8. That the general government, by extending its jurisdiction over Lakes and navigable rivers, subjecting them to the same laws which prevail on the ocean, and on its bays and ports, not only for purposes of revenue, but to give security to life and property, by the regulation of Steamboats, has preluded itself from denying that jurisdiction for any other legitimate regulation of Commerce. If it has power to control and restrain, it must have the same power to protect, assist and facilitate, and if it denies the jurisdiction in the one mode of action, it should renounce it in the other.

9. That in consequence of the peculiar danger of the navigation on the Lakes, arising from the want of Harbors for shelter, and of the Western Rivers from snags and other obstructions, there are no parts of the United States more emphatically demanding the prompt and continued care of the Government to diminish those dangers and to protect the property and life exposed to them: and that any one who can regard provisions for those purposes as sectional, local and not national, must be wanting in information of the extent of the commerce carried on upon those lakes and rivers, and of the amount of teeming population occupied or interested in that navigation.

10. That having regard to the population or to the extent of commerce, the appropriations heretofore made for the interior rivers and lakes and the streams convecting them with the ocean, have not been in a just and fair proportion to those made for the bencfit of the Atlantic coast; and that the time had arrived when this injustice should be corrected in the only mode in which it can be done by the united, persevering and determined and efforts of those whose rights have been overlooked.

11. That independent of this right to protection of "Commerce among the States," the right of "common defence" guarantied by the Constitution: entitles those citizens inhabiting the country, bordering upon the intener lakes and rivers, to such safe and convenient harbors as may afford shelter to a Navy whenever it shall be rendered necessary by hostilities with our neighbors; and that the construction of such harbors cannot safely be delayed to the time which will demand their immediate use.

12. That the argument most commonly urged against appropriations to protect 'commerce among the States, and to defend the inhabitants of the frontiers, that they invite sectional combinations, to insure success to many unworthy objects, is founded on a practical distrust of the Republican principles of our Government, and of the capacity of the people to select, competent and honest reprecotatives. That it may be urged with equal force against legislation upon any other Subject involving various and extensive interests. That a just appreciation of the rights and in-terests of all our fellow-citizens, in every quarter of the Union, disclaming selfish and local purposes, will lead intelligent representitives to such a distribution of the means in the Treasury, upon a system of moderation and ultimate equality, as will in time meet the most urgent wants wants of all, and prevent those jealousies and suspicions which threaten the most serious danger to pur con-lederacy.

13. That we are utterly incapable of percoving the difference between a harbor for shelter and a hubor for commerce, and suppose that a mole or pier which will afford sale anchorage and profection to a vessel against the storm, must hecessarily improve such harbor and adapt it to commercial purposes.
14. That the revenue derived from imposts on Foreign goods belong to the whole people and the public lands being the common heritage of all our citizens, so long ast these resources continue, the imposition of any special burden on any portion of people, to obtain the means of accomplishing objects equally within the daty and competency of the General Government, would be unjust and oppressive;

tempt to connect cause of internal trade and Commerce among the States', with the fortunes of any political party, but that we mean to place that cause upon such unmortable pripoples of truth justice, and constitutional duty, as shall command the respect of all parties, and the deference of all candidates for public favor.

Previous to taking the question on the adoption of the report, Mr. J. C. Spencer, of N. Y., made some able remarks illustrating the principles contained in the report. Mr. Gardner, of Troy, addressed the meeting in a few brief and animated romarks in favor of the resolutions.

THIRD AND LAST DAY. Cuicago, Wednesday, July 7. Convention was called to order, and opened with a prayer by the Rev. Dr. Allen, of Mass. On motion of Mr. Blackwell, it was resolved that a committee of three be appointed to superintend the publication and distribution, in pamphlet form, of the proceedings of the convention. Judge Thomas, of Ill., sail that the citizens of Chicago claimed the priviledge of paying the expenses of publishing the proceedings, which was acceded to. Mr. Speucer offered a resolution directing the publication of the proceedings of the convention. The motion was adopted, after much discussion, thus taking the place of all others in this relation.

Mr. Hall, of New York, offered a resolution recommending Mr. Wilkie's plan of a Pacific rail road, which was laid upon the table, as was also a motion of Mr. St. John, of Buffalo, to reconsider the last resolution reported from the committee of two, for each

Mr. Brown, of Illinois, affered a preamble and resolution in relation to the free navigation of the St. Lawrence, in connection with the trade of the west, and directing the executive committee to collect facts in regard to the subject, which was laid upon the table.

For the Erie Observer. On examination of the entrance into the Harber at Presque Isle, Lake Huron, I found a middle ground, on each side of which I oldced a Buoy; that on the westward side is in 8 feet water, that on the castward side in 10 feet water. The Buoys will show the width of the shoal. The channel on the eastward much the best for depth of water and space for beating. On the end of the spit running out from the main land, near the wharf, is a Buoy in 10 feet water. I examined the entrance carefully, and found ne other shoals. I also kept the lead going in beating out, and found good wattr but a short distance from the shore, near the light house. The middle ground lies lengthwise to the south and westward; the water shoals gradually on each shore; until you come in the vicinity of the middle bround you will find from a quarter less three to half four. The Buoys are paint-DANIEL DOBBINS. Captain U. S. Revenue Cutter Erie. VIRTUES OF THE BUCHE. - The Hottentots
