ed a stock holder in the company, to an amount equal to the premium paid, with the almost posiive certainty of a return of forty per cent. gain it is only nece sary that a small amount, e qual to half the premium, should be paid in cash Balance is paid by the note of the person insured thereby making actual cepital out of the individ thereby making actual ceptual out of the individ-ual's dwn liability. These are some of the ad-vantages of this company over most o hers. Any person by calling upon the subscriber can be made fully acquainted , with all the operations of made fully acquainted with all the operations of the institution, who has made such arrangements that he will forward to the company all premium notes and obtain policies free of postage to any one wishing to insure. As the business of the company increases and nothing more than ordinary mortality prevails, the premium to be paid annually will diminish, and in time will be extinguished by dividends of profits. This is a peculiar division of the parameter with a first premium to be paid. liar advantage in Life Insurances - unlike fi.e in surances, investments are made all over a coun'ry of varied character and healthfulness, and the life of one person is not dependant on that of another. as one pie e of property in a cityor town may be on the safety of destruction of another. A small saving annually may en ble may man to secure a handsome provison for his family. Indeed in most cases the sum thus expended would never be felt, while if sudden death should ensue before a composence by other means is acquired, the funds for theme support and comfort is thus realized. The following are some of the numerous in stances of fortunate insurances: "The Equitable Society of Lendon commenced the business of Life Insurance in England in 17 62, without capital; and although the benefits at that time were but little known or appreciated yet it now has over 8,000 members, with a capital of over fifty millions of dollars, and that in a country where the investment of their surplus fund bes not average three per cent. Whereas in this country six per cent can generally be ob-tained, so that the principal of accumulation would be much greater here than in England.— The report of American companies also strengthen and confirm this position, and a striking illus ration of the value of an old policy, we here give, by citing an example from the transactions of the said Society. Its only capital was that of the accruing premiums, it, however, in process of time, became one of the most successful and prosperous companies in Great Britain. Mr. Alogan, the able actuary of this Society, in his address to the general court, in the year 13000, says: "Suppose a lite of 35 to have been insured says: "Suppose a life of 35 to have been insured in the year 1769, in the sum of £1,000, at the unnual premium of £30; in the course of thirty one years, this sum being laid out annually to be im proved at the same rate of interest at which the promums are computed, would now have accumulated to £1,500. If however, this policy were now surrendered, the sam of £1,527 would be paid for the value of it; so that the person will have been assurred for thirty one years in the surof £1,000, (exclusively of the adds ion) not only without expense, but even with the advantage of receiving £27 as a gracuity at the end of Very many practical examples of the blessing of Life Insurance are continually necurring among all classes of our citizens .- We have only room for the following, which occurred in the city of New York and its vicinity in the course, of one "A merchant in September insured his life to
