I SAW HER IN CARBAGE TIME

BY SLOCUM SI UGS ESQ., I saw her first in cabbage time. She was a cutting crout-She'd stop the cutter new and then, To turn a head about And as she'd salt it in a tub. And stamp it down while, Upon her fresh and rosy lip Reposed a witching smile.

I saw ber next in winter time. And still she gaily smiled, For there, upon the cooking stove Her grub was being b'iled. Around the huge and greasy pot, The steam came pouring out. And from the smellel knew that she

Was cooking . "speck" and crout. When next I saw her, in the Spring, She smiled not as before, A heavy weight was on her heart-The crout was "all no more!" The pot she used to cook in. Was eaten up with rust.

The cutter hung upon the wall,

'Mid spider webs and dust. I've seen her often in that time, When all around was gay-When others laugh and talk the most, She'd frown, and jurn away. I've watched to see a ray of joy. But watched, alas, in vain-I never hope to see her smile

Davy Smith's Stratigem; or, the way to get a Cellar Dug Cheap.

Till cabbage comes again!

David Smith, a retired oysterman, had scraped together a sufficiency of funds to buy a lot of ground in Lombard street, above twelfth. Being an ingenius old Darkey-this Davy Smith-and intending to build a house on the lot lie had purchased, he contrived a little speculation which he thought would put a few dollars in his fob, and help pay the expenses of his building. The old black rogue secretly inserted a few antique Spanish quarters in the ground a little below the surface, and the next day, while tampering about the premises in the presence of a few of his African neighbors, he pretended to dig up some of the hidden treasure. Immediately it was reported in the neighborhood that Blackbeard's money, or some other fellow's, was burried in old Davy Smith's lot. Dave made his appearance to answer inquiries on this abbject with his arm in a sling; he made a full confirmation of the report, remarking that he had hurt his hand and was unable to dig, but he was ready to grant digging permits

Ten able bodied colored s men joyfully accepted those terms, and went to work with the energy of California gold hunters, making the earth fly as it does when the ground is raked by TATRALTS of Lemon, Rese, Vanilla, Nuture, Bitter Almon, Rese, Vanilla, a cannon ball. Old Davy stood by to encourage them, exclaiming once in a while, "Steam up, darkies-shovel away! Haw, haw, haw, haw! How , de niggers am a going it. You will come to the money bime-by." &c. After about two hours and a half, the industrious fellows had excavated a square hole, six leet deep and long and wide enough for Davy's purpose. "Dat will do, niggers; haw, haw, haw!" cried Davy. "Some people hab to spend money to get dar cellars dug, but I hab mine dug for nuffin, and get paid ten dallars for 'lowing de niggers' to do it!" Finding that they had been swindled, the money-diggers fell on David, pitched him into the hole, and bayan to cover him up with nim into the hole, and began to cover him up with Chips granell for sale by asimuch activity as they had just shown in throw ing out the dirt. How to Lay up Money for a Rainy Day.

A number of years ago, Charles and Clara S. were married in the city of New York. Time passed on, Charles faithfully performing his agreement, and making no inquiries as to the disposition of his better half, until they had been married some ten years; fortune which had smiled with constancy, suddenly turned her back and left him apparently high and dry among the breakers of Wall Street. When the crisis had arrived, he went home with a heavy heart, to announce the sad news to his wife that he was an irretrievebly ruined man—that his property had all gone to satisfy his creditors, and nothing was left.

"Not exactly so bad as that my dear," said Clara.

"Wait a minute, and see what I have been doing."
