STATE'S MODEL ORCHARDS.

Several in Each County to Instruct Farmers in Methods of Fruit Culture.

It is important to the readers of this paper to know that the Division of Zoology of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture contemplates establishing a number of Model Orchards in this state (there will be about five in each county,) the object being to direct, in each fruit-growing district, the care of an orchard in an up-to-date manner and to show the public how to obtain the best results, especially in pest control. Fruit growers or farmers who will co-operate in this movement, by permitting their orchards to be used for the purpose, should write at once to Prof. H. A. Surface, State Zoologist, Harrisburg, Pa., for information on the subject. It is not proposed to take an old and totally neglected orchard and bring about a complete transformation, but to take under supervision one that is in fair condition, and assist the owner with expert advice and attention in regard to all matters pertaining to the management of the orchard and the suppression of pests. It is believed that the value of the example of one successful man in a neighborhood is beyond computation. Should the methods in his orchard prove to be the best, as shown by indisputable returns of larger yields and better products, it invariably results in other persons adopting the methods which have proved most successful in that locality. The owner of the orchard adopted by the Division of Zoology will be asked to provide himself with a comparatively inexpensive spraying outfit, which the division will help him purchase at the lowest discount price. The Division of Zoology will outline a plan for his orchard management, and furnish, without charge, all materials used for instruction and demonstration purposes, and also aid him in spraying, pruning, thinning of fruit, planting trees, cultivation, fertilization and such other practical work as may be necessary to secure the best results. The public will be invited to visit the orchard at least three times in each year, and witness demonstrations of spraying, pruning, planting, etc., and no orchard will be accepted without a distinct understanding in that respect. Here is an unusual opportunity for obtaining expert aid in orchard management, of which no enterprising farmer should fail to avail himself.

New Postal Cards.

Postmaster General Hitchcock has approved the designs for the new postal cards, which will be issued January first.

On the ordinary card, the head of the late President McKinley will appear, as now, but a much better likeness of the martyred President has been selected. On the new small card, intended for index purposes and for social correspondence, a likeness of President Lincoln will appear. The two-cent international card will bear a portrait of General Grant. The reply card will have a portrait of Washington on the first half and one of Martha Washington on the reply half.

The new Milton fair project appears to be a go. According to the Evening Standard, one hundred and thirty shares of a par value of $50 each have been subscribed. A meeting of the subscribers will be held on Tuesday, December 14th, to elect a board of directors and take the preliminary steps toward organization and the procuring of a charter.

Good Pictures.

An interesting series of moving pictures at the Lyric last Monday evening showed the Wright aeroplane in operation at Fort Myers. To a few it brought back memories of the Hudson-Fulton; to others it furnished an excellent idea of the appearance of the human bird.

The Columbia likewise showed two interesting pictures of a Spanish bull fight, and of the operations in the manufacturing of dolls. It is this kind of pictures that instruct, as well as entertain the public.

Fire Escape at Columbia Theatre.

As the present fire escapes at Columbia Theatre do not seem to meet the full requirements of the law, Dr. John, the owner will erect new ones. Wider doors will be cut at the entrance to the fire escape, and it will be extended the full length of the building. The cost will be about $700.

A man committed suicide last Friday in Philadelphia by jumping from a sixteenth story window of the Real Estate Trust building. He would probably have been just as successful if he had tried it from the fifteenth.

Contrivance for Students.

A contrivance of silk and wire to fit over the mouth and nostrils is the latest thing from Paris. It is worn at the Bibliotheque Nationale by the students of old books and manuscripts to prevent the inhalation of disease germs. These aged volumes are nests of germs. In the great French library masked readers are as common as masked motorists in the boulevards.

CENSUS OFFICE.

Supervisor Apple Opens Headquarters at Sunbury—Four Counties in District.

Census Supervisor Apple, of Sunbury, in charge of the district, comprising the counties of Montour, Columbia, Sullivan and Northumberland, has secured offices in the First National Bank building, Sunbury, and is busy completing the preliminary arrangements for making the official count.

The blanks and other supplies have been received from Washington, but as yet none of the enumerators have been appointed. Hundreds of applications have been received and placed on file. The four counties have been divided into one hundred and twenty census districts.

"Uncle Dave Holcomb."

The management of the Columbia Theatre has secured the presentation of "Uncle Dave Holcomb" for Monday evening, November 29th. This play has been running in the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia for several weeks past, and will be given here by the same company.

Here is what the Philadelphia Press says about it:

"A new rural play, entitled, 'Uncle Dave Holcomb,' with William Lawrence, the author, as the star, was disclosed at the Grand Opera House. The audience received it with hearty favor, laughing at its comedy, sympathizing with its pathos and receiving a lesson of right living. Dave Holcomb is an honest and industrious farmer of the Yankee type. To pay for the education of his boy at college, he has mortgaged his farm. When the action opens the young fellow returns home, accompanied by a chum. He endeavors to obtain money from his father, who learns to his horror that the boy is infatuated with a woman of the stage.

The alternative of giving her up or leaving home is presented to the son. He adheres to his infatuation and Uncle Dave orders him away. When the money, which Uncle Dave had saved to pay off the mortgage is stolen, suspicion rests on the son; but the real culprit is Dave's drunken brother, Hiram. When the mortgage demands payment, ruin stares Uncle Dave in the face. Both son and brother leave the old home. Another grief awaits the farmer in the loss of his daughter, who is lured to the city by her brother's oily tongued friend. Uncle Dave's optimistic nature shines through these trials. His humor and shrewd philosophy sustain him.

A wave of temperance in the village numbers Hiram among its converts. He sneaks back home to return the money while a great rally is in progress. A beautiful scene between the two brothers ensues. The daughter also escapes unscathed from her adventure. It is appropriate that the reign of happiness should express itself in a country dance with rural musical effects. Mr. Lawrence gave a capital impersonation of "Uncle Dave." For five years he played "Uncle Josh" in "The Old Homestead." This is a similar role and one equally appealing in its quaint humor, and in its pathetic moments. Marion Shirley impersonated the daughter, "Grace," effectively. She was last seen here as "Madge," of "In Old Kentucky." An excellent character sketch of the drunken brother, "Hiram," was given by Thomas Meegan.

Mr. William Howard Taft is the star optimist of this country. He says he "expects great things from the next session of Congress."—Washington Herald.
