

LET THE PEOPLE RULE

APPEAL TO DEMOCRATS

for Bryan and Kern Campaign Fund, from the Democratic National Committee.

To Geo. E. Elwell, Editor of the COLUMBIAN.

There are no secrets in this Campaign. Strictly practicing what he preaches, Mr. Bryan will not win victory with tainted money paying the election expenses.

Not a dollar is to be accepted which requires any promise, either express or implied, other than for HONEST, IMPARTIAL GOVERNMENT.

Mr. Bryan will enter the White House absolutely free from entangling alliances, free to serve all classes of honest citizens alike, or he will not enter at all.

Hence the course is plain. The campaign of Bryan and Kern must be conducted by the people.

The people must pay the necessary campaign expenses if they want public servants who will serve their interests.

Special interests and favored classes, having secured "SWOLLEN FORTUNES" by purchasing favors in the past with MILLIONS CONTRIBUTED TO CONTROL ELECTIONS, stand ready to give MILLIONS MORE FOR CONTINUED FAVORS.

Mr. Bryan says, from March 4th, 1909, "LET THE PEOPLE RULE."

This can come only if the people pay their own bills, and control their own elections.

"BEWARE OF THE TRUSTS BEARING GIFTS."

That policy of the favored few buying a mortgage on the Government meant that the Candidate for President knew a few people only in an entire State.

Bryan says, "We will take the cause of PEOPLE'S RULE home to the people and will know people in every county."

You can serve the grand cause of popular government.

Your paper reaches the fireside of the patriot who loves his country for his country's GOOD; as distinguished from the greedy possessor of swollen fortunes who loves his country only for his country's GOODS.

Asking every one who favors Government by the people to pay you, at once, as many dollars as he can spare to aid the Campaign for BRYAN, KERN AND PEOPLE'S RULE.

You forward these gifts of honest hearts and home every two weeks to the Treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, with the name of each contributor and amounts given.

Once more, you should be a part of the Great Organization bearing the Lamp of Light to every nook and corner of Free America.

Our Country is for the People; its Government must be by the People.

Sincerely, NORMAN E. MACK, Chairman Democratic National Com. M. C. WETMORE, Chairman Finance Committee. C. N. HASKELL, Treasurer.

SEND IN YOUR CONTRIBUTIONS.

In accordance with the above the COLUMBIAN will receive subscriptions to the Democratic National Campaign Fund and urges all loyal Democrats to send in their contributions.

The COLUMBIAN will transmit them weekly to Gov. C. N. Haskell, treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, who will issue to each contributor a beautifully executed acknowledgment printed in three colors as a souvenir of their devotion to the cause of Democracy and the principles of Government by the People.

When sending in your contribution money use the accompanying remittance blank, and, unless otherwise requested, your name will be printed in THE COLUMBIAN together with the amount given.

MONKEYS FIND AN EASY MARK

Collect Prof. Haggerty's Bananas as He Tests Their Imitative Faculties.

Because it was a very hot day and news was dull the city editor sent a reporter to the New York Bronx Zoo to see how Melvin Haggerty, a Harvard Professor, is getting along in the monkey house, where he is spending the summer in the interest of Cambridge culture. He is getting a line or several lines, on the intelligence of the intelligent monk. The City Editor wanted some too.

You don't need a guide to point Haggerty as you survey the monkey cages. Haggerty had his clothes on. Strolling up to the cage the reporter asked pleasantly:

Does it seem sort of natural in there?"

Although his name does not sound as if he came from Harvard, there can be no doubt that Haggerty knows his Back Bay and that he is bearing well in mind that a certain other illustrious alumnus is going to get $1-a word for all he says about animals. Therefore Mr. Haggerty is not going to give gratis to the public print what he is finding out from his association with the monkeys. If it does feel natural for him to be with them, he is not going to tell the reporters, and he did not tell this one. But once out of the cage, the young man of science is quite like other folk, and talks enthusiastically of the possibilities of just what monkeys think of the rest of mankind.

He's been with the monkeys quite a while now, and already he knows more tricks than Marceline ever dreamed of. It is stated on good authority, however, that Haggerty will not be turned from his serious purpose by any tempting offers he may get from the stage. He is there to study monkey psychology to the end that Newport may not have anything on Harvard in the future. His able assistant are two cultured ring-tailed monkeys who are said to be honorary graduates of the university. At any rate they are highly educated and extremely useful as the connecting links—or missing links, if you will—between Haggerty and the other inhabitants of the cages.

