Weaving in Iron.

The Albany Register says strange as the idea may seem, it is no less stange than true, that iron of a thickness that would make it appear impossible that it could be werked by any other agency than the forgo, the anvil and the hammer, is now, by the aid of a new and powerful machinery, weven into the most beautiful patterns, and the designs varied with almost the same facility as in the weaving of a carpet or a table cover. The specimens that we have seen excel in beauty and finish any iron railing that we have ever seen, and do not cos, mere;then half the ordinary cost of even cast iron miling. Many of the first class counting houses and offices in New York, are now fitted up with this railing in preference to any heretofers or at present in use. The use of the invention, however, is not confined to railings, as the ment tasteful verandahs, window gratings and garden fences, det., are made by it. The coal miners of Penmeylvania prefer it above all other modes for their screens. Charleston and New Orleans each have parks enclosed with it, and many of the rich southernors have their flewer concervatories enclosed in the same manner .-In fact, wherever it has been introduced to much advantage and will come into almost unlimited favor. The piculiar advantage it possesses over all other kinds of and pre railing is, that in its manufacture the rods or wires are se crimped that in the weaving process they are creased in a manner that one binds the other, thus giving a mutual support to the whole, that renders it mere durable than work twenty times its weight, made in the old year, at Barntogs and Newpert. All these things, whispered in good English, were very puzzling to Mr. P., and in order to find out who his fair companion was, he invited her to supper to a private cabinet. The lady first refused; but after some time she consented, and the complestaried in a carriage for the well-known restaration of Yachette, where all the Americans take their medic. Shepherd by firing a pistel, the ball of which entered her broast in the region of her heart, and lodged in the opposite side. The circumstances, briefly, are these:—

There was a wedding at which both parties were guests.
After the marriage ceremony a dance was proposed, but as the best and hostest were church members it was proposed to adjourn to a neighbor's house to finish the feetivities of the night. Miss Shepherd refused to go, as she was also a member of the church. Mr. Tate, who wished to anticipate a husband's authority, rashed in to

Now sir, what'll ye be axin' to pull me a tooth;

"Half a dollar," says the doctor.

"Well," says Pat, "What'll yo pull two for?" -"Oh," replied the doctor, "I wont change you any thing for pulling the second one." Pet coated himself, turned up his mug, and the doctor took a peep at his grinders, and with a little assistance from Pate soon found which were the ones Pat wanted Says Pat, "this is the first one and that is the second one. Plaze pull the second one out first."

"Very well," replied the doctor, sahy way to got them out." And he pulled.

Before he had time to fix his instrument for the other tooth, (the first one,) Pat had got out of the chair and was edging towards the door. "I guess, doctor, I went have the first tooth pulled until it achha, and you told me you would pull the second ees for nothing!"

Pat mizzied, and the doctor pocketed the joke instead of the fee.

A Jersey Girl.

In the year 1777 a woman passing a deserted house, in Woodbridge, N. J., saw through the window an intoxicated Hessian soldier, who had strayed from his party. There being no man within a mile of the town, she went home, put on men's clothes, and armed with an eld firelock, returned to the house and took the Hessinn prisoner. She stripped him of his arms, and marched him to the American camp, when she fell in with the patrel of the Jersey regiment stationed at Woodbridge. To whom she delivered her prisoner. Here was really a maid of henor-none of your milk and water articles, who scream at a spider and faint at the sight of a mouse. She saw, planned, and effected the capture of the whiskered Hessian in ten minutes, though his brawny arms had sufficient muscle to tear her limb from limb.

Good Criticism. Jenny Lind sang "Home, Sweet Home," on the night of her first appearance in St. Louis, to everybody's "frastie" satisfaction. An elderly gentleman who heard it was so excessively excited that he said, "Good Heavch! if I had but the hellow trunk of a tree to call my home, I could go home new and 'creep comfertably into it." This was what we call genuine criticism-better than all the blaberated and analytical reviews ever pen-

Their power over the abone disenses is not received, if equalled, by any other properation in the United Studen, as the cures attest, in many cases after shifted physicians had failed.
These Bitters are worthy the attention of invalids. Possessing great virtues in the rectification of disenses of the Liver and legser glands, exercising the most searching powers in weakness and affections of the digrative organs, they are, withal, safe, certain and pleasant.
