This busy, stirring, mater-of-fact world of ours is as full of romance and incident, out of which the post author may veave his thrilling tradgedy, as it was the Will Shakspear entranced as with the talevof the "fair Desdomena's" love for the soaty Moor because of "the dangers he had passed" and his love for her "that she did pity them." The taste, too, displayed in some of these romanticancidedts, which our Courts occasionally hing to the notice of the public, is county as unaccountable and incomprehensible as was that of the "fuir Desdemonia" '5 her "reverend father" whon he accused the Mean with being "_____an abuser of the world, a practicer Of arts inhibited and out of warrant." To this fact may be attributed the origin of the gener-laste." A case in point, in which a modern Desdemoun nud a dark Othello, play a no insignificaut part, is were lost. now before us. In New Orleans, on the 11th, ono Blanc Joubert, a free man of color, though not quite as dusky as Shakspear's hero, was called upon by a writ of habcas corpus to produce the person of one Rebecca Biornstein, a young and beautiful Polish girl of sixtoon, whom it was alleged he had inveigled away from her family. Joubert is a man of largo wealth; but, it is alloged is alroady married. After hearing testimony it was ordered according to the 815 article of the Code of practice, that Blanc Jaubert be imprisoned until he produce the person of the girl was brought into court and Joubert released .---An order was might directing the surrender of the girl to her family, but while the Judge was directing this briler to be entered on the minutes, Robecca manifested her determination not to obey the order of the Court by words and gestures to some of her family who advanced towards her. The Judge thereupon turned around, and hoking sternly upon the girl, addressed her thus: Rebecca Biernstein, you must and shall obey the orde of the Court; you must not be permitted to throw your-- Linto the abysi of infamy that gaps hefore you. Go home to your family, and resume the life of a chaste and modest woman! Rebecca arose and with great emphasis declared, "I would somer die than ge home with them!" ' Judge Laure-You had better die than lea I the life you have been leading for the past three or four days. The order of the Court shall be obeyed at every sacrifice. On this, Rebecca retired with the Sheriff, attended by her family. She was handed into a carriage, in which was Mr. B. Kowalesky, her guardian. The moment Rebecca ascertained this, she raised a loud outery, and attempted to leave the vehicle, but the door was closed, the driver on the box, and the girl taken away. Thus terminated the scene but it did not close the drama. wh ch had still a new and startling act to be played. The girl being informed that her apparently white lover was in part of Assam blood, and moreover married, was incited to be the instrument of his assassination. She made an appointment with him, and the rest of the story in thus told:

"They proceeded to the corner of Annunciation and It we streets, followed at a short distance by these friends of the gul, who were there to aid her in case of omergency. During the walk Joubert communicated the fact that he had offered $1000 to an acquaintance, if he would assist him in again taking her from the guardianship o her family. He concluded by asking if she did not love him. "Lovo you!" replied the indignant and passionalo guil; "love you, a negro! Love you, a married man, who have endeavored, by such foul falsehoods; 'o de-ceive a young girl!" "I am as good as any white man in the country," replied Joubert; "and as good as any white man in the country," replied Joubert; "and as to my being marnd, I love only you, and ani willing to abandon ey-ery body for you." With these words he advanced to-ford ther, holding out his hands. She indignantly reand her, holding out his hands. She maignantly re-ported it, and then poured out a forrent of reproaches and taprecations upon his head. It was raining at the time, and in the violence of her gestures, her bonnet was thrown editer head, and her long dark ringlets hung over her shoulders in wild disarray. Some one was passing at the time. The moment was not favorable to her purprovide the part of the provided and the tern, and Joubert, who has long been considered as a remarkably brave man, having passed successfully thref several desperate ducis, quaifed before the infigurant g ance of the infuriated girl, "New" she concluded, "You must either kill me, or I must kill you." Joubert shrunk back at the suggestion. As he did so, she drew a p-tol from her dress and shot him in the face, the ball penetrating his check. He staggered. As quick as cheught slie drew another pistol, and applying it to his torchead, pulled the trigger, but it snapped, and she threw it indignatily on the ground. Her friends then came up to interfere, approhending that Joubert might use vio kure, he being armed with a pistol and bowne knife.

These friends were young countrymen of Rebecca, who had offered to avengo the insult offered to her, but Modern philaithropy boasts that her prototype is "the diffusive air," and that as its blessings are uni-versal and unstinted, so shall her actions be world-wide and beneficial. The spirit of the Christian Religion is costnial grateful, and we, as a poople, are the acknowl-idged defenders of its untrammeled liberty. Prompted by such self-actions let us evince a noble willingness to trader to each his due, living or doad, for he who slights party effectually blighted this, the first and fairest flower by such self-actions let us ovince a noble willingness to truder to each his due, living or doad for he who slights the "gene forever," or grioves heartlessly the living, is morally assimilated to the fotid state of the former, and carns the lasting contempt of all the latter. This is no trilling matter, and should it be permitted to grow upont us it will inevitably eventuate in the grossest injustice and inhumanity. I sincerely hope that never squin on a hos solemu occasion shall there be discovered so much of the cruelty of unmerited heart of the un-matiness of-unmitigated party ennity. With respect to this subject, I was particularly disap-ponned at the course of one or two papers; their provi-ous reptation had prevented suspicion. It, would be well to respent that, in all human probability, what HO YEI HUNGERY.

well to remember that, in all human probability, what we "meto to others" will, at the hands of our cotomporaries, "be measured to us again." _
