No Blessings of Grief.

Prophet and poet and priest have always made stock talk of the chastening and beneficial effects of sorrow and grief, which is utterly and bitterly contrary to the experience of the modern experienced practitioners of medicine, alienists and directors of institutions for the insane. Deep grief in moderns is a most pernicious emotion which is now drowned out as quickly as possible. Perhaps modern man differs greatly in nervous structure from his rugged, sound, quiet, solern, sleepy ancestors. Anyhow, the old traths of the blessings of grief nolonger maintain. Blessed is the man be strong; From Power House. true he may sorrow, but he will not sorrow long, for some strong-minded men can in a few hours or days east away a grief that would haunt a weakling into the grave,

Beef and Bald Heads.

It is a matter of common observation and mention among market menthat meat handlers, carriers and wagoners who tote the big beef quarters on their shoulders seldom or never get baldheaded. This seems to show that the yet alive juices, serums and fats from the beef enter into the scalp and hair follibles to nourish and sustain It. Or the juices may not in their germ-killing capacity and so destroy germ invasion into any part of the hedr. Tip has never yet heard it maintained that the hald-headed were restored in this fresh meat smearing way, which only keeps good hair fast and strong and gloriously greasy.-

New York Press. One of Lamb's Witticisms.
