From our Regular Correspondent.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9, 1909 The tariff bill is finally passed Congress has adjourned, the Presi dent is packing his goods and chattels preparatory to moving to his summer home at Beverly, Massachusetts and the few members of the cabinet who have not already left Washington are preparing to do so at the earliest opportunity. The President and the Senate The tentative program compiled leaders are rejoiced that their task much turmoil and anxiety that short of the promises and expectamatter, of the Republican national platform. In the eleventh hour of the consideration of the measure it became necessary for the Senate leaders to devise a scheme for lowering the duties on leather goods still further than they had done in conference. Under the law as finalshoes, of 20 per cent. on all harness Among these the dust problem and on all saddlery. As it passed looms prominent. After passing the tariff bill the House gave the President one more Logan Waller Page, director of the U. S. Office of Public Reads, will bring out some sharp contrasts less the Executive would promise ran for Governor last fall and was ment urged Mr. Roosevelt not to exercise executive clemency at the time, but he thought the hazing of which the cadets had been found guilty amounted to little more than boyish pranks and that dismissal was too severe a punishment. The recent hazing of young Sutton is held by the officers to be the direct result of that elemency, for the cadets got the idea that provided they could exert sufficient political influence they could disregard the law and the regulations with impunity.

A Little Ballot and a Second Choice.

The investigation into the uniform primary laws of this State by a committee from New York brought out strong, if indirect, arguments against the big ballot and to give voters at a primary or even at election an opportunity of expressing a second as well as first choice of candidates. It was stated in the hearings that one man might be selected by the ruling, responsible faction of a party and a dozen free lances might put themselves forward, and that where the alphabetical order is followed with the candidates 20 per cent. of the vote would be cast for the first man by citizens too ignorant or lazy to know what they were doing, or why.

In such a field, too, under the present rule, the chances are that a man who is the choice of but a considerable minority will win. Had each voter the power to name a second as well as a first choice for each office, then a majority could be required to nominate or elect, no matter how many men were running. As has been shown, the failure of any one of a group of candidates for the same place to get a clear majority would result in the throwing out of the low man and the redistribution of his votes as the second choices on his ballots signified. This process would continue until some candidate had a clear majority.

Whenever there are fewer names on the ballot, that is, whenever the minor offices that the people pay no attention to now are made appointive and responsibility is clearly fixed, voters will give more attention to what they vote for.

Opponents of the primary system are fighting the same losing fight that the opponents of the Australian ballot did and for the same reasons. They are the same type of men precisely.

And in most cases it is their manipulation of conventions that is forcing the primary system now just as it was their unblushing frauds at the ballot box and purchase of votes when they could be sure that the goods were being delivered that brought the Australian ballot on their heads. -Pittsburg Sun.

"to be deposited in banks, and thus making the public funds liable to use for political purposes.

The simplification of the ballot and the better preservation of its secrecy are essential to free and honest elections, and the platform demands both. The neglect to push the prosecution of the Capitol looters is pointed out; to condemu this negligence is alone a sufficient reason why the Republican ticket should be defeated. The pending tariff is obviously a "direct violation of the promises of the Republican party," and "framed for the benefit of special interests." Labor unions, "acting within the limits of the law and not subversive of public order or individual rights," are very justly commended.

The platform also calls for State pensions for civil war veterans and their widows, and an income tax. It is free from ambiguity: it expresses Democratic convictions, and it gives abundant reasons why several thousand Republicans should vote the ticket this fall .- Record.

The fact is that most of the Republicans, all to whom the term 'old line'' applies, are hostile to a tariff commission. They are afraid to have the facts ascertained even by a Republican President, and facts will prove an almost fatal blow to the protective system, and, for political and politico financial support which has done so much to perpetuate the Republican majorities in the two houses of Congress. There has been no feature of the tariff Congress which has so effectively demonstrated to the thoughtful observer the hollowness of most icy as the opposition with which President Taft's efforts to secure a commission which would be competent to procure the facts has been met. Nothing could account for this persistent opposition except the fear of the Republicans in congress to have the facts known. _

The Dollar Road Tax.

The dollar road tax has been giving trouble all over the state and collectors and others have been having all kinds of difficulties in collecting the same. The commissioners of Armstrong county to get right wrote to the auditor general about this tax and in reply have received information that the additional dollar tax must be paid in each township in which property is owned. The opinion has prevailed that this tax could only be assessed against property owners in the township in which they resided, but from the above it is understood that the extra dollar can be assessed and collected in every township in which property is owned.

A Novel Hotel. Scranton is to have a new hotel, which is expected to be one of the show places of that section of the country, and what, perhaps, will be its most unique feature will be a "coal mine cafe" located in the centre of the main grill room on the first floor of the hotel. This cafe is to be a replica of a coal mine, with nothing but solid chunks of coal being used in its walls. Everything that appears in a regular mine "chamber" will be embodied in the cafe, such as the rough walls and roof, from which ice cold water will trinkle, as it does in nature. The dark eerie aspect, the lighting by electric torches, made to represent the lamps used in the mine, the extrance and exits, one and all The evil results of President of which are to be made similar to those seen in the anthracite collieries, are bound to make the spot one
