

IDEAL HUSBAND MUST BE BOSS

He Need Not Be Wealthy, in the Opinion of Marriageable Young Chicago Women

THEY NEED NOT BE HANDSOME

More Than One Hundred Girls Were Asked to Define the Model Husband and All Named Love as a Requisite—No Dudes Wanted.

Chicago.—Cupid was working overtime at the Halsted Street Institutional Church Sunday night. The Rev. D. D. Vaughan, the pastor, is determined to marry the single men and women of his flock. He asked more than one hundred single women a series of questions on the subject of a "model husband."

Each one of the 100 single women, as well as twenty-five married "girls" who have answered the minister's questions, says she wants the man to be the boss. None of them desires a "dude" and only six specify "handsome" as befitting the ideal.

Five of the women answered that they didn't wish "model" husbands, but "ideal" ones, and gave their opinions after changing the word in their "copy." The Rev. Mr. Vaughan smiled at the first three objections. Then two came by the next mall explaining that "model" means "a small imitation of the real thing," and the pastor's apologies followed.

"Do you want him to be the head of the house?" was the first question propounded.

"Yes," answered 121. "No," said one. "We will divide the honors," replied the others.

"Do you want him always to follow your bidding?"

All replies were in the negative. "Do you want him to give his time to succeed in business or his home?"

"Let him so arrange as to make a success of both," or words to that effect, replied the 125.

"Do you care whether he loves you, or do you really want a home?" was the fourth question.

"He must love me, for I am able to provide a home for myself," was the variable reply.

"Do you prefer a business or a professional man?"

The minister said he wasn't sure of his figures on this question, but expressed the belief that "about one-third wanted professional men, one-third preferred business men, and one-third just wanted men who made a respectable living."

"Must he be wealthy?" was the sixth question, and there was not an affirmative reply in the lot.

SVEN HEDIN AWED TIBETANS.

By Venturing Upon the Waters in a Boat with Wings.

St. Petersburg, Russia.—Sven Hedin, the explorer, who is now here en route to Stockholm, chatting about his travels said the English acted very illogically in their recent dealings with Tibet. They took it and then gave it up. The result is that China, whose influence and authority there have been slack and waning for centuries, is now taking a firm hold again—in fact is renewing the grip of steel in which the early Mauchu emperors held the country.

Among the main causes of Hedin's immunity from the hostility to foreigners which practically makes it impossible for others to explore Tibet was a simple incident which, quite undesignedly on his part, made the natives ascribe miraculous powers to him. He said:

"I made several expeditions in a boat on the great lake in the interior of Tibet and there quickly spread remarkable legends throughout the country about a foreign lama who had power over the elements and wings with which he could fly on the waters. The Tibetans came to believe that I commanded the weather, thanks to my boating trips, for they had never seen a boat of any kind before and never dreamed of venturing upon the waters of their inland seas themselves in any way."

TO HARNESS HOT AIR.

Hunter Discovers It Issuing in Vast Volume from Crevice.

Colorado Springs, Colo.—Bertram Webb, who has been hunting in the vicinity of Ute Pass above Manitou, on the side of Pike's Peak, claims to have found a huge crevice in the side of the mountain from which a strong current of hot air issues.

Webb says he will acquire the property and pipe the air to Manitou and Colorado City for heating purposes if the scheme is feasible.

MAKES FLAG 39x100 FEET.

Pullman Woman Will Present It to State College Regiment.

Pullman, Wash.—What is believed to be the biggest flag in the United States was made by Mrs. Mitchell, wife of Captain H. E. Mitchell, U. S. A., military instructor at the State college, for the military ball in the college gymnasium. The flag is 35 feet wide and 100 feet long. The stripes are one yard wide.

SOLDIER OF LUXURY.

A Colombian General Who Would Not Fight Without Milk in His Coffee.

The Colombian revolution, although so terrible in its results, was not without its humorous features. One of the funniest of those was the incident of the general who would not fight without his milk. Gen. Perez was in command of the government troops at Cali. One day news arrived that the liberals had captured a neighboring town. Perez was ordered to start with his army at 7 o'clock next morning to attack them. He went to the barracks, made a patriotic speech to the soldiers, and told them to parade at the appointed hour. Then he sauntered into the Hotel America, Cali's finest restaurant, and ordered coffee for 6.30 in the morning.

The troops were lined up at that hour outside the hotel, and the general strutted to and fro, waiting for his coffee and telling everybody what terrible things he was going to do, to the enemy. But a complication arose. Perez had not been a general long, but he wanted milk in his coffee, whereas nine Colombians out of ten are content with black coffee. There was no milk. The cows are kept three or four hours' journey out of town, and, of course, milk cannot be kept over night in that tropical climate. The hotel folk figured that the milk could not arrive before 11 o'clock.

