sacrifice.

CLASS POEM READ.

The class poem was then read by Miss Martha James and was an excellent one giving a brief sketch of the three years' work at the school and many pleasant occurrences.

IVY ORATION GOOD.

The Ivy oration, by Merrill Smith, was an excellent one and was given in a distinct tone of voice. He stated that the Ivy used to symbolize the points or the bright side of life but that he was going to use it in a more serious way. He referred to the Ivy poison, both the three and five amples of the people in life whom we will need to avoid or they will destroy our lives as the Ivy will poison our bodies. Every cloud has a silver lining, is an old saying but the speaker stated that it should be should prepare to meet the dark clouds

PROF. SUTLIFF'S PRACTICAL TALK. Prof. Sutliff was then called and gave a very practical talk which was well received. He stated that he had nothing personal to say of the class of 1908, and that he had no degrees to offer as is often done in the colleges but he had a choice variety of advice to give. The Ivy typifies many things and he expressed a wish that the class of 1908 might have many heads that a crown of Ivy

The class will was well gotten up and was read by Jay Grimes. He bequeathed everything the class owned to different persons at the school, including the faculty. He referred to the money which had been left unalloyed pleasure. He told them not the grove and making it into a handsome park.

CLASS DAY EXERCISES.

Before a large and appreciative audience of parents and others interested in education, the Class Day exercises of the class of 1908 held in Normal auditorium Tuesday evening proved to be one of the best and most appreciated numbers on the Commencement program.

The stage was beautifully decorated with large palms and numerous boquets of cut flowers, while stretched across the front of the stage was a black banner upon which were inscribed the words, "Facta non made by each of the examiners. verba," the class motto, translated deeds, not words. Around the gallery ! was a black strip of bunting upon which hung numerous orange and black pennants and festoons of orange artistically draped around the gallery.

While the Normal orchestra was playing a selection the graduating class marched into the room two by two, the officers of the class and those leaf kind, and used them as ex- participating in the program taking seats on the stage while all others occupied seats in the front part of the auditorium. President of the class, Joseph Shovelin, then gave the President's address in which he extended a hearty welcome to all prechanged to read every silver lining sent. THE SPRING ELECTION.

A Proposed Amendment to the Constitution That Will Abolish It.

The proposed amendment to the constitution of Pennsylvania passed by the Legislature at its last session will be considered by the next Legislature. They should be the subject of free and considerable discussion by the people in the canvass for the election of members. There are several of these proposed amendments, but those which are of the widest concern to all the people of the state are the ones providing for the abolition of the February election. If these amendments are adopted all the elections thereafter, both for general and municipal officials will take place in November. The intention is to so arrange the tenure of the several officials that to their days at the Normal with by the class for the remodeling of the choice of the state officers, with congressmen and members of the Legislature, shall fall upon the even Following the Ivy song by the numbered years, while those officclass, the Ivy was planted along side, ials that are now chosen in February shall be elected in the odd numbered years.
