NEW YORK, June 17.

A TERRIBLE FIRE IN SAN FRANCISCO.—Among the buildings destroyed, were the Custom House, Parker's National, New World, City, Delmonico's and Exchange, also Körner's building, and the offices of the Steamship Company. The fire also spread to the shipping containing a large number of vessels lying at the wharves.

It was discovered on Clay street and ran through a dozen blocks, quickly spreading to other parts of the city. Hunter, George, Castro, and Eldorado streets are completely gutted.

The utmost consternation prevailed during the fire, and thousands were turned out of house and home having lost their all.

Measures were about being adopted to relieve the distressed. It is feared that a number of lives have been lost. Business was not thought of. San Francisco presents a heart-breaking aspect.

The news from the mines continue of a cheering character. New discoveries are daily being made. Those working with quartz-crushing machinery are realizing a rich reward. In some instances the average, per man, was $30 to $50 per day.

The lynch law was still in force and several new examples had been made.

BOSTON, June 12.

It has been ascertained that E. G. Daggett, author of the bloody tragedy at Roxbury, was a man of tempestuous habits and good moral character. He had for two years past been subject to epileptic fits, and at times labored under mental derangement, but has never until this event exhibited signs of violence. His body has been identified and it is to be removed to Maine.

PATRICK, June 17.

A fire occurred this morning at one o'clock a few miles below the city on the Jersey side, at a German ball at the house of J. A. Diver, which was attended by a number of respectable persons from this city. The ball progressed quietly until about one o'clock, when a number of persons went into the bar-room and attacked Mr. Diver and his assistant.

A severe fight ensued. The neighbors were aroused, and after about two hours, a sufficient force was collected to disperse and arrest sixteen of the rioters, who were sent to the Woodbury Jail. Mr. Diver was badly injured having received several stabs, and is not expected to live. Three of his assistants were badly beaten, and also some of the neighbors. During the disturbance the bar was broken in and robbed. Much excitement has been occasioned by the transaction.

Paterson, June 16.

A dabolical murder was committed here this morning, by an Irishman named William Hangeran, upon the person of his wife. He beat her to death with an axe-blade, while she was lying in bed with an infant by her side. Her skull was broken, her fingers bunched to a jelly, and other parts of her body horribly mangled. The infant was unharmed. The murderer is at large yet. Hangeran was a very intemperate man, and is supposed to have been intoxicated at the time.

Saboo, Destruction of a Pirate Settlement, Great Slaughter.

The Sciards have carried into effect their threatened chastisement of the Sultan and people of Saboo, but attended with a great sacrifice of human life, without compassing any human object. The particulars of the fall of this nest of pirates is interesting.

The expedition sailed from Zambouanga on the 13th of February. Owing to the effect of strong currents and other contressing, the corvettes Ville de Béville and Béllaine both grounded on a coral reef to the eastward of the island of Pangasian, when the former vessel commenced making 20 feet a minute an hour. Both vessels were extricated, and on the 25th the expedition sighted Saboo. Every preparation had been made to form a most formidable resistance. A general order had been issued among the men to plan of attack, the disembarkation of the troops commenced early on February 25th. The ships, forts and houses were despatched to the water with the most impetuosity to dash the tray, threw overboard upon a sergeant whom he slew with a lance. The first drawing of Spanish blood hastened the induction of the troops, and the assault fell amid a shower of balls. Save this incident, the troops marched on, regardless of the fire of the enemy; their advance in regular order, notwithstanding the harrowing influence of the guns, astonished the Sciards. In the meantime the three steamer and brig of war opened a brisk and effective fire on the fortress, doing much execution; the corvette anchored on the right and discharged bombs and grenades in such parts of the town where masses of natives were seen. The success of the firing was mainly attributable to the circumstance of the engineer officers seating themselves on the masts, from whence they directed the angles of the forts, and gave instructions for the elevation of the guns with a degree of accuracy and precision not otherwise attainable. The fire directed to the left ceased about mid-day; this division was under the personal command of the Governor-General, who made an assault on Fort Daniel, regarded by the Sciards as the strongest in the place. On the right the firing was kept up until half past one.

In advance to the assault of Fort Daniel the troops buried their breasts and pressed on. The fire from the fort is said to have been incessant and tremendous, and the resistance offered extremely desperate; every inch of ground was disputed amidst cries of "Viva la Reina," on the one hand, and the war yell on the other. All their hope of security lay on Fort Daniel; here the fight was maintained, the sanguineous, fearful, each in succession possessing themselves of the place; but eventually the Sciards were expelled. The Spanish flag was hoisted on the fortress by Father Pascual Ibanez, a priest of the order of Recoletoes, who paid for his daring by being slain. The assailants on the right had little to overcome; the Sultan's and other fort had been abandoned. The Sultan, in escaping from his fort, accompanied by his Datoos and a large force of Sultan's, encountered the right division, which appears to have been panic-struck. At all events, the officers were, and two colonels were immediately after the battle placed in arrest, and will be tried by a court-martial for cowardice. Had these officers acted with decision, the Sultan must have been an easy captive, and his escape naturally vexed the intrepid Governor-General. The left division suffered a loss of 33 killed and 84 wounded, while the loss of the other division was a single man.

The defenders of Fort Daniel fought to the last; none of them perished. The whole of the fort, and part of the town were destroyed on the same spot; the captured artillery, consisting of 130 pieces of ordnance and a quantity of ammunition, were embarked. The number of the defenders slain could not be ascertained, but must have been considerable. The expedition then sailed for Zambouanga, leaving the Spanish flag floating over the shores of Saboo. Owing to the advanced period of the monsoon, and the difficulties of following the coast into the jungle fastnesses, the Governor-General did not carry out his promised examination, but will probably return to the work when the time is more favorable.