The general fumed and fretted. Some of his officers suggested he had better start without the milk, or the enemy would escape; but he said it was impossible to fight on black coffee. He sent a soldier post haste to fetch the milk, and then another after him to hurry him up. Meanwhile the army stood in the broiling sun for hours, awaiting the order to march. It was nearly noon when the messengers returned.

"No milk," they reported. "Caramba! Then I won't march till to-morrow."

And the general dismissed his men and would not go until next morning, after his cafe du lait. Of course, when he reached his destination the liberals had flown, and he was deprived of his glorious victory by a miserable spoonful of milk.—World's Work.

The Chamberlain Clock.

Recently erected at the corner of Vyse street and Warstone Lane, Birmingham, England, is the latest tribute of his fellow-townsmen to Joseph Chamberlain. The clock shown in the accompanying illustration stands 28 feet high and has four dials. It is intended to stand in commemoration of the services to the empire of the ex-Colonial Secretary in connection with his work in South Africa during and after the war. The subscriptions for the clock were collected entirely among the workmen of Birmingham, to whom Mr. Chamberlain of Birmingham—himself a large employer of labor—is a popular idol.

The occasion of the starting of the clock was made one of importance, an immense meeting being held in the Birmingham Town Hall, at which speeches were delivered by representatives of the workmen of the town as well as a number of prominent citizens. Mr. Chamberlain's services to his country and to his native town were lauded, and he was assured of the continued support of his neighbors in his new political programme.

In reply, the ex-Secretary, after expressing his thanks for the honor which had been done him, went into a discussion of the causes and the outcome of the war in South Africa. He assured his hearers that at all times, both before and during the struggle, he had realized the gravity of the undertaking, and vehemently denied that he had entered upon the war with a light heart, as had been asserted by some among his political opponents.

Theseus was preparing to fight the Minotaur. "You will be up against a hard proposition," remarked one of his admirers.

"Yes, I know," said Theseus, "but, don't you see, if I get the decision I can challenge Jeffries."

Without another word he proceeded to get a reputation.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Glimpses into Mythology.

Medea was assisting Jason in his efforts to capture the Golden Fleece. "Just follow my instructions," she said, "and everything will turn out for the best."

"Perhaps," was his dubious reply, "but if Mrs. Jason hears of this the yellow journals won't do a thing to me!"

With much misgiving he went about his task.

MAKES HER WAY AS MAN

Maude Allen, Young Mulatto Posing For Eight Years as Boy, Graduates and is Made Teacher.

Baltimore, Md.—After masquerading as a young man for eight years because she believed it would give her better chances for advancement in the world, Maude Allen, alias "James Allen," a bright young mulatto woman, has been arrested for wearing male attire. As a girl in her teens she passed at the head of her class in a boys' high school, and as a young woman in trousers she became a teacher in the public schools of Baltimore.

Maude, or James, is now twenty-four and first donned man's attire when she was sixteen. She says: "On entering the Baltimore Colored High School the thought occurred to me that I might make a big success in life as a man. I know that a woman of my race has not much chance, so with due thought I shaved my head and bought an entire outfit of men's clothes. We were then living in another part of town, so, with my grandmother, who was the only one who knew my secret, we moved to the house in which we now live."

"I got through the school in three years, graduating at the head of my class. I was appointed a teacher at a Brooklyn school and several months ago transferred to School No. 106, in this city. I see no reason as to why I should not be allowed to dress as I please. I am surely not different from the majority of other members of my race. I should not be hampered."

Never once was the sex of the young "man," who daily sat at the desk in a public school, suspected. She was an active worker in Ebenezer Baptist Church and taught a Sunday school class. This was the only chance for her to mix with men, as she kept completely aloof from the negroes of the neighborhood in which she lived, going to her home immediately after school and remaining in the company of her grandmother. When seen at her home to-day she was dressed in a natty suit of blue serge. Tall of stature, she would easily be mistaken for a youth of twenty. She also possessed a rather heavy beard.

A short time ago the woman was taken ill and entered the Maryland General Hospital, where it was discovered that she was not a man. The police yesterday went to the hospital and placed the woman under arrest. She paid $50 fine and costs and was given twenty-four hours in which to change to feminine apparel.

MAN AND HAWK BATTLE.

Venturesome Person Torn at Bottom of 90-Foot Pit.

Nutley, N. J.—Hawk battled with man at the bottom of a pit, ninety feet below the surface of the ground, in Nutley, and though the man won he will carry his right hand in a sling for many days, as the hawk's bill tore it deeply in a dozen places. And the hawk was only a chicken hawk at that.

