THE RABBIT ON THE WALL.

From Parson's Magazine. BY MARIA J. E. BROWNE. CHAPTER I. "I loved a picture..."

for the whole family, in the storage of the packet ship Cythera, and that within a given time they must all go on board. "It is not yet, to oblige us all away from home..."

She was not, indeed, so even-tempered and gentle as she used to be in the deserted home of the "old country..."

with the wall, the hearth, the pavement for a canvas. Now, he would sit hour after hour, throwing upon his slate singularly natural and graceful outlines of almost everything within the range of his vision...

country at service, and she spends all her gains in fancy; the busy, instead of helping her poor mother a bit..."