Haggerty has started in with the twenty ring-tails of the Zoo, and when he wrings out all the knowledge that they possess he will pass up the scale until he reaches Baldy, the chimpanzee. It is no secret in the monkey house that Baldy is "laying" for the Haggerty person, and that it will take a full-sized Harvard intellect and some muscle to cope with the big fellow. It may all end with chimpanzee literature being enriched by a treatise from Baldy on "What I Know About Man." There are a few other things coming Haggerty's way, so the keepers say, with ominous shakes of the head.

One of the young man's methods of finding out how much sense the monkeys possess is by a trick box in which he places food. The monk who discovers how to open the box is considered to be far more intelligent than the one who rudely demolishes the apparatus in order to get what is inside. But the latter monkey eats first.

Haggerty first lets one of his pet monkeys open the box in full view of the cage full of monkeys. There is great excitement when the animal who has had the benefit of a Harvard education pulls out a banana. But let it be said to the credit of higher education in the Bronx, that the Zoo monkeys have proved themselves apt pupils. While they don't display the finesse that only the Cambridge atmosphere gives, nevertheless they generally get the banana, and that's what counts here in New York.

Another apparatus used by the Professor is a rope operating through a pulley suspended from the ceiling. A banana is attached to the upper end of the rope, while the lower end dangles just above a hole in a platform resting under the apparatus. The trick monkeys lower away on a rope until the fruit descends within reach.

Recently Harrigan, a big muscled monk, was led out of his cage, after he had seen the trick performed a number of times. Plainly showing lack of education, Harrigan grabbed the rope violently and pulled the whole business down. The Harvard monkeys chattered their disgust as Harrigan ran off with the banana.

Prof. Haggerty is taking his job very seriously, and does most of his stunts while the public is not around. So don't go up to the Zoo expecting to see a free show.

It gigantic size may be judged by Buried Church Treasure in England.

There must be a good deal of treasure in the form of church plate and so forth concealed in different parts of the country, as quantities of it were buried at the time of the dissolution of the monasteries.

There are two legends in Worcestershire regarding some silver bells, for instance, which have been handed down most persistently from one generation to another, since the sixteenth century. One version of the story is that the bells were buried by the last Abbot of Evesham, Abbot Litchfield, in a subterranean passage which formerly existed between the abbey and a house on the opposite bank of the river, while the other story has it that a peal of silver bells was buried at the same period (the dissolution of the monasteries) at Abbots Morton, a village ten miles distant from Evesham.—Wide World Magazine.

The Philadelphia Record Actively Supports Bryan

A Presidential contest that will undoubtedly be waged with unusual vigor on both sides of the line dividing the great national parties is now in full swing. Politics will be the principal topic of discussion wherever men congregate until the claims of the rival candidates shall be settled at the ballot-box in November. It goes without saying that accurate information of the campaign chess-board will be indispensable to every wide-awake voter.

Democrats turn naturally to "The Philadelphia Record" for such information. It is the only Democratic newspaper in Philadelphia recognized the country over as one of the leading exponents of Democratic opinion on this side of the Continent. It is fair, though partisan; it chronicles the telling blow, no matter who is hit. Suppression and misrepresentation are weapons that have no place in its armory. "Square deal" Democrats and Republicans will find the daily budget of "The Record" essential to an intelligent understanding of the progress of a lively Presidential canvass.

No newspaper ever achieved popularity on the strength of its political attitude alone. "The Philadelphia Record" is no exception to the rule. It is lifted above the common level by many distinctive features that appeal to the varied interests of every member of the household. It prints the news—all the news—in a concise, brisk form that has come to be

The City of Pills. There is one city in the world today which bears an absolutely unique distinction, and that is Detroit—the "City of Pills." In one year it is estimated that Detroit makes and manufactures three-quarters of the world's supply of pills, or over 5,000,000,000 pellets, of all sizes, shapes and colors, and intended for almost every ailment of human kind. In this city are made over 2,000 different varieties of pills and if a single season's crop were made of some deadly poison there would be enough to depopulate the entire globe twice over. To look at it in another way, if this annual harvest was strung, like pop-corn, the rope of pills would reach three times around the earth at the equator. To-day America is the greatest pill-consuming nation on earth, for while Detroit pills find their way to every conceivable corner of the globe, from the frozen regions of the Arctic to the deepest fastnesses of tropical jungles, not more than one-third of the total product leaves this country, the average consumption being something like 60 pills per capita per year.—Technical World Magazine.