Charles W. Barker, of Passaic avenue, saw three of the airy fowl fanciers hovering over the chicken yards of Emil Schneider. He shouted to Schneider, who got his gun and fired, wounding one of the hawks. That bird fell into an abandoned stone quarry.

"Lower me on a rope and I'll get him," volunteered Barker. Down he went ninety feet and reached for the wounded hawk. There was a beating of wings, a clutching by sharp-pointed talons and the men above heard Barker yell in pain. But he threw himself bodily upon the savage bird and got a strange hold on it. After he and his captiv were hoisted up the hawk was measured. It spanned four feet from tip to tip of wings. Barker is suffering severely and there is fear of blood poisoning.

IDENTIFY HER BY TICKLING.

Refused to Show Gold Tooth and so Detectives Made Her Laugh.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Tickling as a means of identification is an innovation of the local detective department tried this morning. A seventeen-year-old girl, giving her name as Annie Brown, had been arrested on the charge of being a daring boarding house thief. Detective Tucker had a warrant from Allentown for a runaway girl. The warrant gave as the prime mark for identification the fact that she had a curious gold tooth.

Tucker frowned upon the girl. "Open your mouth," he commanded. She refused, and even resisted successfully efforts to pry her mouth open. Then Tucker reached forward and tickled the girl on the neck. Others did likewise, and tickling her on the neck became a copied diversion. Finally she could stand it no more and burst out laughing. Then it was seen that she had a gold tooth. She is held as an incorrigible girl.

Women Hard to Cure by Hypnotism.

Washington, D. C.—Women who are addicted to an immoderate use of intoxicants are less susceptible than men to treatment of hypno-suggestion, according to the view expressed to-night by Dr. J. D. Quackenbos, of New York City, at the meeting of the American Society for the Study of Alcohol and Other Narcotic Drugs. The statement of Dr. Quackenbos that he had permanently cured more than eight hundred patients by the method of hypno-suggestion after the subjects had become asleep through the use of a drug aroused vigorous protests from several leading scientists, who challenged its accuracy.

IN RE APPLICATION OF THE BLOOMSBURG LITERARY INSTITUTE FOR AMENDMENTS TO CHARTER AND CHANGE OF NAME.

Notice is hereby given that a petition was presented to the Court of Common Pleas of Columbia County on the 12th day of May, A. D., 1909, by the Bloomsburg Literary Institute to make the following amendments to its charter, to wit:—

Amending the name, style and title of the corporation from "The Bloomsburg Literary Institute" to the "Bloomsburg Literary Institute and State Normal School of the Sixth District"; increasing the number of trustees from nine to eighteen; changing the time of the Annual Stockholders Meeting from the first Saturday to first Monday in May; designating the officers of the corporation as President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer; the manner and mode of election and appointment of trustees; increasing the quorum of the Board of Trustees from five to seven; fixing the capital stock at $30,000.00, divided into 1000 shares, prohibiting dividends upon the capital stock of the corporation and enlarging the purposes and scope of the institution; whereupon the following Interlocutory Decree was entered, to-wit:—

And now May 12th, 1909, the foregoing petition having been presented and read, and it appearing to the Court that due notice of this application and these proceedings were given to the Auditor General, on the 5th day of May 1909, and the court upon consideration thereof being of the opinion that the said amendments and change of name of said corporation will be lawful, beneficial, and not injurious to the community and not in conflict with the requirements of the Constitution or the laws of the Commonwealth, it is therefore ordered that said petition or writing be filed in the office of the Prothonotary of the court, and notice thereof be inserted in two newspapers printed in said county, for three weeks, setting forth that said application has been made, and that a final decree will be made on the 14th day of June, 1909, at 10 o'clock, A. M., in conformity with the prayer of the petition, unless sufficient reason be shown why the same should not be done.

The Watchword of Women. Modesty is woman's watchword. Whatever threatens her delicate sense of modesty, frightens her. For this reason many a woman permits diseases of the delicate womanly organs to become aggravated because she cannot bring herself to question the ordeal of unpleasant examinations, offensive examinations, and obnoxious local treatments, which some physicians find necessary. Doubtless thousands of the women who have taken advantage of Dr. Pierce's offer of free consultation by letter, have been led to do so by the escape thus offered from a treatment repugnant to modesty. Any sick woman may write to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.; in perfect confidence; all letters being treated as strictly private and sacredly confidential, and all answers being sent in plain envelopes with no advertising or other printing upon them. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been long hailed as a "God-send to women." It makes weak women strong and sick women well. "Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol. All its ingredients printed on every bottle-wrapper.
