Making Guesses on Winter Weather.

All the Old Signs Indicate Plenty of Snow and Extreme Cold,

Local weather prophets are already predicting a severe winter. They contend that weeds have grown to an unusual height and that this indicates a severe winter and lots of snow, since nature causes the weeds to grow tall, so that birds can feed upon the seeds when the ground is covered with snow. Another indication, it is contended, is the fact that squirrels carry their winter supply of grain and other ter may be looked for. Said a farmer: "My great grandfather used School, Ocean Wave, Moving Pic-tures, Ferris Wheel, Animal Shows with a good supply of buffalo meat for they were sure of a severe winter. A Strong and Well-Balanced Magazine

Lippincott's brings out an especially good number for October. The complete novel is of an unusual type, with Hawaii as a background. The writer, Jessie Kaufman, lived lific one this year and you can look for some time in this "Paradise of most realistic picture of life there. Her character drawing is wonderful, and one cannot out suspect that she has taken the liberty of sketching various people whom she has met. The plot has to do with the mysterious disappearance of a cost ly jewel during one of the delightof the Islands. Circumstances point to the guilt of one of two men, both of whom seem to be above finally revealed, and all lends happily, though not before there has ensued a series of entanglements complications which wou'd prove most harrowing in real life, and which in the story keep the reader blunders been made in sewer conconstantly on the qui vive to see what is going to happen next. There is the usual array of clever short stories, the most noteworthy being "The School-mother," by Owen Oliver; "The Pinhead," by Caroline Lockhert; "The Angel of Happy Hollow," by Luellen Cass Happy Hollow," by Luellen Cass town many times. He amassed a ed pheasant, five in one day, twen-fortune in the business. It is in one week, fifty in one season, Edith Morgan Willett, and "The Lone Huntsman," by Joseph A. Altsheler. There is also a striking and illuminative article on "Founder's Week," Philadelphia's big celebration marking her 225th birthday. All who have thought of and the humorous section, "Wal-nuts and Wine," complete the number—a very creditable one.

SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANTS. Towns Burdened With Debt Will Not be Com

polled to Erect Them.

The following extract from an address delivered recently by Dr. F. H. Snow, of the state board of health, at the convention of the representatives of third class cities in Altoona, will be read with interest by the people of Bloomsburg, inasmuch as Dr. Snow, who was authorized to speak for Dr. Dixon, makes clear the purposes of the state health authorities in reference to sewage disposal, and stated that the financial standing and borrowing possibilities of cities and towns were always carefully considered before a demand was made to erect new sewage plants. Dr. Snow said it is ever the desire of the health authorities to be right than popular. Dr. Dixon, for whom he was authorized to speak officially, would be willing to change any orders given if it could be clearly shown that such change would best serve the interests of the public health. As to the matter of proceeding against corporations and manufacturers for stream pollution, he said the department is not waging a warfare against the operations of industries on account of trade wastes, else many plants would be compelled to close down. These trade wastes, he averred, kill fish but not human beings, and the ac- ; idity of water caused by drainage while unfit for use by manufacturing companies, becomes again suitstream widens and increases in volume. There is a vast differencebe-

tween a nuisance and a menace and it is when the former becomes the latter that the department takes action. The wastes of the human body are deadly poison. They contain live germs instead of chemical poison that live for days after being deposited in the water, and it is always unsafe to drink water in which sewage is deposited. The filter is one safeguard, though a temporary shutdown of the filtration system may cause disease. As to the alleged hardship placed by the department on towns unable to bear the expense of erecting costly plants the doctor said a misconception of the real objects and purposes of the department exists in the minds of those making these charges. In no case has this been done, the officials ever considering the financial standing, indebtedness and borrowing possibilities of towns asked to move in this direction.

In not a few cases have costly struction by cities, that could have been prevented had the assistance of the department been secured; therefore such plans must now be placed before the board for its approval before the same will be sancpossible to have sewage disposal plants constructed by private capital, to become the property of the municipality after a certain number of years, and he would recommend the encouragement of this plan. The convention seemed very much alive to the points covered by the doctor in his address and at its conclusion many questions were asked. As to the question of securing state aid for the erection of the necessary plants he said that in every instance where a decree has

Mrs. Henry Knorr of Aristes died at the Joseph Ratti Hospital last Thursday. The amputation was made necessary by blood poisoning resulting from the cutting of a bunion.

People living in the upper end of Dauphin county say that they have never known so many deer to be seen in the seven mountain ranges which cross the county into Perry. Deer have been rare in Dauphin ber 1st to January 1st. until this spring, but this fall the number has increased to a surprising extent. The explanation is that the deer left the Juniata Valley because of the fires in the woods and sought shelter in Perry, where they crossed the Susquehanna into Dauphin county.

That there are a number of bears and deer on the Nescopeck mountain is the report of farmers who live in that section. One day last week William Hertz, of Berwick, while bicycling along the creek, passed a small doe that was drinking at the stream. The doe fled up thirty days thereafter. the hill at his approach. Bear tracks have been seen along the creek also, and it is believed that the drought has dried up the mountain springs so that to get to water the wild animals must come near to civilization. A farmer saw three bear cubs across the creek with a mother bear last week also.
