The following is the reply of Gen. Cass to the Committee appointed by the National Convention to announce to him his nomination. It is every way characbristic of the man, and worthy of the candidate of the Democratic party of the Union. On the great platform of the time-honored principles of the party, does he plant himself, without a qualification or a proviso, and in so deing does he present to the people of the United States, the surest guaranty of his devotion to their best and most enduring interests:

WASHINGTON, May 30, 1848; GENTLEMEN—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 28th inst, announcing to me that I have been nominated by the convention of the democratic party its candidate for the office of President of the United States, at the approaching election.

While I accept, with deep gratitude, this distinguished honor—and distinguished indeed, it is—I do so with a fearful approhension of the responsibility it may eventu ally bring with it, and with a profound conviction that it is the kind confidence of my fellow-citizens, far more than any morit of my own, which has placed me thus prominearly before the American people. And fortunate shall lbe, if this confidence should find, in the events of the future, a better justification than is furnished by those of

I have carefully read the resolutions of the Democratic National Convention, laying down the platform of our po-lucal faith, and I adhere to them as firmly as I approve thom cordially. And while thus adhoring to them, I shall do so with a sacred regard to the "principles and compromises of the constitution," and with an carnest desire for their maintenance "in a spirit of moderation and brothorly love, so vitally essential to the perpetuity of the Union, and the prosperity and happiness of our common country"—a feeling which has made us what we are, and which in humble reliance upon Providence, we may hope is but the beginning of what we are to be. If called upon hereafter to render an account of my stewardship. in the great trust you desire to commit to me, should I be able to show that I have truly redeemed the pledge thus sublicly given, and had adhered to the principles of the hemogratic party with as much fidelity and success as have generally marked the administration of the enginent men to whom the party has hitherto confided the chief executive authority of the government, I could prefer no higher claim to the favorable consideration of the country, nor to the impartial commendation of history. This letter, gentlemen, closes my profession of politi-

This letter, gentiemen, closes my protession of politi-cal faith. Receiving my first appointment from that pure patriot and great expounder of American democra-cy. Mr. Jefferson, more than forty years ago, the inter-vening period of my life has been almost wholly passed in the service of my country, and has been marked by many viciesifides, and attended with many triying cir-mustances, both in poace and war. If my conduct in ese situations, and the opinions I have been called upon he party topics of the day, do not furnish a clear exposim of my views respecting them, and at the same time sufficient pledge of my faithful adherence to their pracacal application, whenever and wherever I may be reared to act, anything further I might now say, would be are delision, unworthy of myself, and justly offensive the great party you are now acting for.

My immediate predecessor in the nomination, by the emocratic party, who has since established so many turns to the regard and confidence of his country, when mouncing, four years ago, his acceptance of a similar determination not to be a candate for re-election. Coinciding with him in his views, well expressed and so faithfully carried out, I beg leave sa, that no circumstances can possibly arise, which and induce me again to permit my name to be brought as and in connexion with the chief magistracy of our cours. My inclination and my sense of duty dictate this human freedom throughout the world, than by any Canal freights are a little firmer, 55c being paid on her tr bute we could tender to its volue.

We have a government founded by the will of all, renable to the power of all, administered for the good all. The very first article in the democratic exced aches that the people are competent to govern themelves: it is, indeed rather an axiom than an article of poucal fauth. From the days of General Hamilton to out great exponent, if not the foundered its name, has preserved essentially its identity of haracter; and the doubt he entertained and taught of the apacity of man for self-government, has exerted a markmay, in fact, he resolved into it. Looking with doubt e issue of self-government, one party is prone to ink the public authority should be strengthened, and to ar any change, least that change might weaken the ecessary force of the government; while the other, cong in its convictions of the intelligence and virtue of ic people, believes that original power is safer than del-tated, and that the solution of the great problem of good ernment, consists in governing with the least force, ad leaving individual action as free from restraint as is compatible with the preservation of the social system, thereby securing to each all the freedom which is not es-tial to the well-being of the whole. As a party, we ought not to mistake the signs of the mes; but should bear in mind, that this is an age of prower, and in the onlinions of the world. The general ould assume no powers. It should se none which have not been clearly granted by the no mild terms. Benj. F. Butler and several are expectation to the federal compact. We ought to construe ed to follow him. The number is estimated at from 8000 constitution strictly, according to the received and pand principles of the Jefforson echool. But while rush the timents should be deprecated, if the government is among in its principles of action, and refuses to acommodate its measures, within its constitutional sphere cautiously indeed, but wisely and cheerfully-to the dvancing sentiments and necessities of the age, it will and its moral force impaired, and the public will deterly do when the indications of popular sentiment are ar and clearly expressed.

With great respect, gentlemen, I have the honor to be Buffalo, June 9-2 P. M. MARKET.-The receipts for the past few days have been limited, and the market has been pretty well swept of most articles of trade. There was a good inquiry for wheat and flour yesterday, but for the reason stated above the sales were not large. In wheat there were sales of form and express from time to time, in relation to all Chicago at 91c. Southport at 98c, and Ohio to arrive, now on the way, at $1);.

In Flour we quote a sale of Arcade choice Ohio at $5 121, also some Ohio equally as good, at same, and some few brands Michigan at $5. There is but little Corn offering and holders are waiting for better rates, but we notice one sale at 41 cts.

Canal freights are 52cts on flour, and 11 on corn, to Albany.

New York, June 8-7, P. M. There was a good deal of activity, with a gradual improvement in the prices. In the morning some sales of Oswero flour were made at $5 50 a 5 561, but afterwards $5 721 a5 79 was obtained. Sales Michigan -5-65133 881, Ohio $5 75a5 871, Genese $5 621a6.
